Johnson Plans "Police Units" To Rule Codes

Machinery to Compel Obedience Is Wanted by Administrator.

Auto Makers Rewrite Labor Clause NRA Asked Altered.

Drafting of codes for the automobile and bituminous coal industries approached completion yesterday and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, announced plans to establish policing machinery to control operation of codes prescribed for industries.

A general supervisory "mechanism" would be set up in the recovery administration and under this would be individual committees or boards for each industry on which the industries would have representation, Gen. Johnson said.

In return for the benefits industries receive from suspension of the antitrust law, the Recovery Administration intends to keep a close supervision on all industries under codes, the administrator said. This supervision would extend to prices, wages, hours of labor, production, selling agreements and all of the fair practice provisions of the codes.

Can Supervise Activities.

The recovery law directs prevention of monopolies and oppression of small industries, Gen. Johnson pointed out, and gives the Recovery Administration power to "modify or veto" plans or activities counter to fair practices.

Protection of codes will be taken away from individuals or industries which do not conform, he said. Cancellation of codes would make applicable the restrictive and punitive provisions of the antitrust laws.

Completion of the automobile code was expected yesterday. Manufacturers' representatives revised their collective bargaining provision to the satisfaction of recovery officials.

May Be Approved Today.

Gen. Johnson called in William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America, and other members of the Labor Advisory Board and submitted the revised clause. Mr. Green asked for time to take the section up with the full advisory board this morning. If it is approved the code is expected to be on its way to the President before night. Approval is expected from the labor representatives in view of the report that the auto men's provision has the approval of Donald Richberg, general counsel of the administration.

Although the text was not made public, it was reliably reported the words "open shop" had been eliminated and there had been added

Chain-Store Head Wins $295,000 Suit

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 25 (AP). Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor today dismissed a suit for $295,000 brought by State Senator S. P. Robineau, of Florida, against James C. Penny, chain store head.

Robineau brought the action in 1925, in Florida and the case was transferred to the Westchester County Supreme Court, where it was tried last year. Trial of the case required three months.

Robineau alleged that in 1924 Penny contracted with him to buy 125,000 acres of land at Green Cove Springs, near Jacksonville, for a Baptist Chuch organization.

Price Fixing In Oil Code Held Blunder

Millions, Cost to Public, NRA Economists Declare.

Ickes Expected to Talk With Roosevelt on Plan's Operation.

Price-fixing provisions written into the oil industry code constitute "a serious blunder," economic experts of the National Recovery Administration say in a privately circulated memorandum which came to light yesterday.

The "blunder" will cost the gasoline-buying public millions of dollars, will squeeze out or threaten the existence of thousands of small operators and distributors and will mean millions of unearned profits to a favored few in the oil industry, it was said.

Joseph E. Pogue, economic adviser on the oil industry, and Dr. Alexander Sachs, chief of the administration's division of economic research and planning, signed the memorandum which has been submitted to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, and other recovery officials.

The oil industry is overproducing at the rate of 500,000 barrels of crude oil per day against a demand of 2,300,000 barrels, and the plan to fix the price of gasoline as a base for determining crude prices will "render it particularly difficult to bring about promptly a balanced situation, for, obviously, refiners will continue to overproduce if the profit margin is guaranteed to them," the memorandum said.

Control Handicap Seen.

The plan, it was added, "destroys the senstivity of the most important of the single price factor in the industry, namely, spot gasoline, and therefore seriously handicaps the functioning of the control which needs this flexible price for its guidance."

Disclosure of the written opposition of the recovery economists was regarded as of significance, inasmuch as it comes at a time when President Roosevelt has under study the very much criticized provisions of the oil code.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, who has been keenly interested in the problems of the oil industry, is expected to go to Hyde Park, N. Y., today or tomorrow to confer with the President. Just what he will discuss with the Chief Executive has not been disclosed, but operation of the oil code is expected to be one of the subjects.

Secretary Ickes has been an advocate of price fixing in the oil industry, and some of the powerful figures in the industry have advocated it as necessary. Other elements in the industry have opposed price fixing.

Struck Out Once.

Gen. Johnson began consideration of the oil code by forcing its advocates to strike price fixing from its provisions. It was only in the last days of consideration that price fixing was written back into the code, final touches being put on at conferences at the White House between Secretary Ickes and Gen. Johnson with the President.

Although the economists in their memorandum make no mention of the production-control provisions of the code, it was learned they believe prompt inauguration of the price-fixing authority would be followed by an era of profiteering which would cost the gasoline-buying public millions of dollars and result in the ruin of thousands of small producers and distributors.

This loophole would result from the fact that the fixing of prices would raise retail and wholesale prices all the way back to the oil well a long time before it would be possible to control production, it is said.

Undeserved profits also would be taken by various oil interests from millions of gallons of oil now held in storage and which would be sold at higher prices, it was predicted.

Wreck Scene Crash Of Pole Kills Man

Penn Lineman's Aid Is Badly Hurt Mending Telephone Wire.

A Pennsylvania Railroad lineman was killed and his assistant critically injured last night, when a pole on which they were working collapsed. The men were attempting to repair telephone communication at the scene of Thursday's railroad wreck in Kenilworth.

The man killed was identified as Basil Fox, 43, of Baltimore. He was crushed beneath the pole. Lawrence Paregoy, 35, Baltimore, was taken to Casualty Hospital. He suffered fractured ribs and other severe injuries.

Witnesses said the pole snapped at the base. Paregory, working above Fox, was thrown clear. The pole fell across Fox as he lay unconscious.

Files Support Milk Charge Against King

Affidavit Is Discovered Relating Attempt to "Fix" Prices.

Accused U. S. Expert to Be Called Again in Senate Probe.

Charges that Dr. Clyde L. King attempted to "fix" District milk prices have been substantiated by affidavits uncovered in Department of Justice files by Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the Senate Milk Investigating Committee.

Discovery of the affidavits followed a sweeping denial of price "fixing" activities by the milk adviser to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. After the Senate committee had recessed. Dr. King declared that the "whole story of District milk marketing has not yet been told."

Dr. King will be summoned before the committee by Seal when hearings are resumed. Dr. King was criticized by Seal because "he did not see fit to furnish the committee with the information he claims to posses."

The charges against Dr. King were made by Robert L. Dickson, secretary of the independent Alderney - Green Meadows - Fairfax Farms Dairy. He also charged that Dr. King diverted his milk supply when he refused to engage in a price-fixing pact.

An affidavit made by Henry N. Brawner, president of the Chestnut Farms Dairy, in which he substantiates the charges of Dickson, was found in the files.

This affidavit was made by Brawner when he conducted an independent dairy. He has since sold out to the National Dairy Products Corporation, which controls 60 per cent of Washington's milk supply.

A plan for the price agreement was identified at the Senate hearing by John McGill, secretary of the Producers' Association, as the one submitted by Dr. King.

Among newspaper editors affected are George Bernhard, Alfred Kerr, Friedrich Stampfer and Helmut von Gehlach. Former Chief Albert Grzesinski and Bernhard Weiss also come under the ban.

The former Socialist chancellor, Scheidemann, was elected to the Reichstag in March.

Dr. Feuchtwanger, famous novelist, turned up in Switzerland. Heinrich Mann was among the writers whose names were stricken from the author's section of the Prussian Academy by the Government.

Cedric Bernard is the former editor of the Vossische Zeitung. Alfred Kerr was well known as a dramatic critic.

21 Nations Sign Pact to Reduce Wheat Supply

Importing and Exporting Group Agree Upon 89 Cents Per Bushel.

London, Aug. 25 (AP).—Twenty-one nations tonight signed an international wheat pact, climaxing four months of negotiations aimed to adjust the supply of wheat to effective world demand and to bring about a rise and a stabilization of prices at a level remunerative to farmers and fair to consumers.

The agreement was possible when the importing and exporting groups finally compromised on 63.08 United States cents in gold (currently 89 cents) per bushel as the price which must be maintained for four months, whereupon importing nations will lower tariffs.

List of Signatures.

Argentina, of the so-called big four overseas exporters—the others being the United States, Australia and Canada—alone was unable to sign due to the absence of Tomas A. Le Breton, its representative, He will affix his signature Monday.

The remaining signatories were Germany, Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, France, the United Kingdom, Greece, Hungary, the Irish Free State, Italy, Poland, Roumania, Spain, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland, Soviet Russia and Jugoslavia.

By the agreement the big four exporters undertake that their exports during the crop year 1933-34 shall be adjusted on the basis of a world import demand amounting to 560,000,000 bushels.

Basis for Extent of Cut.

During the crop year of 1934-35 they agree to limit exports to maximum figures 15 per cent less in the case of each country than the average out turn on the average acreage sown during the period 1931-1933 inclusive, after deducting normal domestic requirements.

The Danubian countries—Bulgaria, Hungary, Roumania and Yugoslavia—agree that their combined exports of wheat during the crop year 1933-34 will not exceed 50,000,000 bushels, though the aggregate may be increased by 4,000,000 if necessary for movement of the exportable surplus of the 1933 crop.

During the crop year 1934-35 they undertake that their combined exports will not exceed 50,000,000 bushels.

Russia, while unable to give any undertaking regarding production, agrees to limit exports for the crop year 1933-34 to a figure to be reached in further negotiations with the big four.

Wallace Given Credit.

(United Press.)

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace was credited generally last night with accomplishing one of the biggest international coups of the Roosevelt administration by forcing a world accord on wheat acreage production.

Congratulations poured in upon the farm paper publisher who turned Cabinet member as he prepared to announce today a wheat crop reduction for the United States, probably of 15 per cent.

U.S. Requests Insull Return To Face Trial

Secret Indictment Says He Shifted Assets of Failing Firm.

Held Extraditable Under 1932 Treaty; Brother, Son Also Named.

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP).—A new move calculated to end Samuel Insull's freedom in Greece and bring him to justice in American courts was disclosed today by the Department of Justice.

Formal application for the arrest and extradition of the deposed monarch of a vast utilities empire has been made to the government of Greece, based upon a secret indictment returned June 1 in United States District Court here.

Insull defeated efforts of Illinois last fall to bring him home for trial on larceny and embezzlement charges, but Government officials are hopeful today that the new Federal indictment would bring Insull back.

Son, Brother Also Named.

The indictment alleged that Insull, his son, Samuel, jr., his brother, Martin, and eight other officials of Corporation Securities Co. violated the Federal bankruptcy act by transferring $2,500,000 in assets of the corporation in anticipation of its imminent collapse.

U. S. Attorney Dwight H. Green said, after Judge T. Page had released the suppressed indictment, "under the terms of the treaty of the United States and Greece, ratified and proclaimed November 1, 1932, this is an extraditable offense."

He added that extradition proceedings would be started shortly to remove Martin Insull from Orillia, Ont.

Indicted with the Insulls today were other former officers of Corporation Securities Co: Harold L. Stuart, president; Philip J. McEnroe, vice president; John F. O'Keefe, secretary-treasurer; Edward J. Doyle, John J. Gulick and Stanley Field, directors; William R. Irwin, auditor, and Charles Wilbur Daniels, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Charges Are Listed.

A second indictment charges transfer of $91,700 to the National City Bank of New York as collateral; the third count a transfer of $390,000 to the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co., Chicago; the fourth, transfer of $1,000,000 to the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. of New York City as part payment on the principal of a $5,000,000 loan, and the fifth count alleges transfer of $291,000 to the Central Hanover Bank "with the understanding that in case of insolvency such deposit was to be appropriated by the bank and applied on the indebtedness."

While Martin Insull's case has been continued from time to time in Ontario, Samuel Insull was set free at Athens after his defenders convinced the courts the State offense was not extraditable.

The bankruptcy indictment revealed today had been sealed by Judge Page pending preparation of the application for Insull's removal from Greece. Forest A. Harness, special Assistant Attorney General, sailed August 8 and is at Athens now assisting American diplomatic representatives in the extradition proceedings.

Insull Uninformed.

Athens, Aug. 25 (AP).—Samuel Insull said today he had no knowledge of renewed United States efforts to seek his extradition, the American expatriate said:

"There have been rumors to that effect for some months and have become more persistent recently. I know nothing and if I did, I wouldn't say."

Forest Harness, who arrived from Washington, would not discuss the reports, but admitted that he was connected with the Attorney General's office and that the Insull affair was the object of his visit.

Captor of Taft's Cousin Killed in Police Battle; Denver Man Abducted

Store Buyer Is Seized After Fake Call to Hospital

Wide Area Patrolled; Note Signed "N.R.A." Is Received.

Denver, Aug. 25 (AP).—Bernard Bitterman, 28, department store buyer, missing 24 hours, was reported tonight in a note received by friends to be in the hands of kidnapers.

Police immediately renewed their hunt for George (Machine Gun) Kelly, widely sought as the abductor of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma oil millionaire.

The note indicated the kidnapers believed Bitterman was a nephew of Alfred Triefus, general manager of the department store, and a relative of David May, founder of the May Company stores. Bitterman is a close friend of the Triefus family but is not a relative.

Note Signed N. R. A."

"Your nephew is O. K.," said the note, mailed from Cheyenne, Wyo. "You'll hear from us later." It was signed "N. R. A."

Triefus turned the note over to Val Zimmer, Department of Justice agent here.

Bitterman had been missing since last night, when he was called by telephone at the store and informed his brother, Robert, had been injured and was in a hospital. He left immediately in a taxicab for the hospital, but never arrived. His brother was safe at home.

Wide Area Patrolled.

All highways in the Cheyenne area, 100 miles north of here, were patrolled tonight. Special guards were placed on the roads leading to Jackson Hole, near Yellowstone National Park.

Bitterman lived with his mother.

While searching for Kelly, police said they also suspected Verne Sankey, wanted for the $60,000 abduction last March of Charles Boetticher 2d, wealthy Denver broker.

Trio Ready for Trial.

Oklahoma, City, Aug. 25 (AP).—Three members of the R. G. Shannon family whom the Government accuses of participation in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping were brought to Oklahoma City for trial today, while another member of the asserted gang, Albert Bates, signed a waiver of extradition in Denver.

Harvey Bailey, reputed "brains" in the abduction of the wealthy Oklahoma City oil man, also has agreed to come here from Dallas, where he has been held under a heavy guard since his arrest August 12 at the Shannons' farm near Paradise, Tex.

Sergt. Pagett Killed When Auto With Food Nears Wife and Baby.

Towanda, Pa., Aug. 25 (AP).—Sergt. William Pagett, 22, of Washington, member of the Civilian Conservation Corps, was killed and five others were injured today as their car rolled over a 100-foot embankment near Forkston.

The injured are: Alvin Carney, Tunkhannock; Gertrude Morrow, West Pittston; Bert Kintner and Cedric Ward, Lake Carey, and Eva Williamson, Buffalo.

A desperate effort by Pagett to take groceries to his wife and baby son at the camp led to the tragedy. Wednesday's storm found the sergeant in Tunkhannock purchasing the provisions.

Roads were impassable, but Pagett arranged with Carney to take him and a small quantity of food as near to the camp as possible. He planned to walk the remainder of the way. The car skidded over the embankment only a short distance from the point he planned to leave it.

The body will be sent to Washington tomorrow for burial in Arlington Cemetery.

Girl Seeks $100,000 Insurance on Freckles

Hollywood, Aug. 25 (AP).—Dorothy Coonan has many freckles—182, in fact. Now in her teens, Dorothy earns a living by facing the cameras and exposing her good-looking but freckled countenance to the public gaze on movie screens. Her contract provides that she's out of a job if she loses the freckles.

So, yesterday, she applied for $100,000 worth of freckle insurance.

Hoover Lauded In Bank Crisis By Vandenberg

Tried to Thwart a Blaze to Avert 'Forest Fire,' Senator Testifies.

Detroit, Aug. 25 (AP).—The policy of the Federal Government following the national bank holiday, which, he said, was one of "insistence on liquidity instead of solvency," was criticized today before the one-man Detroit bank jury by United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, as one that "spelled the doom of thousands of banks."

Calmly Traces Events.

The junior senator, called before the jury which has been investigating the closing of two national banks here, declared "many banks were closed by the comptroller which never should have been permitted to close," and insisted such closings were caused by the Government "forcing appraisals on the wrecked values of an utterly depressed market."

Calmly and concisely—in sharp contrast to the bitter charges flung before the jury in dramatic manner yesterday by the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin—the senator traced the Washington picture of events up to the beginning of the now famous Michigan banking holiday, February 14. He declared that Herbert Hoover, then President, made every effort to "put out the impending Detroit conflagration in order to prevent a forest fire."

Amazed at U. S. Action.

He made a strong plea for standardized bank deposit insurance, declaring it is "absolutely necessary to guarantee the protection of all bank depositors," and offered criticism of the Government for declining to permit the local jury to examine the records of the two closed banks here—the First National Bank-Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

"I am amazed at the action of the Government in denying the court access to the records of the banks," he said. "I am amazed at the refusal of Government officers to come here and testify. I can see no reason for their stand whatever."

Senator Vandenberg completed his testimony today, and the jury adjourned until Monday.

R.F.C. Aids 53 Banks.

(Associated Press.)

Jesse Jones, chairman, announced yesterday that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation directors had agreed to make additional loans aggregating $2,800,000 to 53 up-State Michigan banks to enable them to reopen on some acceptable reorganization basis. The announcement was made after the corporation directors met with R. E. Reichert, Michigan State bank commissioner, and Walter A. Kirkby, assistant attorney general of Michigan.

Jones said each bank would borrow for its own purposes and furnish its own acceptable collateral. The depositors of each bank would approve borrowing as well as the reorganization plans of their own banks.

Five Killed in Auto Smashed by Train

Lone Survivor of Crash at Brooms Landing May Not Live.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 25 (AP).—Five persons were killed and another probably fatally injured today as a special Pennsylvania Railroad inspection train crashed into their automobile at Brooms Landing, along the Susquehanna River, a mile south of Columbia.

The dead: Mr. and Mrs. John Gilbert and their 5-month-old son, John, jr., and Miss Mary Greenwalt, 18, of Columbia, and Miss Henrietta Hill, Morrisdale. Dale Hewitt, 21, of Morrisdale, received a fractured skull and other injuries which physicians say will prove fatal.

The train, carrying F. R. Girard, Philadelphia division superintendent, and other railroad officials on an inspection trip of storm damage on the Port Deposit branch, struck the automobile on a crossing, dragged it 60 feet, then hurled it about 100 feet into the Susquehanna River.

San Francisco Street Duel Follows Cry of Prisoner.

Victim, Tortured, Paid Cash; "Sweet Tooth" Fatal to Gunman.

San Francisco, Aug. 25 (AP).—The four days' kidnaping of William F. Wood, well-to-do 45-year-old cousin of the late William Howard Taft, ended today in the killing of his abductor and the wounding of two other persons.

Police shot and killed the kidnaper, identified as Henry Jennings, as he sought to shoot his way free after Wood had shouted to Policeman Michael McDonald for help. McDonald and Mrs. Ella Bowers, 62, who was on her way to court for a divorce, were wounded.

Merchants and customers in the Crystal Palace Market scrambled to safety as the shooting began.

Had Obtained $10,000.

"Let's go in here," ordered Jennings, who shortly before had taken Wood to his safe deposit vault, where Jennings had pocketed cash and bank books representing $10,000. "I want to buy some walnuts. I love walnuts, or any kind of nuts."

McDonald's condition was declared serious. He was given a transfusion. A bullet was taken from Mrs. Bowers' arm and she went on to court and got her divorce.

Wood, unscathed, was arrested as Jennings' associate. He quickly proved he was a Sausalito business man who had been kidnaped by Jennings Monday night, tortured, harassed and robbed.

For one moment, Jennings had failed to keep his victim covered as he cracked walnuts.

"Look out! This guy's got a gun!" Wood yelled.

Jennings fired before the surprised policeman could act.

Runs Into Other Officers.

Jennings ran outside, meeting Officers John McConville and Ed Borbeck. Two shots missed him. The gunman fired back, wounding Mrs. Bowers. A final shot killed him.

Wood said Jennings bound him with picture wire and tortured him to make him reveal his wealth.

The first two days were spent at Wood's Sausalito home.

"He compelled me to write a letter to the bank, asking for $200, which they sent," said Wood. "Then he made me write and ask for the contents of my safe deposit box. The bank sent an agent over.

"When I answered the door my abductor stood behind me, shoving the gun into my back. I told the messenger I was feeling better and would call to get the box myself.

Afraid of Death.

"Wednesday we went to San Francisco and walked around in broad daylight. I was afraid to cry out, knowing he would kill me.

"Yesterday we went to the bank. I was covered and compelled to ask for my safe deposit box, containing thousands of dollars in cash and securities.

"Last night he locked me in a closet while he went out.

"This morning we went to a gun store, where he bought a new gun. He intended to keep me prisoner for months, to get everything I had."

Woods is a member of a pioneer California family. His mother and the former President's mother were sisters. He said he recognized Jennings as a ticket taker at the ferry at Sausalito.

Chief Executive Plans No More Budget Slashes

Believes Further Economy Moves Might Impair Efficiency.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Hyde Park, N. Y., Aug. 25.—President Roosevelt believes the campaign to reduce Federal operating expenses has been applied to the limit, commensurate with efficient administration, and that no further drastic economies should be attempted in the 1935 budget.

The President outlined this policy today in his regular Friday press conference at the summer White House.

The decision followed an exhaustive survey of Federal budgetary and fiscal problems, with Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin and Budget Director Lewis Douglas.

$2,500,000,000 Is Goal.

In his first approach to the 1935 budget, Mr. Roosevelt has set current ordinary expenses of approximately $2,500,000,000 a year as the goal in the new estimates. The economies realized in 1933 and 1934 are to be maintained generally, with such adjustments between departments as may be necessary to eliminate hardships. The President does not feel, however, that the normal operations of the Federal establishment can be carried on effectively at a lower figure.

There was no specific mention of Federal salaries, but the President's policy outline indicated recent pay cuts will be maintained.

Secretary Woodin's visit afforded another opportunity for the President to deny emphatically rumors that he was hunting a new Treasury head. It will be six weeks or two months before Mr. Woodin will be completely restored in health, but the President anticipates that he will return to Washington permanently.

The conference also set at rest reports that drastic inflationary measures are under serious consideration. The broad objective of this policy is to raise commodity prices to approximately the 1925 level. But for the present, the effort will be confined to open market operations by the Federal Reserve System, and such other steps to facilitate expansion of business credits.

Secretary Wooding told his chief the outlook for Treasury operations in the next six months appears favorable. Approximately $1,500,000,000 in short-term obligations will mature between now and January. Also, about $500,000,000 in new borrowing will be necessary to finance the public works program and other recovery measures. Thus, about $2,000,000,000 in credits needed for this should be readily available, Secretary Woodin reported.

Mr. Woodin left Hyde Park this afternoon for a mountain resort in northern New York, where he plans to spend two or three weeks rebuilding his strength.

Budget Estimates Asked.

Budget Director Douglas has asked department heads to submit preliminary budget estimates for 1935 before October 1. President Roosevelt plans to have some of the larger supply measures ready for Congress early in December, so that the House Appropriations Committee may begin hearings a month before the January session.

The President has invited Secretary of the Interior Ickes to Hyde Park Monday. He hopes to obtain a definite estimate of how much money will be required from month to month to carry out the recovery program, and thus to enable the Treasury to avoid excessive cash balances.

It was announced also that the conference with Secretary Ickes probably will bring a decision on some appointments to the new Federal oil control commission, to be established under the petroleum code approved last Saturday.

D. C. Appointments Up.

Postmaster General James A. Farley is scheduled to arrive at Hyde Park Monday afternoon. The President said he plans to discuss District of Columbia appointments, among other matters.

Attorney General Cummings' opinion dealing with gold exports and hoarding was submitted to the President today for study. White House officials anticipate an executive order regarding exportation of newly mined gold will be promulgated within a week or ten days.

Although there were no further reports from Gen. Hugh S. Johnson today regarding progress of the coal negotiations in Washington, the President expressed elation that the miners and operators appear to be approaching an agreement. He anticipates the coal code will be ready for his approval early next week.

The rayon manufacturing code was signed today. It is patterned generally after the cotton textile agreement.

Widow of Rudolph Trapped by Flood

Rowboat Rescues Her and 3 Others From Almost Submerged Auto.

Trapped in her automobile by swift and high flood waters, Mrs. Cuno H. Rudolph, widow of the former District Commissioner, and two companions were rescued in a rowboat Thursday, it was learned yesterday. The trio were fleeing from Mrs. Rudolph's cottage at Bayhead, Md., when it was threatened by the bay waters.

They fled in Mrs. Rudolph's car from the cottage, but it was caught by the rising water. With Mrs. Rudolph was Mrs. Daisy Summers and an unidentified youth. Rescuers took the three to high ground, reaching their almost submerged car with a rowboat.

Mrs. Rudolph reached Washington yesterday after spending the night at Severna Park. She returned, however, to determine the extent of damage to her cottage.

Washingtonians in Schooner Battered by Gale

Their 50-foot schooner battered and helpless after riding out the hurricane, Dr. Elliott M. Campbell, Washington surgeon, his daughter, Mary Elliott, and his wife, and others were rescued yesterday off the coast of Maryland's Eastern Shore by a collier. Their experience was one of the most harrowing to be reported after the gale.

Dr. Campbell, Wife, Daughter Rescued at Sea

Washington Family Taken Off Sinking Yacht; Three Injured.

A Washington family and guests were safe in Newport News last night after a harrowing experience in a schooner-yacht which was nearly battered to pieces in the great coastal storm.

They were Dr. and Mrs. Elliott M. Campbell, 3109 Sixteenth street northwest; their 12-year-old daughter, Mary, and their party, consisting of William B. N. Brooks, his son, Robert, 14, of Pittsburgh, and William Sheehan, sailor.

Doctor's Rib Broken.

Dr. Campbell suffered a broken rib, his daughter was knocked unconscious by a blow on the head, and all suffered cuts and bruises.

The six were taken from the wrecked Bluejacket, the 50-foot schooner-yacht of Dr. Campbell, by the collier N. and J. Tracy. The Tracy arrived last night at Newport News with the rescued group.

The Campbells and their party left Sandy Hook Sunday morning and ran into stormy weather. They were prevented from entering Atlantic City harbor by the increasing storm and put out to sea to ride out the gale.

Yacht Badly Damaged.

Caught in the worst of the blow, the Bluejacket was battered heavily, turning on its side at one time and losing practically all rigging, steering gear and its auxiliary power.

The group was rescued by the Tracy only after harrowing adventures when the schooner appeared about to sink momentarily. Distress signals went unsighted by several boats, and efforts to summon aid by firing rifles and exposing flashlight signals failed. Early yesterday the Tracy sighted the battered hulk of the Bluejacket and took the passengers off.

The Bluejacket was reported abandoned.

Johnson Plans Unit To Check on Codes

language specifically disclaiming any intent to modify or evade the law.

Manufacturers' representatives insisted the code must include a specific statement that union membership was not a prerequisite to getting or holding a job. They said organized labor had brought thousands of workers into unions by telling workmen the recovery law forbade employment of any but union members. The same thing, they said, was done in the coal industry. Mr. Green said thousands of new members had been won in the automobile industry, and charters had been issued to several new locals.

May Impose Coal Code.

"There are not going to be any interminable conversations," Gen. Johnson said relative to the coal negotiations. "They'll agree or announce a disagreement. If they disagree, I shall impose a code."

"Random checks," he said, did not indicate that advancing prices were running away with the recovery program and defeating the purpose to increase general purchasing power. He disclosed that the administration has moved to restrict the unreasonable price increases.

The first public utility code, that of the American Transit Association, representing street car and bus companies, was submitted yesterday and labor provisions were reported unsatisfactory to the NRA.

Modified reemployment agreements were approved by Gen. Johnson for trucking, fiber and metal buttons, scrap iron and steel, handkerchief, cocoa and chocolate, printing-ink makers and funeral supply industries. Employers covered may put approved wage-and-hour schedules into effect and receive a Blue Eagle pending permanent code hearings.

Hearings on the proposed code for druggists yesterday showed many special considerations desired by retailers. It was predicted that this might result in the Recovery Administration brushing aside their special claims and putting them under the general retail code, which is nearing completion.

"Salt" Prefers Ship To Train in Storm

Admiral Robert L. Coontz Fails to Enjoy Trip on Limited.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 25 (AP).—During stormy weather, Rear Admiral Robert E. Coontz, retired, prefers a ship to a Pullman.

He was a passenger on the Pennsylvania Railroad's Liberty Limited, which arrived in Pittsburgh 17 hours late last night after being marooned by a rainstorm near York, Pa.

He dismissed his experience with a shrug and said:

"The next time I think I will take a ship."

Admiral Coontz is en route to Milwaukee to preside at the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Avoid Roads On Bay Shore, Motorists Told

Mountains Advised for This Week-End; Flood Losses Told.

Despite great recession of flood waters and labor by repair crews, road conditions about the Capital should send week-end vacationists toward the mountains rather than the bay shore.

Roads are passable toward the Chesapeake, but passable only, while all highways to the North, South and West are normal, according to the American Automobile Association.

Motorists are warned not to try driving through southern Maryland. It is possible to get through to most every point, the A. A. A. says, but advises against the attempt.

Patuxent Bridge Out.

Probably the storm's most permanent damage was done at the intersection of the Defense and Crain highways, where the bridge across the Patuxent was washed away.

Because of this, motorists bound to Annapolis and Bay Ridge and other Severn River points, have to drive past Laurel, on the Baltimore highway, turning right at the Shady Grove gas station, cutting across the Baltimore-Annapolis highway and striking it at Glenburnie.

The Patuxent still fumes at the Hill Bridge, just below Marlboro. However, automobiles can pass with the aid of a highway department truck's towing, if necessary.

At Bay Ridge, the beach road was washed away and the pier damaged. In fact, veteran fishermen on the Chesapeake say every wharf on the west shore was destroyed or badly damaged.

Fred S. Lincoln, of Chevy Chase, returning from Ocean City, Md., yesterday, described the Eastern Shore—the Del-Mar-Va peninsula—as torn and ruined, with crops crushed to the ground, bridges down and roads in impassable condition.

Refugees Get Aid.

He paid a tribute to the Eastern Shore hospitality to refugees who evacuated Ocean City in the teeth of the storm. Thousands were taken into homes at Berlin and had "everything done for them."

The road to Ocean City was opened late last night. The shore resort can be reached by Elkton and Dover.

Red Cross chapters are taking an active part in relief work following the hurricane, Chairman John Barton Payne said.

At Cottage City, Md., the District chapter aided in the rescue, when about 100 persons were removed from their homes. This rescue has been followed up by the Prince Georges County chapter.

An aftermath of the storm at Solomons was destructive. The steamboat wharf, weakened by the waves, though it withstood them, collapsed yesterday.

Limit on Manganese Imports Asked of U. S.

Limitation of manganese imports was asked by the American Manganese Producers Association in a petition to the President filed yesterday with Gen. Johnson.

The petition claimed that 15,000 men could be put to work in the manganese industry if the full domestic market, normally worth $30,000,000 a year, is made available to domestic ores.

Hot Wave Due While Dangers Of Flood Pass

Mercury Rockets to 90; Prostrations Result; Park Bridges Gone.

Washington had clear skies yesterday and flood dangers had passed, but high temperatures, dispersed temporarily by Wednesday's downpour and wind, reappeared and promised another hot wave.

The mercury rose to 90 degrees at 3:30 p. m., having rocketed from 68 at 5:30 a. m. It was the hottest day since August 16, when the high reading was 91.

Several prostrations were reported. Among those who required hospital treatment were Mrs. Ida M. Coe, 67, of 103 Sixth street northeast, and Ernest Ellington, 52, of 225½ H street northwest.

Collapses in Street.

Overcome in front of a downtown theater, Mrs. Coe collapsed on the sidewalk and suffered cuts above the eyes when her spectacles were shattered. She was taken to Emergency Hospital. Ellington, also a patient at Emergency, was prostrated when working at Sixteenth and Nicholson streets northwest.

Generally fair and continued warm today and tomorrow is the forecast, with gentle to moderate west winds.

Hundreds of maintenance men from the electric light and telephone companies worked yesterday to repair the heavy damage to lines. Nine District fire engines were busy throughout the day pumping water out of cellars and repairing street cave-ins.

Air Service Restored.

Airplane service was restored to normal.

Along the banks of the Potomac, hundreds of small boat owners worked to repair the damage wrought by the storm.

While Harpers Ferry reported a depth of 10.5 feet against 6.5 feet the previous day, it was stated by authorities that the rise would be felt slightly here.

A fifth death was added to the storm's toll here when Napoleon D. Williamson, 47, of Alexandria, a Potomac Electric Power Co. lineman, died in Emergency Hospital yesterday from a fractured skull received when he fell while repairing electric wires in the 2000 block of Franklin street northeast.

Winds Banish Flood Fear.

Although the Potomac remained above normal last night, flood fears here were dissipated many hours earlier by favorable west winds, which moved the churning waters downstream.

"There has been, and will be, no flood in the Potomac above Key Bridge," M. W. Hayes, chief of the Weather Bureau's river and flood division, said. "There has been a rise, but it will not be noticed in the tidal region. The Potomac is getting back to normal tidal fluctuations.

The outlook is still gloomy for users of parks, a statement issued by Frank T Gartside indicated. He is superintendent of the National Capital Parks Office.

Park Bridges Vanish.

The superintendent reported three bridle path briges and five foot bridges in Rock Creek Park and the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway had been washed away. The bridle paths on either side of Rock Creek are passable, except in the north end of the park where portions of the paths are still under water.

Sherrill drive and Beach drive, between Military road and Bingham drive, are closed while extent of damage to highway bridges is being determined and repairs made. Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway will be barred to traffic until the damaged section at Massachusetts avenue underpass is fixed.

Approximately 3,000 persons of District emergency relief rolls got cleanup jobs as a result of the storm. Scores of uprooted trees still remain where they fell and it will be days before the roads and streets are thoroughly cleared.

2 Oil Strikes in Michigan.

Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Aug. 25 (AP).—Two oil strikes Thursday in the central Michigan oil field added approximately 9,000 barrels to the already swelled daily production of 25,000 barrels and made proration of wells almost certain.

Squirrel That Bit Policeman Freed

Test Proves It Isn't Mad, So Back to Park Offender Goes.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—It isn't necessarily a sign of madness to bite a policeman.

About two weeks ago a Central Park squirrel bit a Central Park policeman on the thumb.

The squirrel was captured and sent to the health department for tests to determine whether it was mad and, therefore, poisonous.

Today the squirrel was given a clean bill of health, transported back to the park, and freed.

Storm Deaths Mount to 54, With 10 Missing

List Increased on Report From Eastern Shore; Loss In Millions.

Deaths totaled 54 last night as the battered Atlantic coastal region prepared for floods following three days of destruction by a tropical hurricane which was spreading its dying fury off Nova Scotia.

The toll was swelled by reports of four additional deaths on the Virginia Eastern Shore, where 10 persons were missing.

Property damage in the devastated area ran into millions, with accurate estimates impossible.

Typhoid Epidemic Feared.

Fear of typhoid from polluted drinking water was expressed in inundated areas.

Meanwhile, undismayed by the widespread destruction, the stricken areas set about doggedly to rebuild, restore communications, repair damaged highways and other reconstruction work.

Stories of heroism and suffering were told in first reports from the stricken counties of Accomac and Northampton, Va., which had been isolated since early Wednesday.

In Chincoteague, Wachapreague, Willis Wharf and Oyster wharves were wrecked, hundreds of boats sunk and sea food plants razed.

Rescue of 50 women and children from a clubhouse by coast guardsmen at Wallops Island was effected when the guards carried them to a grove of pine trees on the only high land available.

Fastened to Trees.

They were hoisted into the trees and fastened with ropes in an effort to make them as safe as possible.

Threatened with hunger and exhaustion, they clung to their precarious perches while the storm-driven breakers pounded through the grove. During a lull, guardsmen took them to Wisharts Point, where they were given food and medical treatment.

Haggard refugees from the storm-ravaged strip of land between Back Bay and the Atlantic, 15 miles south of Norfolk, straggled into Virginia Beach yesterday after being marooned at Little Island Coast Guard station since Wednesday.

Fifty persons were driven to the shelter of the Coast Guard station after the hurricane had wrecked their homes. They were supplied with food by airplanes.

Laurel, Del., was restored to communication after authorities, to relieve the flood in Records Lake that threatened the town, dynamited a dam.

Camp Children Safe.

Hundreds of parents in New York City breathed easier upon receipt of word that more than 120 girls and boys at a flooded camp in Godeffroy, N. Y., no longer were in danger.

An area of 10 square miles in the southwest section of Philadelphia was inundated and hundreds fled their homes. The Philadelphia airport was under water and the pilots of 20 planes were landlocked.

Resorts along the Virginia coast were the worst hit. Virginia Beach and Ocean City were virtually wrecked, but the work of rehabilitation went forward rapidly.

Passengers Safe at Norfolk.

Meanwhile, 32 passengers from the steamer City of Norfolk, which left Baltimore for Norfolk Tuesday night and ran aground on Watts Island in Chesapeake Bay, were landed safely at Norfolk yesterday.

The motorship Solarina, reported missing off the Carolinas, docked in Norfolk yesterday with its crew of 12 uninjured.

The name of another victim of the tropical hurricane which lashed the Atlantic Coast this week was added yesterday when the Clyde Mallory Line's freight steamship Osage arrived at Charleston, S. C., its flag at half mast for Joseph White, seaman, of Jacksonville, who was washed overboard as he was assisting in making a lifeboat fast.

White was lost off Cape Hatteras at 5:25 a. m. Wednesday.

Nurse Carries Mother And Infant From Fire

Easton, Md., Aug. 25 (AP).—A nurse, Martha Cobbler, of Lancaster, Pa., rescued a mother and a 2-month-old infant in a fire here.

Awakened by smoke in the apartment where all were sleeping, the nurse roused Mrs. George Collison and the boy, and then carried the baby outside through the blinding smoke. Returning, she found the mother had fainted. She then carried her outside.

Reserve Board Tells Rules for Bank Securities

Principles of Buying and Selling by Open Market Committee Bared.

(Associated Press.)

Principles governing the purchasing or selling of securities by the newly created open market committee of the Federal reserve system were published yesterday by the Federal Reserve Board.

They provide that the time, character and volume of all purchases and sales in the open market by Federal reserve banks shall be governed with a view to accommodating commerce and business and with regard to their bearing upon the general credit situation of the country.

Suggestions Required.

The committee, created by the Banking Act of 1933, consists of one member from each Federal reserve district. It is required to meet in Washington at least four times a year.

The rules decree that it is the function of the committee to submit to the board in writing recommendations concerning the open market policy of the system.

If any Federal Reserve bank decides not to participate in the recommendations approved by the board, it must notify the chairman of the committee in writing within 30 days.

Emergency Purchases.

An executive committee is authorized to execute the sales and purchases of Government securities and other obligations in open market and is composed of five members. It is empowered to allocate among participating Federal Reserve banks securities and other obligations held for their account and to adjust such allocations to enable each Federal Reserve bank to maintain a suitable reserve position.

A bank is authorized to make individual purchases in emergencies to afford relief in a situation involving specific banking institutions in its district.

The banks are permitted to engage in the purchase and sale of securities other than Government securities, but such transactions must be reported daily.

15 Still Missing At Hoopers Island

At Least 10 Crab Plants Swept Away; Bridge Swept 15 Miles.

Cambridge, Md., Aug. 25 (Spl.).—Reports from Hoopers Island that have reacher Cambridge by messenger indicate the bridges connecting the upper island with the mainland, the middle and the upper islands, and at least ten crab packing houses were swept away, while 15 persons were still unaccounted for.

The body of James Riggin, keeper of the draw in the bridge between middle and upper island, who was drowned, has been found. His nephew, Cleveland Riggin, escaped by leaving the keeper's house before it was swept away.

The bridge between upper and middle island has been found on Taylors Island, 15 miles away. Hubert Applegarth's crab house has been located on Barren Island, 3 or 4 miles away.

Vaults in the cemetery of Hoosier Church were washed up and some floated into the roadway.

Damage Is Heavy At Fort Monroe

Commander Reports By Radio of Worst Gale in History.

The following radio message from the commanding officer, Fort Monroe, Va., relative to Wednesday's storm was received Thursday by the War Department:

"Worst storm last night and this morning in the history of Fort Monroe has caused havoc here. Antiaircraft guns park demolished and antiaircraft guns damaged. Officers' beach club partly demolished and noncommissioned officers' club wiped out. Noncommissioned officers' wooden quarters swept off foundation. Some cantonment buildings occupied by Virginia National Guard slipped from foundation and partly demolished. All temporary buildings housing tractors, trucks and mobile searchlights wrecked. Magazines flooded.

"Tide poured into old fort, but dike hurriedly built kept flood out of barracks. Waterfront piers and half of railway trestle demolished. Highway bridge connecting fort to mainland badly damaged. Many trees down all over post. Post without electric current preventing operation of pumps and sewage ejection. Waves washed across and inundated the entire post. National Guard troops and large class of reserve officers have been housed in regular garrison. Expect high tide at 10 tonight, but hope that shift in storm will prevent much further damage. Hospital full of refugees, but no casualties so far.

"BRIG. GEN. JOSEPH P. TRACY,
"Commanding."

Master Code Submitted By Food Distributors

(United Press.)

America's food distributing industry submitted a master code to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration yesterday, carrying with it authority to regulate $20,000,000,000 worth of business a year.

The master code is expected to coordinate the many marketing aggreements submitted by groups in the food distributing industry, such as fruit and vegetable shippers, canners, and refrigerated warehouse groups. The code does not take up hours and wages, which will be settled later by the National Recovery Administration.

Pennsylvania Milk Group Attacks License in Court

2,000 Producers Seek an Injunction Against U. S. Price Fixing.

The Government's attempt to regulate the dairy industry of the United States, was challenged yesterday in the District Supreme Court when over 2,000 milk producers who comprise the Capital City Milk Producers' Association, Inc., of Mechanicsburg, Pa., applied for an injunction to restrain the Secretary of Agriculture from enforcing the terms of a "license" issued to the association.

Justice Daniel W. O'Donohue signed an order requiring Secretary Wallace to appear September 1 and show his reasons for issuing the "license."

Through Nugent Dodds, former Assistant Attorney General, and Nell Barkinshaw, the association contended the Act of Congress upon which Wallace "pretended" to base his regulatory authority was "unconstitutional, illegal and void."

The license, issued early this week, and placed in effect at midnight yesterday, fixed a price for both the purchase and sale of milk. It set up "arbitrary and unequal prices and arbitrary and unequal limitations * * * without regard to demand or to the natural and ordinary needs of the area in which the products are produced and marketed."

The area was described as being the "Philadelphia milk shed," and it is made up of Adams, Cumberland, Dauphin, Franklin, Lebanon, Perry and York counties, all in Pennsylvania.

The suit lists 15 legal reasons of unconstitutionality it charges. Among these are assertions that the act unlawfully delegates legislative powers to the Secretary of Agriculture; that it takes private property without due process of law; abridges the rights of the producers in their contractural relations with others, and attempts to make it a criminal offense for customers of the association to purchase its milk and cream at prices satisfactory to both.

Boy, 18, and Uncle Die For Girl Wife's Killing

McAlester, Okla., Aug. 25 (AP).—An 18-year-old farm boy, the youngest of 41 criminals who have died in Oklahoma's electric chair, was executed today with his uncle for the murder of the latter's 15-year-old bride. The boy, George Oliver, preceded his kinsman, Claude Oliver, 28, in death.

The two, southern Oklahoma farmers, paid the extreme penalty for killing Della, Claude's bride of three months, in an effort to collect $5,000 insurance on her life.

Canal Soldiers Shown to Have More Sickness

Spreading Insanity and Venereal Infection Noted in Army Reports.

Official reports of spreading insanity, a scourge of illnesses and increasing venereal afflictions among Panama Canal troops have been received by the War Department, it became known last night.

Simultaneously, Col. Weston P. Chamberlain, chief of the Army Surgeon General's professional service, who has had much experience in the zone, denied the information was "significant." The zone, he said, was a "health resort."

"To publish the fact that illnesses have increased among the troops there presents an unfair picture of conditions," he said. "The death rate there is lower than in the States, and that is what counts. It is not because of illnesses contracted in the zone that it has been necessary to discharge men. The men were suffering from these conditions before their enlistment."

981 Out of 1,000 Ill.

In a single year, War Department records showed, 981 cut of every 1,000 troopers were treated for some sort of illness.

Of these, 290 had to be invalided home, and 243 were so beyond rehabilitation they had to be discharged from the Army as human wrecks.

Alcoholism made new inroads among the soldiers; venerial diseases, which affected only 45 out of every 1,000 soldiers in the Army as a whole, surged through the zone ranks until every tenth man was infected.

It was the increase in diseases of the nervous system which grow into insanity, however, which was considered pertinent. More than 23 out of every 1,000 troopers were treated for nervous disorders. Many of these became insane—97 being left in such condition that it was necessary to return them to the States as maniacs. There was almost a 100 per cent increase in those sent home.

This toll is blamed by Col. James E. Fife, former Panama Canal Department surgeon, on the red light districts, which have got beyond control of civil authorities, and on replacement of seasoned troops with recruits mentally and physically unfit for tropical service.

General Rate Rises.

In his last annual report, it was learned at the War Department, he complained:

"Unfortunately there was an increase in the venereal rate.

"Apparently the civil government is unable to handle the prostitution problem, which is reported to go hand in hand with the liquor traffic."

Simultaneously it was disclosed in previously unpublished testimony before a congressional committee that Lieut. Col. Julian L. Schley, governor of the Zone, had told the House of Representatives that the "land on which the brothels are located is owned by the Republic of Panama. We do not know or care what is going on on it." Saloons, though, he said, are established on property owned and rented out by the United States Government because "it is a legitimite business' down there.

Brawls Found Numerous.

A greater proportion of brawls in which soldiers were injured was noted in Panama than in any other locality. Injuries from external causes sent 204 out of every 1,000 to the doctor—a record almost twice as high as that of continental United States posts.

Skin infections often were spread through the ranks, Col. Fife said, by native laundresses whom the men had to patronize because of high rates charged by the Zone laundry.

Six of the Army's 42 suicides among enlisted men occurred in the Zone.

Fifteen patients were treated for hysteria, 7 for psychoneurosis, 3 for neurothenia, 124 for mental alienation, 1 for general paralysis of the insane, 37 for dementia praecox, 40 for constitutional psychopathic conditions, 11 for mental deficiency and 8 for manic depression psychosis.

More Sickness Reported.

"The troops in Panama always have had more sickness than the ones of the United States," Surgeon General Robert U. Patterson says in a report supporting Col. Fife's findings. . . . During three of the last four years they have had more than the ones of the Philippine Islands. . . . The admission rate for all cases was higher in Panama than in either the Philippines or Hawaii, and also higher than in the United States.

"The men in Panama had more cases of venereal diseases than the ones in the Philippines and more than 30 times as many cases of malarial fever."

Simultaneously, the Navy Department largely blamed its 7.4 per cent increase in venereal cases, accounting for 24 per cent of all Navy hospitalization, to visits made to Panama by its special service squadron.

The U. S. S. Whitney reported a 40 per cent increase in the diseases among its crew after the ship had stopped at Panama and Haiti.

Marland Aspires To Governorship

Congress Member Says He is "Not Coy" About Oklahoma Honor.

Oklahoma City, Aug. 25 (AP).—E. W. Marland, Ponca City oil man and Eighth District representative in Congress, announced today he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor next year.

"I would like to be governor of Oklahoma," he said. "I will not be coy or indefinite about it."

Marland entered politics after the collapse of his vast oil fortune.

Best of America's Girl Field Hockey Players Sail in Search of Fame in European Games

Between the kilted bagpipers and the plumed bandleader are two young women who will lead their countries' field hockey teams in an international contest. Miss Anne Tounsend, captain of the all-American team, is on the left. Miss Mary Morrison, captain of the all-Scottish team, is the other athlete. Their teams will clash in Scotland soon. The photo below shows the fifteen American girls who have gone across the Atlantic to meet Europe's best "shinny" teams.

All-Stars Invade World Tournament and Are Expected to Shine.

By Ware Torrey and Janet Owen.

American hockey has gone cosmopolitan. The all-American women's field hockey team needs broader fields to conquer.

Fifteen tanned and tweed-clad girls sailed on the Europa yesterday to collect fresh laurel wreaths from Europe. The team is outward bound for the international conference, tournament, and a long tour.

Field hockey is widely played and widely followed here, but this will be the first American women's team to compete in international tournament matches. The girls are eager for Copenhagen, where the conference and tournament will be held, and eye their favorite hockey sticks with impatience. You may be able to swing a cat in a stateroom, but not a hockey stick.

Two weeks at hockey camp, just before sailing, have fused the players into a smooth-running unit. They include the eleven best players in the country; now they are a team. They come from Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston, selected at the last intersectional tournament from ranking members of the 95 major clubs of the country.

Popular in Colleges.

The team embarked in a flurry of telegrams and flowers. Hockey players all over the United States are alert to the fact that their game is the fall focus of international women's sports. They expect the team to win high placement. Since there are 288 allied clubs in addition to the city clubs, and since hockey is played in the majority of the colleges and preparatory schools of the United States, the collection of good luck messages mounted into higher mathematics.

The tournament will open on September 6 in Copenhagen under an array of flags reminiscent of the Olympic games. At least a third are expected to enter teams, of the 30 countries round the globe where women play hockey, from Ceylon to the West Indies. Tournament matches will last ten days.

The international tournament will be only the first stage of the all-American's foreign invasion. At the close of the conference they will begin a tour of six countries which will last two months and will pit them against the national teams of Germany, Holland, England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

Team Has Bright Outlook.

International hockey has been growing rapidly in the last 10 years, but never before have so many national teams met together at one time as will foregather at the I. F. W. H. A. conference. Though the assemblage will make international women's hockey history, the conference, in combination with the tour, will be even more of a landmark in American field hockey progress.

This country stands a good chance even against some of the teams of Great Britain.

Playing honors, however, if definite indications hold true, will be only one of several hockey brevets the team and its accompanying party will bring back in November.

On the ballot for the triennial election of officers of the International Federation of Women's Hockey Associations Mrs. Edward B. Krumbhaar, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., original president of the U. S. F. H. A. and now vice president of the International Federation, is the unanimous candidate for international president. Miss Anne Townsend, retired five-year president of the U. S. F. H. A., is the candidate for secretary. Their election is considered certain.

Prospect for U. S. in 1936.

With the executive leadership of the 6-year-old federation it is expected will also come the designation of this country as the locale for the next international tournament and conference. Since women play organized hockey from South Africa to Canada and touring teams are being sent abroad in steadily increasing numbers, if the plan for centering activity here three years hence meets the expected formal sanction at the conference next month, 1936 should see America's best hockey fields well draped in international colors.

Miss Townsend, for many years considered America's No. 1 player, continues her long captaincy of all national teams. The coming tour will be Miss Townsend's second foreign tour, though the first tournament tour. It marks her tenth year of captaincy. In 1923 she led the first official all-American team on its tour of the British Isles.

The other wearers of the field blue all-American tunics are Miss Virginia Bourquardez, of the New York Field Hockey Association; Miss Barbara Black, of New York City, a member of the Fairchester F. H. A.; Misses Betty Cadbury, Suzanne Cross, Barbara Stebeigh, Katherine Weiner, Virginia Vanderbeck, Frances Elliott, Geraldine Thaete, Helen Howe and Elizabeth Taussig, all of the Philadelphia F. H. A.; Miss Elizabeth Richey and Miss Frances Pierce of the Boston F. H. A., and Miss Anne Pugh, of the Baltimore F. H. A.

Seasoned and New Players.

Well proved and newly tested players combine to make the squad a strong one. Some of the players have the polish of long experience. Others have flashed into prominence recently, their particularly fine ability gaining them national posts over former all-Americans of long standing.

Miss Cadbury was center forward when Miss Townsend, as center half, captained the first all-American team on its tour in 1923, and has eight national emblems in her possession. Miss Strebeigh has been an unreplaceable halfback each year since 1928; Miss Cross, right wing since 1929. Miss Weiner, Miss Pugh and Miss Elliott have each three times won positions respectively as center forward, fullback and goal-keeper. The others are the newcomers, each marked with distinction.

Management of the team is in the hands of Miss May P. Fogg, first vice president of the U. S. F. H. A., and director of physical education for girls at the New Trier Township High School., Winnetka, Ill. Miss Fogg is one of the United States A umpires for field hockey, and will officiate for the team in its foreign matches.

Miss Gertrude Hooper, of Boston, unanimously elected president of the United States Association, and Mrs. Krumbhaar, to whom much credit for the association's rapid growth is due, will be with the party.

Comparison of Standards.

Mrs. Krumbhaar is going over partly to see the matches and partly to fulfil her duties as international vice president at the I. F. W. H. A. conference council meetings. Miss Hooper, in her capacity as president of a member association, also will take part in council meetings. Three others of the party who, with Miss Hooper, will cast the United States' four votes at the general meetings, will be Miss Townsend, Miss Cynthia Wessen, of Marion, Pa., who followed Mrs. Krumbhaar as president of the U. S. F. H. A., and Miss Mary Morgan, of Philadelphia.

According to Miss Hooper, the American team looks forward to the international tournament and tour not only as a chance for fine match play, but as an opportunity to compare the standards of American hockey with those of other countries. They intend to learn from the comparison. Team and delegates, on their return, will turn over to the players on this side of the water the benefits of their experience by demonstration games and descriptive talks.

The tour of six countries will keep the American team abroad from the close of the conference and tournament, September 10, to mid-November, when it will return for the annual sectional and national tournaments here.

Itinerary of the tour, including the playing of 22 matches, follows:

August 31, arrive at Bremen.
September 1, arrive Copenhagen, match, pretournament; 7, 9, 10, I. F. W. H. A. tournament, three matches; 11, leave for Germany; 13, match vs. Berlin at Berlin; 15, match vs. Leipzig Sports Club at Leipzig; 17, match vs. Grun-Rot Club at Magdeburg; 20, match vs. Holland at The Hague; 22, leave for England; 26, go to North Wales; 27, match vs. North Wales at Colwyn Bay; 29, return to London; 30, match vs. South of England at Worthing.

Loot Graves

Ghouls Despoiling Indian Archeological Sites, Museum Told.

Grave robbing is actually being encouraged in some parts of this country.

Archeologists at the Smithsonian Institution are receiving reports from the South and Southwest, especially, of looters of Indian graves and village sites, some of which date from long before the coming of the white man. The loot is sold to tourists and others who want a human skull for an ash tray or part of a skeleton to decorate their walls. Skulls and bones are on sale frequently at gasoline stations in the Southwest.

Neil M. Judd, curator of American archeology of the United States National Museum, says there is no law which protects these graves. Priceless archeological sites are being ruined, he points out, and the bones are of no scientific value to most of those who buy them.

Dictator Power Is Used to Halt Cuba Disorder

Nine Months Rule Aimed To Restore Peace Before Vote.

Havana, Aug. 25 (AP).—Provisional President de Cespedes began today a nine-months dictatorial rule in an effort to restore public order. Political leaders speculated on the effect of this action upon relations and economic negotiations with the United States.

The president issued a decree wiping out all vestiges of the ousted Machado regime, dissolving Congress and calling for new elections February 24. The elected officials will be installed next May 20.

All international obligations are to be observed, although other acts under the Machado regime since May 20, 1929, were declared unconstitutional under the decree.

United States Ambassador Sumner Welles had maintained it was necessary to continue constitutional forms.

De Cespedes said "it is now necessary to begin organizing electoral sources" for "the approaching elections which positively will be an expression of popular will."

"I have no ambitions," he said. "No political party nor determined group has triumphed here. It was Cuba which triumphed. Henceforth I will busy myself with the most important thing—the Cuban people's bread."

Canada Accepts Machado.

Ottawa, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Canadian government decided today that Gerardo Machado, ousted president of Cuba, will be allowed to enter the Dominion.

A cablegram setting forth this decision was sent by the government to the governor of the Bahama Islands. Machado now is in Nassau.

Ready for Flight.

Nassau, Aug. 25 (AP).—Fearing for his life, Gerardo Machado, deposed President of Cuba in exile here, tonight laid plans for a quick departure from this Bahaman capital, either by airplane or steamer.

While a seaplane floated in the harbor, ready for his use if necessary, the former Cuban chief executive awaited advices as to whether he could obtain passage on a steamer due here tomorrow en route to Bermuda and Canada.

Master Retail Code Is Hoped Of NRA Heads

Strive to Bring Druggists Into Pact Affecting Five Million.

(Associated Press.)

NRA officials last night were hopeful that all the Nation's retailers, including druggists, representing 5,000,00 employes—the largest group in any industry—could be brought under one master code, with sufficient exceptions to appease individual groups.

This hope, as expressed by NRA officials, came as a result of the retail drug code hearings yesterday, where it was found almost impossible to reconcile demands of druggists for special consideration with the code of other retail groups now nearing completion.

Need of Master Code.

Deputy Administrator A. D. Whiteside has raid the retail code, not now including the druggists, might be ready for permanent adoption late next week.

No pressure is to be brought on any retail group to force it to function under a master code, but, in NRA circles, it was said the logic of the situation indicated the need for agreement among all trade groups, since most of them compete in one way or another with some other group, and should therefore be on an even basis.

Whiteside announced that the drug retail hearing would continue today and would be based on a new code which was being whipped into shape last night to meet the objections of NRA officials.

Cut Rate Provisions.

The situation in the retail trades was crystallized with the presentation of a provision in the drug code providing that goods in drug stores could not be sold for less than 5 per cent over cost, such cost to include overhead. Contrasted to this was the code of other retail groups which provided for sale at net invoice cost plus 10 per cent partially to cover labor costs.

The drug code thus suggested a higher fixed price since overhead includes rent and fixed items besides labor. Whiteside pointed out that a drug store would be placed on an unfavorable competitive basis with other trades selling some of the goods also sold in drug stores.

Paris Moves to Save Hard-Hit Industries

Tariff Concessions Are Considered in Special Cabinet Session.

Paris, Aug. 25 (AP).—Drastic action to rescue some of France's hard-hit industries was debated today by an extraordinary ministerial conference.

Among those participating were Premier Edouard Daladier, Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour, Minister of Agriculture Henri Queuille and Minister of Commerce Louis Serre.

They considered various possible tariff concessions to aid the Calais lace industry and Belfort's stagnant wool and cotton machinery and hat trade.

Underweight Found Health Asset for Middle-Aged Man

Federal Study, Discloses Mortality Excess in Other Classes.

(Associated Press.)

The man who keeps his waistline small when he reaches middle age is the most likely to win the race for health, is the conclusion drawn from a new study of the relation of weight to physical defects just published by the United States Public Health Service.

"By the time middle age is reached, these figures indicate, it is a definite advantage to be under the average weight for height," says the report.

"A great excess of mortality among overweight persons, whatever the age, and also an excess among young adult underweight persons," are shown by the study.

The conclusions are drawn from records of more than 3,000 men from 1909 to 1928, showing the ratio of actual deaths to expected mortality according to different weight groups.

Ratio in Tuberculosis.

Tuberculosis takes by far the heaviest toll among people 25 pounds or more underweight, of all ages, the statistics show. Organic heart disease deaths among those over 45 years of age are 253 per 100,000 for persons 50 pounds or more overweight, 213 for those of more nearly normal weight and only 161 for those 25 pounds or more underweight. The heart disease death rate is also by far the highest for overweight men in the age group 30 to 44.

Deaths from appendicitis and related troubles are highest for overweight men of all ages. Among those over 45 they were 43 per 100,000 for the overweight group, 25 for the normal and 14 for the underweight. Cirrhosis of the liver caused many more deaths among overweight men 30 years of age and over than other weight groups.

Various Other Diseases.

Nephritis and Bright's Disease took the heaviest toll of men 50 pounds or more overweight of all ages. For those over 45 the ratio is 171 per 100,000 for overweight men, 123 for normal, 109 for underweights. Diabetes, likewise, takes heaviest toll among overweight men of all ages. The same applies to cerebral or brain hemorrhage and apoplexy.

Cancer death rates were practically the same for all weight groups over 45. Pneumonia deaths were greatest among those underweight over 30 years of age. Deaths from typhoid fever and influenza varied little among weight groups.

The underweight men had the advantage in the statistics of deaths from "all other causes" also, in the group aged over 45.

Child's Funeral Racket Of 2 Women Exposed

Palestine, Tex., Aug. 25 (AP).—Two women brought here from Conroe last night confessed participation in a scheme in which they obtained funds in five States ostensibly to bury the child of the younger woman.

Under questioning of child welfare workers and officers, the women said they had solicited funds in more than 100 towns in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee.

Postal Clerks Ask 'Starvation' Conditions End

Pay Increase and Shorter Hours to Be Urged at Convention.

A new battle to obtain for Federal employes the advantages that accrue to industrial labor under the NRA program was in prospect last night.

Charging some of them have been brought to "starvation" conditions by the Government's economy drive, the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks plans to demand shorter hours and more pay when the organization meets in convention at Chicago September 4.

Restoration of wages cut and establishment of a 30-hour or 5-day week will be demanded with the support of a membership of 35,000.

They hope to bring public pressure to bear upon the Government by means of publicity, contending it is unfair for the Government to require industrialists to increase pay and shorten hours of their employes while denying the benefits to Federal workers.

Federation locals throughout the country have been adopting resolutions to be placed before the convention.

Demands Made Here.

In Washington Locals 140 and 148 have demanded a five-day week and restoration of the 15 per cent pay cut that was ordered as an economy measure.

The Virginia federation also has gone on record for a five-day week.

Other locals and State federations are demanding a 30-hour week, the Indiana federation declaring "it is plainly apparent there are some substitutes at the point of starvation."

The "starvation" charge is echoed by Local No. 10 of New York City, which asserted "Federal employes in large numbers, particularly substitute postoffice clerks and substitute letter carriers, whose earnings are as low as $8 a week and who are deprived accordingly of the actual necessities of life, now are reduced to a starvation basis."

George Praises Spirit.

Sounding the battle call in a report which will be presented to the convention, Leo E. George, president, declares:

"The business depression reached its lowest depth during this two-year period, and the tide of hysteria that engulfed workers of every kind in wage reductions, unemployment and the loss of hard-earned privileges became insurmountable and took its toll from postal and other Government employes.

"In spite of adverse circumstances, however, the membership has battled against great odds to maintain intact their organization and to stave off greater inroads.

"It now appears the turning point has been reached, and the federation will be in the van of those fighting for not merely the ground that has been lost but also for the continued improvements to which postoffice clerks are entitled."

WORD has been received that James Barron and John E. Goggins, Converted Insurance Section, Veterans Administration, reached their homes in Pittsfield and Worcester, Mass., on time Monday night. Separated 30 Years.

SEPARATED nearly 30 years from his sister, a man in New York has called on us for assistance in locating her in Government service. Robert E. Clark writes they were separated in early childhood, due to unfortunate circumstances.

"I believe you can find her through your column in The Post as it is read by all Federal employes," Clark wrote.

"I feel sure she is with some Government department, possibly as editor or writer for a departmental publication. Her name was Kate Clark, but I think she was adopted and, of course, the name was changed. She is 33 years old."

We will do our utmost to locate your sister.

The foregoing letter is only one of a stack we receive daily from all parts of the country and from persons in Washington, requesting information, advice, &c. In most cases we can furnish desired data directly. When we are unable to do that in detail, we refer those letters to the proper Federal or other agency under whose jurisdiction the respective matters fall.

For example, yesterday a letter from a former Federal employe at Maxton, N. C., outlined his civil service rating, length of service and miscellaneous factors. Then he asked if those qualifications were sufficient to connect again with the Government, and proper procedure.

We were unable to answer his question authoritatively, but rushed copies of his letter to officials, who acted immediately. Thus, the North Carolinian saved time by having his request miss the flood of mail that is descending on every United States unit in Washington during these busy recovery days.

WE envy Miss Jane Elizabeth Newton, attorney, Commerce, as she prepares for an extended Western tour next week.

Miss Newton.

Miss Newton, also secretary-treasurer of the North Carolina State Society, first will visit her brother in Detroit. From there she will attend the convention of the American Bar Association at Grand Rapids.

After an inspection of the World's Fair she will visit her brother-in-law and sister at Harlowton, Mont. From there she will motor through Yellowstone National Park five days. Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Pasadena are next on her schedule. She will return to Washington via Vancouver and the Canadian Rockies about October 1.

The Lost Code.

(Apologies to "Lost Chord.")

The NRA has made a code
For all things known to man;
They'll be served quite a la mode—
But it's missed one—the electric fan.

Each day we sit with noses blue,
And work as best we can;
So here's a code to make taboo
The never-ceasing fan.

'Twill be the biggest cut at last
Since drastic cuts began;
Each clerk can have turned on full blast
Not more than seven fans.

And here's one thing a clerk may do,
If NRA accepts our plan:
If he has chills and double flu,
He may turn down one fan.

So let the north wind rage and wail,
'Twill lengthen Life's short span;
But save us from the electric gale,
And code the eternal fan.

As long as many women smoke, we suggest they be allowed to do so in Government offices where men enjoy that privilege.

Feminine employes in the office of the adjutant and inspector's department, U. S. M. C., share that masculine right. Residents Flee Oregon Forest Fires; 1 Killed Flames Rage Unchecked; City Menaced; Loss Runs to Millions.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 25 (AP).—Two roaring, uncontrolled fires, moving with explosive speed, raged in the mountains of the north coast country today and sent settlers hurrying down forest trails and roads to the safety of the sea coast.

Virgin timber worth millions of dollars was being mowed down by the flames. Fire fighters, numbering some 3,000, were powerless against the flames.

C. C. C. Youth Killed.

Frank Palmer, 21, of Marcel, Ill., a Civilian Conservation Corps worker, was crushed to death by a falling tree on the Wilson River fire front.

Gov. Meier ordered all forest areas in Clatsop, Columbia, Tillamook, Washington and Yamhill counties closed for 10 days.

Today the Trask River fire exceeded in ferocity the great Wilson River fire which for ten days has shaken off every effort of man to bring it within control.

Flames Menace City.

The flames were within 15 miles of the city of Tillamook and all settlers in the nearby mountains east of there were warned to leave at once. An easterly gale was whipping leaves, ashes and burning brands into the town.

Fire fighters on the west front were constantly in danger of their lives. The fire had become so furious the State forester feared it might be necessary to remove all fire fighters. If that is done nothing but a change of weather would prevent the flames from burning through to the coast line.

Amendments Adopted.

Previously the Senate had concurred in three minor House amendments to the beer bill, and adopted three of its own. One of the Senate amendments would prohibit the hauling of the brew on Sunday by manufacturers, wholesalers or bottlers, but would not hinder the retail sale, since it was argued that the blue law would take care of that.

The amendment was offered by Senator J. Belmont Woodson. Another, offered by Senator Moseley, of Brunswick, would allow judges to decide what was a suitable place for the sale of beer, in granting permits. The third, by Senator George W. Layman, of Craig, would allow towns of 5,000 or more population the same local taxation privileges granted to second-class cities.

Twice U. S. Officeholder, Man Has Never Been Paid

Is Still on Job, However, Hoping to Get Check Eventually.

Twice a Federal office holder, Frank P. Glass, Alabama newspaper publisher, has yet to receive a Government pay check.

In 1913 the Governor of Alabama appointed Glass to a vacancy in the Senate. He came to Washington, moved into a suite of offices in the Senate Office Building and was given the privileges of the floor of the Senate.

Three months later the Senate Elections Committee agreed that ratification of the seventeenth amendment, providing for popular election of senators, suspended the governor's appointive power. The Senate concurred, 32 to 31. Mr. Glass was ousted. His accumulated pay went to his successor.

Last month President Roosevelt appointed the publisher on the U. S. Board of Mediation when Vincent Y. Dallman declined the job. But the Senate confirmed Dallman's nomination before adjourning.

Now, according to a ruling by Comptroller General J. R. McCarl, Glass must await Senate approval before being paid.

Meanwhile, Glass is going to his office every morning, working the usual eight hours, and hoping the Senate will straighten everything out when it meets again next January.

For something like $4,500, he calculates, will be due him then, and the publishing business of recent years "hasn't been particularly good."

Big Catch!

Hagerstown In Dark As Fishline Short Circuits Electric Wires.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 25 (Spl.)—The lower end of Williamsport, near here, was in darkness last night because a boy went fishing.

Dale Taylor, 10, was fishing from the Conococheague Creek bridge when he got a bite and yanked on his line. He missed the fish and also made a mess of the electric lighting system, for the lead sinker caused the line to wrap around two wires on a pole over his head. The wires were drawn together and short circuited, causing them to break.

The fact that he was using a bamboo rod probably saved him from electrocution.

St. Louis, Aug. 25 (AP).—With a steadily rising mortality rate, the "sleeping sickness" epidemic took its thirtieth victim today and sent the list of cases to a new high of 225.

Bogus Money Ring Revealed In U. S. Prison

Search of Leavenworth Reveals Equipment; Official Suspended.

(Associated Press.)

Quick action by the secret police and the prison bureau has broken up a plot to make counterfeit money within the walls of Leavenworth Penitentiary.

Acting on information furnished by the Secret Service, prison officials made a search of the institution, and found materials and instruments used by counterfeiters.

Official Suspended.

One official, H. D. Powers, assistant psychologist of the United States Health Service, has been suspended pending additional inquiry. Some of the material involved was found in a section of the prison over which he has direct supervision.

Constant vigilance is necessary to prevent counterfeiting attempts within the prison, the Justice Department said today, because a large number of the most skillful makers of spurious currency are imprisoned there.

Probe Goes On.

"Acting upon confidential information, the warden at Leavenworth has been investigating a plot to make counterfeit currency in the institution," the department's statement said. "The investigation is still in progress and some counterfeiting materials, including waterproof fluid of various colors, have been discovered.

"No paper was found that could serve for the purpose of making spurious currency and the material was apparently discovered before any operations had begun. It is doubtful also that the outfit would have been capable of producing passable currency."

The Wise group is against the return of Dr. Weizman as president of Zionism, while the other is inclined to follow Dr. Weizman's faction and the Palestine labor group.

The split occurred during a hectic day, in which the various factions debated their respective viewpoints on development of Palestine. The congress adjourned over tomorrow, Jewish Sabbath, until 7 p. m. Sunday.

Chicago Begins New Campaign On Hoodlums

18 Public Enemies Will Be "Harassed" Off City Streets.

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP).—A renewed "campaign of harrassment" against gangsters, confidence men and hoodlums was added today to the drive of police and the courts against crime.

Municipal Judge Thomas Green issued warrants naming 18 men, the anounced intention of the warrants being to "clear the streets of hoodlums." Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker drew up the list of men.

There were three warrants for each of the 18—one charging vagrancy, another in the form of a search warrant, and the third providing for police searching of the suspect's automobile.

Those named included many alleged gangsters ranked high on previous "public enemy" lists: Murray Humphreys, successor to Al Capone; Maxie Eisen, alleged racketeer; "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn, "Three Fingered Jack" White, "Tough Tony" Capezio, Claude Maddox, Rocco Fanelli, Frank Rio, Frank "The Enforcer" Nitti, Frank Diamond, Bernard O'Donnell, Rocco de Grazio, Leo Mongoven, Sam Hunt, Fred Poncher and William Quinlan.

Also named as subjects for frequent arrest were Joseph "Yellow Kid" Weil and his ally, Fred "The Deacon" Buckminster, confidence men.

The warrants were issued under a new State law authorizing a municipal judge to take such action on an affidavit signed by a policeman. They are good for only 48 hours, but may be renewed an indefinite number of times.

C.C.C. Workers To Clear Debris

York County, Va., Plea for Help Answered By Fechner.

Three companies of Civilian Conservation Corps men will be utilized to clear away storm debris in York County, Va., and to refloat more than 50 fishing boats which were blown ashore.

Permission to use the men in this work was given yesterday by Robert Fechner, director of the corps, on request of Paul W. Crockett, Commonwealth's attorney for York County. Mr. Fechner also authorized the Army, the Park Service and the Forest Service to use additional men if it was found necessary in other storm-damaged areas. The three companies to work in York County will be taken from Colonial National Park and Richmond Battlefield Park.

The telegram from Mr. Crockett said: "Unprecedented distress in York County. Over 50 fishermen's boats grounded by hurricane. Impossible to float them without aid. Value over $200,000 lost unless floated promptly. Request Fort Harrison contingent be sent here promptly. Any wrecking material, especially large jacks and chain hoists, should be brought."

Fate Jests

Father Sees Son After 21 Years, Then Dies in Electric Chair.

Milledgeville, Ga., Aug. 25 (AP).—A father and son who had not met in 21 years were reunited today in the shadow of the electric chair at the State Prison Farm here.

Andrew McCullough, grizzled farmer, was in the death cell when his son, Roy, serving a short sentence for misdemeanor, was brought in.

"Roy?" said McCullough, as the son entered. "Yes, papa," the younger man replied as they clasped hands and their eyes dimmed with emotion. As the son was taken from the death chamber, McCullough sighed, "And it took this to bring us together again."

Soon after the elder McCullough was electrocuted for the murder of William B. Baker, former president of the Atlantic Ice & Coal Co., of Atlanta. Baker was shot to death when he went to quell a disturbance at a tenant house on his estate.

Clothing Strike Swells as 1,200 Quit in St. Louis

Men's Wear Workers in 13 Factories Join Women's Apparel Groups.

St. Louis, Aug. 25 (AP).—About 1,200 workers in men's clothing factories here went on strike for higher wages and better working conditions today, thus joining 2,000 women's apparel unionists already on a walkout.

Several other strikes are in progress in the St. Louis area, caused principally by wage differences. Individual plant strikes are affecting fur workers and employes of soap making factories.

Picketing of 13 men's clothing factories was started today after a vote by members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union. Leaders said 2,500 organized workers were expected to join the movement.

The walkout was called after employers rejected demands for union recognition, higher wages and improved working conditions. A salary minimum of $15 a week, a 25 per cent increase for operators and others working on a piece-work basis, and $45 a week for cutters was asked.

Members of the striking International Ladies' Garment Workers Union met today and rejected tentative terms for settlement of differences with plants.

All bridle paths may be used except those in the north end of Rock Creek Park, Frank T. Gartside, acting superintendent of the National Capital Parks, said. Equestrian traffic may use highway bridges where nearby bridle path bridges are washed out.

Sherrill drive and Beach drive, between Military road and Bingham drive, will remain closed until the damage to highway bridges can be repaired. The Rock Creek and Potomac parkway will also remain closed until the Massachusetts avenue underpass is repaired.

Collective Bargaining.

The collective bargaining provisions of the National Recovery Act have been clarified in a joint statement signed by General Hugh S. Johnson and Donald R. Richberg. They emphasize the fact that the terms "open shop" and "closed shop" are not found in the law and "will be erased from the dictionary of the NRA." This ultimatum will not prevent representatives of various industries from making a vigorous fight for the principle of the open shop and it will not dampen the zeal of labor leaders pledged to unionize unorganized industries. General Johnson's statement will, however, make it possible to eliminate some of the controversial provisions contained in tentative codes relating to company unions, thereby hastening decisions on other points, and deferring final settlement of the hotly contested question of labor policy.

The law itself is undoubtedly ambiguous in its references to collective bargaining, and the obscurity appears to have been intentional, for Congress was urged by representatives of both labor and capital to define methods of collective bargaining with more precision. Since it failed to respond, it seems fair to infer that it had no intention either of banning or of approving company unions or prescribing any particular form of contract. The law is primarily concerned to prevent the exercise of employer coercion to keep employees from selecting representatives of their own choosing. In view of this neutral position, the administration considers itself justified in refusing to take a position on the question of open and closed shop policies. In case of dispute, however, the NRA has agreed to conduct an investigation to determine whether the representatives of the employees have been selected without interference from the management of employing industries.

Countless disputes are certain to arise whenever company unions interfere with efforts to introduce outside organizations into an industry. Labor leaders maintain that inside unions are a sham, while employers who are foes of the open shop contend that unions affiliated with outside organizations are less truly representative than inside unions that adapt their policies to the needs of a particular industry and in that way benefit the workers. The truth is that no known method of collective bargaining is ideal. Success in reaching reasonable agreements between representatives of labor and capital depends upon the good sense and the sincerity of the principal negotiators, not upon the existence of an open or a closed shop.

Cotton Processing Tax.

An increasing number of cotton mills are said to be curtailing operations, dismissing workers, and in some cases preparing to close for lack of orders. This recession in activity is a cause of anxiety to those who have been hoping that the cotton textile industry, the first to obtain approval of a fair practice code, would set a record of sustained business improvement that would increase confidence in the recovery program. However, the current reaction is not surprising in view of the increases in labor costs under the code and the heavy processing tax that has added greatly to production outlays and forced sharp advances in sales prices.

Efforts are being directed toward securing a reduction or suspension of this processing tax and Secretary Wallace has agreed to a hearing at which the cotton mill manufacturers propose to discuss their financial problems and ask for relief. The tax, of course, is only a contributory cause of the difficulties that confront the industry, although it is an important one. Reluctance to place orders with the mills is due partly to fear of consumer resistance to higher prices, and partly to a disinclination to buy following declines in raw cotton prices. Then, too, the mills have had the benefit of an abnormally heavy placement of orders in advance of expected increases in prices. For all these reasons, a reduction in current activity seems to be a logical development. Nevertheless, the processing tax is a heavy item of cost which increases the sales prices of cheap heavy cotton goods to a disproportionately great extent. It is also a deterrent to accumulation of stocks of goods in advance of orders.

In adopting the cotton code the textile industry secured certain restrictions upon working hours and incidental limitations upon output which had been long desired but appeared to be impossible of attainment. The added costs under the code inevitably will result in losses of business by some mills and in shifts of workers; but the industry taken as a whole may profit from greater standardization of wages and working conditions. It would be a misfortune if the processing tax should be permitted to stand in the way of a sustained improvement, and Secretary Wallace ought seriously to consider the case for modification.

The Automobile Industry.

The lag in the coding of industries because of the persisting controversy over the issue of unionism is particularly regrettable in the case of the automobile industry. In securing fair wages for workers, this industry has a remarkable record of having maintained high wages under its policy of the open shop.

The automobile business was one of the first American industries to champion the cause of high wages and to call attention to the necessity of keeping purchasing power high if production was to expand in our economic system. Since March this industry has on its own initiative twice raised wages for its workers—one coming before the advent of the NRA and the other following closely on its initiation.

This has raised the hourly rates of pay for the industry in general to 93% of the wage rates for 1929. And since the cost of living has fallen about 25%, this means that in terms of real buying power the wage rates in the automobile industry now are actually higher than those prevailing in 1929.

It is true that automobile workers, like all other workers, are working less hours per week on the average than they did in 1929. But the fact remains that this industry has done much to carry out in hard times its long established economic philosophy of keeping wage rates up in general and encouraging individual efficiency to the utmost, and to sell its products at attractive prices. For professional labor organizers under these conditions to take advantage of the present emergency to create a difficulty in arranging a code satisfactory to industry as well as Government does not reflect credit on the trouble makers.

American Bar Meeting.

Unusual interest attaches to the annual meeting next week of the American Bar Association at Grand Rapids, Mich., on account of the far-reaching legislative changes during the past year. Some of the foremost lawyers of the United States will discuss the constitutionality and legal effects of the new laws relating to industry, finance, commerce, and agriculture. Exhaustive reports will be made by committees charged with the duty of studying national legislation.

The increase of crime and means of coping with it will be discussed from various angles by jurists as well as practicing lawyers.

A special committee on administrative law will submit a report dealing with the expansion of Federal administrative machinery; the distinctions between quasi-judicial and quasi-legislative powers; the permissible extent of immunity of administrative decisions from judicial review; and the possible and probable consequences of legislation enacted at the recent extra session of Congress.

A specific phase of Federal legislation, the NRA, will be reviewed by the bar association's committee on commerce. The committee has already commented upon the opportunity afforded by the National Recovery Act for business to work out an escape from the alleged harmful restrictions of the Sherman act. The preliminary report "realizes the danger of usurpation of power on the part of the administrative agencies created under the recovery program," and suggests that "the fact that the bill meets with the approval of substantial organizations of industry is indicative of the price they are willing to pay for the relaxation of the antitrust laws." The committee lays stress upon the purely temporary nature of the recovery act.

Among other subjects to be discussed in open forum by leading lawyers are the question of the selection of judges; trademark, patent, and copyright law; waiver of juries in civil and criminal cases; the question of less than unanimous jury verdicts; phases of public utility problems; bus and truck competition with railroads; Tennessee Valley legislation; the securities act; unemployment insurance; legal education; Federal taxation; bankruptcy, including legislation for relief of individuals, and proposed legislation extending bankruptcy procedure to cities and other public bodies.

Out of these discussions may result important reactions in Federal legislation, in view of the fact that so many members of Congress are members of the bar and deeply interested in the conclusions reached by their legal confreres.

Influence of the Movies.

Five years ago the Motion Picture Research Council was organized to study the social influences of screen pictures. Under the presidency of the late President John Grier Hibben of Princeton several investigations were undertaken. The chairmanship of the council has now been accepted by Dr. Abbott Lawrence Lowell, former president of Harvard University, who considers the work of the organization highly important.

The council's movie researches are of threefold nature; to study the influence of pictures on the audience, particularly on children; the effect of movies on international understanding and world peace; and consideration of the economic, financial, legal and administrative aspects of the movie industry as they affect its ability to perform its duties to society.

The first study, relating to youth, has already received much attention from the council. The broader phases of the survey will be undertaken following recommendations from Dr. Lowell. Four years of study devoted to the relations of youth and the films have resulted in reports that are just now being published. Among the facts disclosed is that among 40,000 boys and girls between 8 and 19 years of age, the girls went to the movies 46 times and the boys 57 times a year. Another check showed that every week more than 28,000,000 children go to the movies.

One of the first reports concluded by Henry James Forman expresses the opinion that the movies are as powerful an influence in American life as the whole educational system. The late Dr. Hibben observed that the movies call for careful study in regard to their influence on children, since many films conflict with the teachings and standards of the home, church and school. The council reports agree that the tremendous potential effects of movies upon the youth of the land are evident, and that it is of great importance to impress upon those who provide this entertainment a full sense of responsibility.

For Winter Needs.

The national committee in charge of mobilization for human needs, under the chairmanship of Newton D. Baker, is organizing its vitally important campaign in good time against the inevitable demands of the coming winter. This movement realizes the necessity of stimulating public understanding of the requirements of organized charity, which is being called upon for extraordinary efforts at a time when its resources are at the lowest ebb.

Private welfare work must not be allowed to lag at this time. The nation-wide effort to aid all the local fund-raising drives will be inaugurated in formal manner with an address by President Roosevelt on September 8, but the national organizations are already at work perfecting their plans to assist the local relief organizations.

Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the President, has accepted the chairmanship of the National Women's Committee of the 1933 mobilization and has just announced the names of fifty-five prominent women throughout the United States who will be responsible for the guidance of the work. Every State in the Union is represented in this list, and with such leaders to cooperate with Chairman Baker's general committee, efficient organization is assured.

Mr. Baker has urged consideration by all of the fact that no services are more needed now in the rebuilding of American citizenry than those offered by such well-established organizations as hospitals, nursing groups, child care and family relief agencies. The appropriation of $500,000,000 by Congress for aid to the States has had a tendency to slacken private initiative in connection with the care of the needy. But it will be impossible for the Relief Administration to provide for all who will need help this winter. Its functions do not extend to the financing of the established charities, which must continue to look for private support.

When Time Isn't Money.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

The same question—what people are to do with all the leisure created by the new provisions for shorter working hours—which has struck Grover Whalen, has occurred to other minds. John W. Davis uttered it not long ago, for one. Mr. Whalen uses his local authority under the Federal Administration to name a committee of qualified men to find a wise answer to the question, and he includes Mr. Davis among the number.

The subject is not a new one. It came up for general discussion in the middle twenties, long before the big boom or the panic, at the time when increased mechanical equipment for production, as a consequence of the war, was cutting down working hours. The new committee will find books, articles and institutional studies that appeared then and are still fairly applicable.

There was a gigantic surplus of leisure during the period of depression; one heard little about it, since it was leisure minus means. Now the plans for the new deal propose cutting down working hours without reducing pay. They would thus resume the process that was going on before the slump and that had already made great headway.

A great number of adults in this area are now to have gainful work, restricted to 40 hours a week. Allowing them 112 waking hours a week, we may suppose that they spend 14 of these at meals, another 14 in necessary travel and 7 in care of the person. At this fairly leisurely pace all around they will still have 37 hours a week at their own disposal, or about one-third of their waking time. This free time is to be longer by one-fifth for a multitude of people. For others in some exceptional lines it is to be doubled or more.

Some people, of course, have the knack of amusing themselves by social intercourse, games, study, physical or other exercise and systematic reading; such people present no problem, but they are probably the exception. Great numbers, at all events, want not to entertain themselves but to be entertained; the new deal might easily fill the movies with such individuals as never before. And longer programs for places that provide entertainment at low cost might become the order of the day.

But there are yet another group. Many like to work for themselves—women, to make their own garments; men, to "work around the place." The trouble with such an employment of leisure, from the point of view of general employment, is that it diminishes the amount of work that some one would otherwise be hired to do.

Should authority discourage the once-virtuous taste for doing one's own small jobs? No move of a restrictive sort seems likely at this time, nor as long as the control of leisure remains in its infancy.

Clean Up the Breeding Place.

The Once Over.

BACK FROM VACATION.

(Wherein the boss, wishing to get through with the morning dictation, encounters some difficulties with the stenographer just back from the seaside.)

Boss—Good morning, Miss Willoughby.

Stenographer (still on vacation in spirit)—Hello, big boy . . . beg pardon . . . Good morning, Mr. Waterbury.

Boss—Did you have a nice vacation?

Stenographer (yawning)—Huh?

Boss (deciding to let it drop)—I have a few letters to dictate. Are you ready?

Stenographer (pensively)—It was the loveliest place. The beach was all white sand and everything.

Boss—It's to Burton, Binton & Button, Incorporated . . .

Stenographer—I never got such a burn. My nose is still peeling.

Boss—Burton, Binton & Button, Incorporated, 2456 Main street . . .

Stenographer—I was so burned the first few days that I could hardly move. Oh, boy, did I get a baking! Nothing did me any good until I used olive oil.

Boss—It's to Burton Binton & Button, 2456 Main street, Chicago, Ill. Gentlemen . . .

Stenographer—It took me the first week to get my skin hardened. But I never tan; I always burn. My sister she gets as black as anything. We were in the water all the time. The swimming was great. They had the most wonderful college boys for lifeguards. One of them . . .

Boss—Yes. Burton, Binton & Sunburn, 2456 Lifeguard . . . No! . . . You've got me mixed up now . . . Burton, Binton & Button, 2456 Main street, Chicago, Olive Oil . . . Gentlemen . . .

Stenographer—I met a gentleman from Chicago at the hotel . . . He had a powerboat. It was like a seasled. It could go 45 miles an hour. Was you ever in a seasled, Mister Waterbury?

Boss (a little exasperated)—Have you got the address, Miss Willoughby?

Stenographer—He gave me his address. I got it home some place.

Boss—I mean the address to which this letter is going, if you don't mind.

Stenographer—I don't mind. It's Burton, Seasled & Whitesand, 3467 Main street Atlantic City, N. J. Gee, but it's awfully stuffy in here! I guess maybe it's because this is the first time I've had clothes on in two weeks.

Boss (hopelessly)—Gentlemen . . . Replying to your letter of the 16th inst. asking us with no clothes on to quote prices on awfully stuffy lots I beg to state . . .

Stenographer—A little slower, Mister Waterbury. Gee, I'm all out of practice. Just think, all I've been doin' for two weeks is diving and swimming. I won a prize for the best fancy dive. There was 20 other girls in it. They had a band and everything.

Boss (gaga)—Letter of 16th inst. . . . quote prices . . . I beg to state that we are all out of practice and have been doing nothing but diving and swimming for two weeks, which we can ship you promptly with a band and everything.

Stenographer—How do you spell that, Mr. Waterbury?

Boss—Spell what?

Stenographer—Cabanas. Those little bathing houses with cocktails and everything.

Boss (just before leaping from the window)—With one "w" and 20 girls in it.

Stenographer—New paragraph?

Boss (with a farewell shriek)—No, just the Australian crawl!

It is going to cost $1,000 to put Postmaster General Farley's name on a panel in the new postoffice at Washington. Just in view of the party economy pledge, Jim, how about postponing the job and letting the visitors guess who is Postmaster General for the period of the depression?

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen.

MY DEAR LOUISE: You finally agreed with your mother last night, doubtless for the sake of good manners, but it was easy to see you were not convinced.

And there, I think, you revealed your chief fault.

I am glad you have opinions of your own, and glad you have the spunk to defend them; but it would please me better still if you could more readily accept a new idea when the evidence proves your old one wrong.

Many materials, carelessly accumulated from many sources, are used in making our ideas. But when we have formed one and grown accustomed to it, we regard it as something flawless and sacred and not to be questioned.

That is well and good if the idea is right, but ideas usually are rubbish unless they can stand the simple test that grammarians apply to words and phrases.

The fact that an idea seems right to you may indicate nothing but the unsoundness of your judgment.

When a convicted kidnaper was sentenced to be hanged some days ago, he said in honest disapproval: "It doesn't seem right to hang a man for a thing like that."

His ideas of justice and fair play and honor made it seem a mild offense to kidnap a girl and terrorize her family—and therefore a grievous injustice to hang the man who did it.

That is a rare example of human vanity and the stubbornness of opinion. Facing the gallows for being wrong, the man still thinks his ideas right.

My brother, once finding that the dictionary did not confirm his pronunciation of a word, declared in the pride of youth that he had as much right as Webster to establish the correct standard.

Well, you have a right to your opinions. But nobody really wishes to be wrong, and the only known method of testing the rightness of an idea is to compare it with the ideas of the best people.

The test of a word is good usage—not the fact that it is commonly used, but the fact that it is used by those most competent to judge its merit.

That is the way to test your ideas. If they are shared by the people best qualified to judge their worth, cling to them and defend them. If they are rejected by such people, be humble enough and wise enough to scrap them and get yourself a new set. Love, DAD.

Comment of the Press

Waste in Washington.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

It was time some one woke up to the utterly unnecessary waste that has been going on in Washington and elsewhere in connection with the national recovery program. For instance, Gov. Miller of Wyoming complains that he received from the NRA a 644-word telegram on the New Orleans milk code and one of 1,488 words on the situation in Knoxville, Tenn. As a consequence of this silly business, Postmaster General Farley has been responsible for the issuance of an order directing the head of every Government agency to use the air mail for all but the most urgent messages.

It is such an obviously commonsense matter that one might think Government officials would do this without any orders from their superiors. Air mail now goes from Washington to San Francisco in less than 24 hours, and from Washington to Chicago in less than six hours. There are probably times when telegrams are required, but the idea of wiring 1,488 words to Wyoming sounds ridiculous. Yet the situation is not hard to understand. Thousands of bright young men in Washington have been imbued with the idea that we are now in a state comparable with that of war. So they have been running round in circles and burning up the wires on the slightest provocation.

Still, some of the enterprising young chaps might have been lured into it by that seductive slogan: "Don't write. Wire."

Why the Codes Are Hastened.

Kansas City Star.

In swift order there has been virtual agreement on such major codes as those for steel and oil and on more than a dozen trade agreements affecting lesser industries, while hearings on numerous others have been so advanced as to fall within the current month. It is evident that the administration is making a determined drive to bring the vastly greater part of American industry under the recovery act by Labor Day or before.

There is the risk of hasty agreements that could not be worked out in actual practice. But the administration seems to prefer that chance to the uncertainties that would come with delay in getting the recovery program widely into effect. The decision may be wise. The recovery setup is contingent upon concerted action and the public psychology that goes with it. If there can be the well-founded impression that recovery is going across, much of the victory will have been won. Later eventualities must be dealt with as they arise. Code modifications will be in order as they become demonstrated necessities.

The Successful Failure.

He built a lifetime of delight
In spite of pain and care.
He understood a poor man's plight
And tried his woes to share;
And kindness everywhere.

He walked his way, sometimes alone,
But often with the throng.
He never threw a needless stone
Nor did a careless wrong,
But where he traveled there was known
The sound of mirth and song.

He had a gentle, tender way
Of comforting the sad;
Carried his burdens day by day
And for his strength was glad.
When suddenly his skies turned gray
Faith for the test he had.

An ordinary man was he,
Whose task brought little fame,
Yet many like him wished to be
And proudly spoke his name.
He built a life-time fair to see
Untouched by scarlet shame.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

WHEN the fellow out in Kalamazoo picked up his paper a few mornings ago and read a statement by Secretary-Administrator Ickes that no one had suggested Mr. Emil Hurja to him, not even Mr. Hurja himself, that, in fact, Mr. Hurja had just dropped out of the sky to help him as an administrative assistant, sort of a godsend, he must have wondered—the Kalamazoo fellow—just why all of the fuss.

Bargeron.

He had undoubtedly come to associate Mr. Ickes with public works and the employment of men. Now, though, Mr. Ickes was discussing an entirely different subject and with feeling, with as much if not more feeling, indeed, than he has ever discussed the subject with which he is associated in the public mind. So vigorously did he express himself in regard to the employment of Mr. Hurja, in fact, that one here in the Nation's Capital can't escape the conclusion that although Mr. Hurja may have just dropped out of the skies, he is about as welcome to Mr. Ickes as a hornet's nest.

• • • •

THE episode would not be important, to my mind, were it not most revealing of our Secretary-Administrator. It reveals him to be a most human individual with his sensitive spots just like the rest of us. This trait has not been pronounced in the Secretary-Administrator, that is, not in the picture which we were getting of him.

Indeed, we had come to look upon him as a man apart in this whirligig, one who stood out from the rest to do the job entrusted to him, while the others turned with the spin-wheel.

My very definite conception of the picture here was of Mr. Roosevelt and his labor government on the one hand and then over there by himself, an entity in himself, Mr. Ickes.

• • • •

THIS has been the treatment of the situation, pretty much, by the Nation's press. Of the things that the Government is doing there has been some criticism and some praise, the usual medley, so to speak. But of Mr. Ickes it has been but one tune. It has all been praise.

The gentleman first attracted attention, of course, when he put the lowly post of Secretary of the Interior on the map. It has heretofore been a most effective place to bury a man. Mr. Ickes was not buried there. He sprang promptly into prominence and copped off one of the biggest jobs, if not the biggest, of the recovery program.

Then the press applauded when he announced that the $3,300,000,000 public works fund that had been intrusted to him was to be expended honestly and without regard to politics. The press is supposed to do this and invariably does applaud when an honest and nonpolitical undertaking is announced. The regularity with which the press does this is striking, in fact, in a country so steeped in politics. I think it must be the yearning of a race, the expression of a hope, like the spirituals which the colored people hum.

• • • •

THE press applauded again when Mr. Ickes announced that he would select his own personnel, that Mr. Jim Farley would do no appointing for him.

And, ah, here is the reason for Mr. Ickes' feeling about Mr. Hurja. Because Mr. Hurja didn't just drop out of the skies, as Mr. Ickes implied. Mr. Hurja's arrival in Mr. Ickes' office was the result of a deliberately charted course, a triangular movement from the office of Mr. Jim Farley to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and then to Mr. Ickes' place. Mr. Hurja is Mr. Jim Farley's patronage man.

He has been over in the R. F. C. overseeing appointments there and now he is in Mr. Ickes' office overseeing appointments there.

• • • •

AND why this should not be so is difficult for one who knows anything about political organizations to understand. Mr. Ickes was given a free rein in the setting up of the administrative boards throughout the country and he made them nonpolitical. But now the development of the public-works program has come to the point of expanding the personnel here, of expanding it up to about 2,000, I believe. For the most part they will be clerical employes—stenographers, typists, bookkeepers and the like.

To say that Mr. Jim Farley will not want a hand in the appointment of these people is not to face reality. Just as Mr. Ickes' job is the successful administration of the public-works' fund, Mr. Farley's is the organization of the party with a view to victory in 1936. It is nothing new. We have long accepted the Postmaster General as the patronage dispenser and the party build-up man. In this case Mr. Jim Farley is not only the Postmaster General but the national chairman as well. He has the files on what every man did in the campaign. The individual Cabinet members could not possibly have.

But Mr. Ickes is sensitive about the matter. He thought he would laugh at Mr. Hurja's appointment. His statement on the subject is much funnier.

Christian Science Churches.

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all of the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from John i:18: "No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined. For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called wonderful counselor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace." (Isa. ix:2,6.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Text Book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christ is the true idea voicing good, the divine message from God to men speaking to the human consciousness. The Christ is incorporeal, spiritual—yea, the divine image and likeness, dispelling the illusions of the senses; the Way, the Truth and the Life, healing the sick and casting out evils, destroying sin, disease and death." Sixty Thousand City Children Plan Exhibit

Parents to See Products Made Under Supervision of D. C. Playgrounds.

Remarkable products of craftsmanship have been fashioned by youngsters ranging from babyhood to 18 years of age, under the supervision of the District Department of Playgrounds, the past year.

Beginning Monday, proud parents of some 60,000 children, collectively speaking, will have an opportunity to see exactly what their children have accomplished.

Tea or lemonade, and cakes, made by the youngsters acquiring the knack of dispensing hospitality, will be served to parents and friends who visit the Industrial Handcrafts Exhibits. The exhibits will be on display at school and municipal playgrounds and parks throughout the city.

Children have gathered daily since early spring under the leadership of trained teachers furnished by the Department of Playgrounds. The children have been helped to develop manual skill in using tools and materials, and to learn ways of expressing play impulses.

Results to Be Shown.

Now, results made tangible are to be shown.

To many parents, the showing will constitute a complete surprise. Others already have grateful knowledge.

They learned perhaps, on the day when Jane came home with a brand new dress, and a perfect fit, that she had made herself, when all the time mother thought she was just playing in the park. And it is not improbable that she followed up this seeming miracle at a later date by bringing home some clever rompers for brother, and an embroidered handkerchief for "Mom."

Or maybe it was Junior who opened the family's eyes to what was going on, the day he brought home the sandwich basket of cool and airy design, or the rug he had made of old felt hats, surreptitiously collected from the neighbors over a period of months. He made them both himself, though his parents can hardly believe it.

Miss Sibyl Baker, gracious and imposing supervisor of District playgrounds in the Capital, has wonders to relate—and a great glass cabinet full of treasures to corroborate her story—concerning the materially valuable things the children produce with loving fingers during their daily outdoor recreation hours.

"Look at these," she glowed with pride, as she stood on tip-toe to reach the topmost shelf of the cabinet in her office in the District Building.

Carving On Display.

One was a miniature sandstone carving of a man's head, conveying a sense of Mussolini-like force. Several were baskets, ranging from "coaster" size to enormous proportions, executed in definitely artistic weave and color.

There was doll furniture. There were fine embroidered pieces. There were crocheted and knitted articles, designed for such purposes as only the mind of a child could conceive.

From a drawer Miss Baker produced a sheaf of crayon drawings. Although crude and unformed, unmistakably the work of childish hands, every one showed promise and a capacity for infinite pains.

"Recognition of achievement, we tell our parents, is the greatest force in character development," declared Miss Baker, as she laid the drawings away.

"It is necessary to the growth of all of us to know the feeling that comes with the sense of a job we have done ourselves. It gives us courage to try bigger things, adjusts us to the world around us. This we are trying to do for children through our municipal playgrounds."

Attendance on Increase.

Miss Baker observed that the last year brought a 5 per cent increase in attendance at Washington playgrounds, which she finds remarkable, in view of the fact that the increase in population in the Capital has been only 10 per cent in the last 10 years.

"We believe it is due to the fact that the last year found many people unable, for the first time, to take their children away to summer resorts, or to afford them opportunity of enjoying such commercial recreations as movies, amusement parks and so on. And, while we have no criticism to offer of such places, we believe the substitution of our playgrounds, with their simple, healthy diversions, was undoubtedly good for the children."

Mrs. Miller New Head of Daughters of America

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 25 (Spl.).—Mrs. Grace Miller, Clarksburg, was elected State councilor of the Daughters of America at the close of its two-day State convention at Elkins.

Mrs. Maud Hager, of Fairmont, was elected associate State councilor; Mrs. Callie Long, Morgantown, vice councilor; Mrs. Freda Moll, Martinsburg, associate vice councilor; Mrs. Maud Nigh, Morgantown, secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth Howell, Keyser, treasurer; Mrs. Eliza LaFayette, Huntington, conductress; Mrs. Eula Thorn, Palestine, warden; Mrs. Garnet Tomer, Parkersburg, inside sentinel, and Mrs. Margaret Pruden, St. Albans, outside sentinel.

Italian Boy Sent Letter To "Father," Who Got It

Sometimes a letter with very insufficient address will reach its destination. The postoffice in a small Italian town once received a letter from the United States addressed to "My Father," with the name of the town. The postal clerk, puzzled by the inscription, set the letter aside. A few days later an Italian peasant called at the office.

"Have you a letter from my son?" he asked.

The clerk turned the puzzling letter over to the peasant, who went away satisfied.

Campus Clothes Are Smart and Inexpensive

Can you conceive of anything more perfect for wear to classroom or stadium than the dashing shirtwaist dress in brown checked wool, pictured at the right, with its smartly tailored knapsack pockets? Although we're told the designer had the college maid in mind, surely her office sister could find ready use for a frock like this! And who couldn't meet the world with a challenging smile, if she owned a jacket-and-skirt ensemble like the one pictured below! Given a brown ribbed velvet jacket of the smart particular cut of this, worn over a heavy beige silk blouse tucked into a beige plaid skirt, it's a one-sided bet you'd have only to come and be seen, to conquer.

"Surprise Fritters" Are Appetizing, Easy to Make

What will surprise you most about these "Surprise Fritters," for which Mrs. M. J. Miller, of 908 M street northwest, provides the recipe and directions for mixing, will be how good they taste.

Take 1-3 cup milk, 2 cups canned corn, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1½ cups Washington flour (plain), 1½ teaspoonfuls baking powder, 1 teaspoon sugar and 1 cup ground beef.

Stir together milk, corn, salt, sugar, eggs and ground beef. Add sifted flour with baking powder. Beat well and drop by tablespoons into well-greased pan. Fry slowly until puffed and nicely browned. Serve hot with tomato sauce or meat gravy.

Convert Porch Swing Into Gay Studio Couch

If your upholstered porch swing is faded and no longer inviting, turn it into a studio couch. Remove the chains and set it on a couple of rough wooden props. Any colorful print will make a suitable slip cover. A box-pleated ruffle around the bottom will hide the props. Throw a few gay pillows on it and the tattered swing will be completely rejuvenated.

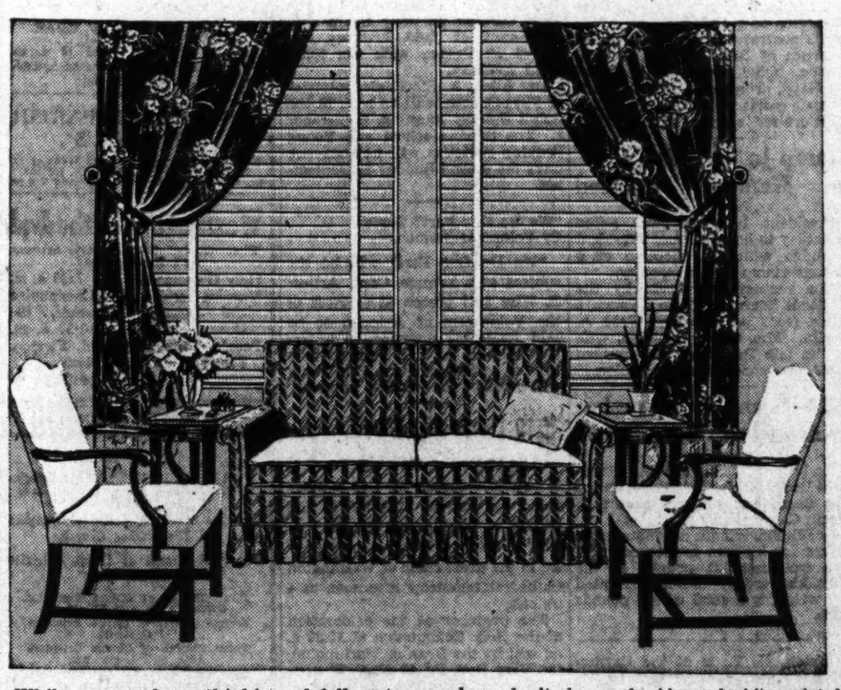
World's Smallest Park.

St. John, N. B., Aug. 25.—This city lays claim to the world's smallest park. It is known as Sullivan's Park and it measures 20 feet long and 6 feet wide. It contains two benches which overlook the city from a dizzy height at the top of Main street.

What's in Fashion?

Subdued Colors or Clear Fresh Shades Make Homes More Individual This Fall

Directed by Amos Parrish.



While you are busy thinking of fall costume colors, don't forget the colors which are going to make the background for many of these costumes—the colors in your home. And just as in costumes, there's plenty of chance to be individual about color schemes for the home.

There are two smart ways to treat your home this fall. One is with subdued, blended colors and the other with fresh, clear shades.

If you choose the first way, it's the thing to use several values of one color with contrasts of other colors. Thus you might use the beige-to-brown range with green accents.

In the sketch, for example, such a scheme might be worked out as follows: Walls, pale beige; floor, brown carpet or rug; draperies, printed linen with brown, yellow, rust and green on a natural ground; sofa, brown-tan-and-white mixture; chairs, plain yellow leather.

One Color Predominant.

Now if you prefer fresh, clear colors, the idea is to make one color predominant in large spots with sharp contrast in smaller objects.

And the sketch might work out this way: Walls, white; floor, bright deep blue; draperies, lemon, yellow; sofa, blue-and-white printed cotton; chairs, white leather.

The first scheme, you see, is restful and conservative; the second, stimulating and refreshing.

Bigger Greens.

There are few changes in the fashionable colors themselves, green, because it is restful, and rust, because it blends with wood tones and many other colors, are still high in popular fashion. Green is growing brighter and bluer and rust is rosier.

You'll see more blue this fall—a bright royal blue—used for both large surfaces and small accents.

Red? Two of them. A rich shade with a hint of blue, used for rugs or draperies. Or a light, bright, almost-Chinese red for small accents.

Paler Gold.

This fall's gold is paler and clearer with less brown in it. Yellow, too, is more lemon-y.

Brown is fashionable—a rich chocolate. Raisin is not so popular as it was, but mulberry is still a favorite.

Whether you are entirely redecorating or just brushing up here and there, we can help you.

We have a new leaflet that shows several fashionable color schemes with actual color samples, for walls, draperies, floor coverings and upholsteries.

Send for Samples.

You can follow these color suggestions exactly, if you like, or you can vary them in accordance with your own ideas.

The leaflet and samples are yours if you send us the filled-in coupon and proper inclosures.

Candlestick Makes Lamp.

Odd candlesticks may be fitted with electric sockets that clamp into the top of the stick. The addition of an inexpensive shade will give you a lamp for an extra cozy corner in your room. You will have, too, the satisfied feeling that comes with the knowledge that you have put an unemployed article to work.

Well-Intended Flattery Spoils Beautiful Child

Many Misjudge Children's Ability to Understand Adult Conversation.

Ellen was a very attractive little girl when she was two years old. She had big, wondering, blue eyes, curly yellow hair and a look of untroubled innocence that a cherub might have worn. She was the kind of baby that strangers paused to speak to, and wherever she went she was the center of admiring attention.

For a time this was all right and as it should be, and Ellen throve under the love and admiration showered upon her.

Sayings Are Quoted.

But presently people began to quote her cunning ways to each other when the child was in the room, paying no more attention to her presence than if she had been a doll or a statue.

They either forgot that she was there or else excused themselves on the grounds that she was too little to know what they meant.

But Ellen had ears and intelligence and was, quite naturally, taking it all in. At 5 years old the bewitching baby has grown spoiled and vain, and is relying on her personal charm to get her own way. Most of the charm is gone as a result of her self-consciousness, which, after all, is not due to any fault of her own.

Understand Quite Young.

No one knows when a child begins to take in what is going on around him. Some are slower than others, and it does not do to take a chance on their not understanding.

Again and again an adult will tell a story about a child under the misapprehension that the child is too young to grasp what is being said or is not listening.

But the probability is that now as always "little pitchers have big ears." It is these early impressions made before the reasoning power has developed that last longest and may color the child's whole future life and behavior.

Curtains of Oilcloth Brighten Drab Kitchen

A kitchen curtain that won't wrinkle or fade and can be washed with a few strokes of a moist cloth can be fashioned from oilcloth strips that are used for shelves. They are both serviceable and attractive.

The strips come about a foot wide, flowered in various colors and finished with a decorative border. Cut them to fit the window, finish the lower edge with a strip of the border trimmed from a left-over piece.

One housewife used matching oilcloth in the windows, on the kitchen table, behind the glass doors of her cupboard and on the seat of a high stool.

What Today Means

"Virgo."

If August 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 4 to 5:30 p. m., from 8 to 8:40 p. m. and from 10:45 to 11:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 9 a. m. and from 1 to 2:30 p. m.

You may perhaps find it difficult to keep yourself under control emotionally on this date. You will be inclined to be fidgety, nervous and not poised. Unless you are careful, you may be caught off your guard, and divulge some secret matter that may result in trouble for yourself as well as for another.

The child born on this August 26 will be a quite self-sufficient little being; he will find or create his own pleasures and will not look to others to satisfy his wants. He will be devoted to his parents. At school he will apply himself with great diligence and will stand well up in his class.

If August 26 is the date of your birth, you are no doubt a very thorough person, and unless you take care you may make yourself unpopular for that very reason. You give the impression of being letter perfect in all that you do. You strive very hard to do what is right and to avoid doing what is wrong; you are a law-abiding citizen. Yours is a rather severe attitude toward people; you expect a great deal of them and let them know it. When people fall below your standards of perfection you do not conceal your contempt. You are considered quite an unapproachable individual. You are a very neat person; if you are a woman, your house is a model of cleanliness and perfection, and if you are a man, you insist on having your office kept shipshape.

Born on August 26, you are methodical as you go about your duties. The haphazard generally proves disconcerting to you. You are a person of great dignity and reserve. Towards strangers and your associates in business, you show very little of your real self; as a matter of fact, few people know you at all. You probably have a fear of having your privacy intruded on in any way, so keep pretty much to yourself. The few friends that you really value, you have gone out and made for yourself; invariably you recoil when others make advances to you. You will never be known as a success with those of the opposite sex; there is something about your treatment of them that antagonizes. It is possible that you will never marry. If you do, you will probably find the right one late in life.

Successful people born on August 26:

Joshua C. Stoddard, inventor.
James Harlan, lawyer and senator.
Stephen P. Nash, lawyer, of New York.
Charles J. Paine, soldier and yachtsman.
John W. Philip, naval officer.
August Heckscher, capitalist.

Sure Cure

By Katherine W. Smith.

I woke this morning feeling blue,
My head was aching dreadfully.
I tried to think of something to Relieve my mental malady.

I thought of several different cures
But there was really nothing that Could help me much. But finally
I went to town and bought a hat.

It was a silly, senseless bit
Of whimsicality, somehow
Its lilting lines were very gay.
I feel a whole lot better now.

Preserve Natural Curve of Brows

Whether you shape your eyebrows yourself, or have them shaped at a beauty parlor, try to avoid the picked chicken look. Eyebrows give the face character, and their alteration will change your entire facial expression.

Study the face, its contours, good and bad features, expression, and treat you eyebrows accordingly. If your face is narrow, careful thinning of the brows will help to give the effect of width. If your face is wide, don't increase the width by allowing your eyebrows to sneak behind your ears. Heavy brows are sometimes most effective when left as nature intended them, for they are a distinguishing feature and add interest to the face.

Trimming beneath the brows is the safest method. If plucked from above, the owner often has a perpetually worried look, which is seldom becoming. Beware of plucking between the brows too much. Sometimes one falls into a state of self-hypnosis while staring at one's face in a mirror, and before long little trace of an eyebrow remains.

Eyebrows are trimmed for the purpose of accentuating their individuality. If, when plucking them, you follow the natural lines of the brows, you can't go far wrong. Nor will you make yourself unrecognizable to your friends. About the only things that are no longer standardized are our faces. If we wish to remain individuals, we don't want to destroy the factors that single us out from the crowd.

Woman Finds Strange Fish In Far North

Philadelphian and Daughter Travel Through Wilds of Canadian Rockies.

Philadelphia, Aug. 25.—Mrs. J. Norman Henry, wife of the director of public health, Philadelphia, and her daughter, Josephine Henry, have returned from an adventurous trip into a little known section of northrn British Columbia. During the expedition they gathered many botanical and entomological specimens for the Academy of Natural Sciences, of Philadelphia, and the Royal Botanical Gardens, Edinburgh, Scotland.

Mrs. Henry and her daughter left Edmonton in June. From there they went to Pouce Coupee, in the Peace River district, whence they began a journey that took them more than 500 miles on horseback through a remote part of the Canadian Rockies. Because of an unusually heavy snow fall during the winter, they encountered swollen rivers. They lost all their canned goods trying to ford one of these and had to subsist on flour, beans, bacon and rice for the balance of the trip.

Cold weather made the collecting of insect life difficult, but they returned with many fine botanical specimens, including a dwarf spreading cactus which, although common in Mexico, is seldom found so far north. The roots of all the plants were kept imbedded in their own soil.

The prize of the expedition is a fish which even the natives of the country were unable to identify. It has golden eyes, large silver scales and a small sucker-like mouth. But it is not a sucker, goldeye, whitefish or grayling. Nor is it an individual freak, as natives of the area recall having seen several fish like it taken from the same waters.

K. S. McCusker, former Dominion government cartographer, accompanied the party and mapped the country which had not been mapped before.

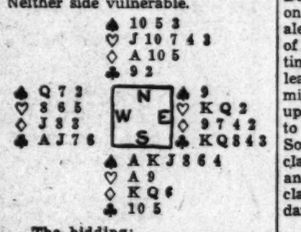
A Lost Cause?

When a good player is playing a hand at a game contract, when not vulnerable and not doubled no risk it too great for him to take in an effort to fulfill his contract. In other words, if there is a safe play for being set one or two tricks and at the same time a chance to make the hand and possibly go down four in the attempt, there is no good player who will not take the latter course.

I watched a hand played in a New York City club the other day in which the Declarer, finding himself at a game contract in spades, and also finding that the trump suit did not break, had practically no play at all to make the hand. However, this particular Declarer was a resourceful and alert player who played for every possiblity and was constantly on the lookout for ways to put things over. After a few moments hesitation he uncovered a play to make the hand, which play depended not only on two cards being in the correct hands, but also upon the opponents' making an error. In spite of all this the play still did offer some chance of success and, as a matter of fact, it actually worked in this particular instance.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♡	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

West, whose hand offered no particularly good lead, finally decided to lead through the suit bid by Dummy, and, for no particular reason except to confuse the Declarer (not thinking of his partner), he opened the heart 5. Declarer played a low heart from Dummy and topped East's Queen with the Ace in his own hand. Declarer now laid down the Ace and King of spades, and, much to his disgust, the suit did not break. Thus, at this point it seemed as though 4 tricks must be lost on the hand—that is, 2 clubs, 1 spade and 1 heart. South knew that if he gave up a heart trick, setting up the Knave-Ten in Dummy, East and West could not fail to cash their 2 club tricks.

Suddenly, however, a wild idea came into Declarer's head. This setting trick, he thought, might very well be saved in the heart suit itself. Although the Opening lead was not quite readable, it seemed as though there was a vague chance that East had the heart King. If, on a heart lead from Dummy, East could be dissuaded from going up with his heart King, placing his partner with the 9-spot, the contract would be made. With an entryless Dummy, however, East would have nothing to lose by playing the heart King whether he had the 9 located or not, so South knew it would be hopeless to lead a low diamond to the Ace in Dummy and then lead a low heart, as East's play would be indicated. South also realized, however, that if there were two entries in Dummy, one to get over to lead the heart and another one remaining there, East might very well be fooled into not going up with his heart honor.

South, therefore, knowing that his play might easily just throw a trick out of the window and cause him to go down 100 points instead of 50, boldly went ahead with his plan. After all, what is 50 as against 400 or 500, even though the chance of making the latter is rather slim? South, therefore, led a low diamond from his hand. West played low and the 10-spot was finessed in Dummy—and it held the trick! A low heart was led from Dummy and East was completely on the spot. If he had been more alert he could have had some sort of count on Declarer's hand by this time and even though his partner's lead was most irregular, he still might have known that he must go up with his heart honor. He failed to do it, however, and the 9 in the South hand held the trick. Declarer gleefully conceded one spade and two clubs to the opponents, claiming four-odd. A bold and daring move had succeeded.

Cupboard Bare Chicken Loaf Saves the Day

Old Fashioned Layer Cake Reasonably Priced by Downtown Shop.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

The family was hungry and fast getting cross. What in the world was a woman to do? This one surveyed the empty cupboard dejectedly. She had simply neglected to plan a thing. Sunday was her day for dining out, but the rain was pouring in torrents from overcast skies, and gave no signs of letting up.

All at once, an idea! How stupid not to have thought of it before! She reached for her telephone and gave an order. Within half an hour a delicious toasted chicken loaf was delivered at her door. It consisted of a round French bread loaf with over a dozen pieces of fried chicken within. Here, truly, was a dish to set before anybody. And it only cost $1.

There's a time and a place for everything, and particularly for cake. An F street bakery not only believes it, but sets about convincing you with one of the most tempting you ever saw or tasted. Or priced. It offers an old-fashioned golden layer cake with chocolate nougat icing for only 54 cents. If you're prone to think a cake's a cake for a' that, just wait 'til you've tried this one.

This same bakery is fully convinced that variety is the spice of life. Not content with mere cakes, cookies and breads, they also prepare deviled crabs which you couldn't crab about. You must have tasted the kind that seem to contain everything but crab? Well, these will surprise you. Two for 25 cents.

Odd and unusual dishes are always welcome. Have you tried Vienna schnitzel? There are two things about it you'll be sure to like—the taste and the appearance.

To prepare, fry breaded veal cutlet in egg, or if your budget forbids, dip it in flour and thin milk, then roll in cracker dust spiked with paprika. When the cutlet is done, cut into as many pieces as there are people to be served. Place a fried egg on each piece, with an anchovy on the yolk of the egg. Cut dill pickles in fan shape and place around edge of dish. Garnish with parsley.

A delicious old German sauce to serve with this may be prepared as follows: Heat tomatoes and put through collander. Place butter and chopped onions in pan and brown. Mix with tomatoes. Sugar and salt to suit taste. Thicken with flour and water if necessary.

When you're weary, worn and hot and you want a bite to eat before you wind your way homeward stop by a certain delightfully cool, roomy F street cafeteria. One of the delicious dishes you can choose consists of potato salad, sliced tongue, lettuce and tomatoes, for 25 cents.

You wouldn't think this particular kind of refreshment shop would carry ham. But it does, and what ham! You know few things are more tempting to the palate than a real home baked Smithfield ham, and that's just what this is. It's soaked overnight in cold water and cooked for 2½ hours. What magic results from such simple proceedings! Taste this ham and marvel, too.

If you're very fond of cup cakes, really homemade cup cakes, you should try some the shopper found. They are prepared in assorted flavors, chocolate, caramel, and vanilla. And they taste like cup cakes should, but seldom do. Five cents each. Next time you're downtown stop by this store and have a dish of orange ice and a chocolate cup cake. You'll agree it's a splendid suggestion.

With so many fresh fruits on the market it would be a shame not to take advantage of them now while the choice is varied and the prices low. There are many fruit salad combinations delicious for luncheon, or for the incidental game of bridge.

Waldorf salad: Combine diced apple, celery and walnut meats. Mix with salad dressing and serve with crisp lettuce.

Banana salad: Serve grapefruit and orange sections, free from membrane, on crisp watercress, with French dressing.

Summer fruit salad: Serve diced fresh pineapple or blackberries and sliced fresh peaches on crisp lettuce, with lemon cream mayonnaise, salad dressing or French dressing.

Here's a salad as pretty as its name:

Sunset Salad.

1 package lemon flavored gelatin; 1 cup warm water; 1 cup canned pineapple juice and water; 1 half teaspoonful salt; 1 cup canned crushed pineapple, drained; 1 cup grated raw carrot.

Dissolve lemon flavored gelatin in warm water. Add pineapple juice and water and salt. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in pineapple and carrot. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise. Serves six.

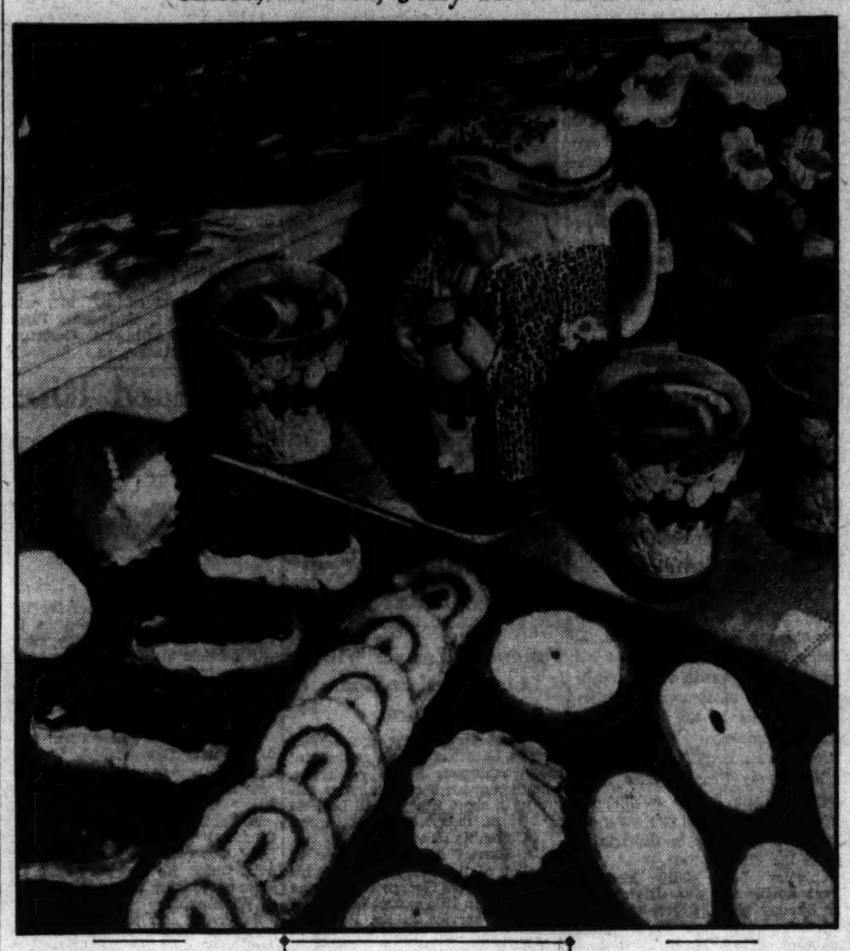
Cakes, Eclairs, Jelly Rolls and Tea



Simple Recipes Given For Jelly Rolls, Cakes, Eclair.

Set this before your guests, and hear them exclaim with delight at the picture and at the anticipations of their palates. Small cakes, chocolate eclairs, and slices of old-fashioned jelly roll are placed in alternate rows on a black-glazed tray, with iced tea gleaming in quaint pottery glasses, and more to come from the squat little Toby-inspired jug.

You can fix it all with your own hands by simply following the recipes:

For the Small Cakes.

1 2/3 cups sifted cake flour; 1½ teaspoons baking powder; 1/3 cup butter or other shortening; 1 cup sugar; 2 eggs, well beaten; ½ cup milk; 1 teaspoon lemon or vanilla extract.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, then flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add flavoring. Pour into grease cup-cake pans, filling them about two-thirds full. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees F., 20 to 25 minutes. Makes two dozen cup cakes. Frost as desired.

For the Chocolate Eclairs.

One-half cup butter or other shortening; one cup sifted flour; one cup boiling water; three eggs, unbeaten.

Melt shortening into water. Stir flour into steadily boiling water. Cook and stir constantly until mixture leaves sides of pan in smooth, compact mass. Turn into mixing bowl. Beat in one egg at a time very thoroughly. Then beat steadily until mixture looks satiny and breaks off when spoon is raised. Shape on ungreased baking sheet. Use pastry bag or two teaspoons to make rounds for cream puffs, or strips, 5-by-1 inches, for eclairs. Bake in hot oven, 450 degrees F. 20 minutes, then reduce to moderate temperature, 350 degrees F., and bake 25 minutes longer. With sharp knife make slit in one side; insert custard cream filling, as per following recipe. Eclairs may be coated with bittersweet chocolate frosting, as per recipe which follows.

Five tablespoons cake flour, three-fourths cup sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two cups scalded milk, two eggs or four yolks, slightly beaten; one teaspoon vanilla or one-half teaspoon lemon extract.

Combine flour, sugar and salt. Add a small amount of milk, stirring well. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened, stirring constantly about 10 minutes. Pour small amount of mixture over eggs, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler. Cook two minutes longer. Cool. Add flavoring. Makes enough filling for three 9-inch layers. This filling may be varied by adding chopped dates, nuts or cocoa.

Bittersweet Chocolate Frosting.

Eight squares Baker's unsweetened Chocolate, cut in pieces; one cup sugar, two-thirds cup water.

Melt chocolate in double boiler. Add sugar to water and heat to boiling point. Cool until lukewarm. Add to chocolate gradually, blending well. Cool, stirring occasionally. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layer cakes. If sweeter frosting is desired use one and one-fourth cups sugar.

Old-Fashioned Jelly Roll.

Four eggs; three-fourths cup sifted Swansdown cake flour; three-fourth teaspoon Calumet baking powder; three-fourths cup sifted sugar; one teaspoon vanilla; one-fourth teaspoon salt; one cup jelly, any flavor.

Sift flour once and measure. Combine baking powder, salt and eggs in bowl. Place over smaller bowl of hot water and beat with rotary egg beater, adding sugar gradually until mixture becomes thick and light colored. Remove bowl from hot water. Fold in flour and vanilla. Turn into pan, 15 by 10 inches, lined with greased paper. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees F., 13 minutes. Quickly cut off crisp edges of cake. Turn from pan at once on to cloth covered with confectioners' sugar. Remove paper. Spread with jelly and roll. Wrap in cloth and cool on rack.

Iced Tea, With Lemon Slices, Always Refreshing.

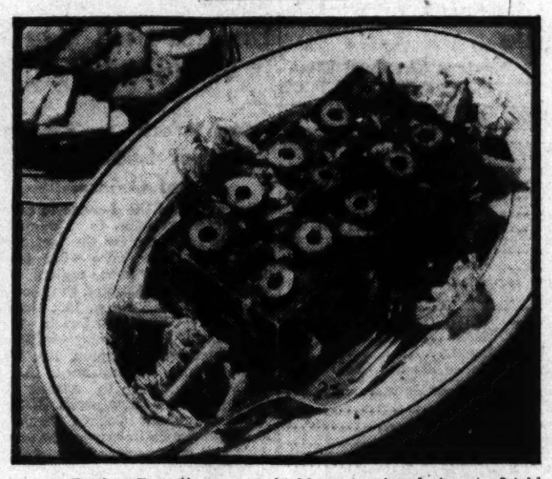
In Making Iced Tea.

Scald earthenware, china or glass teapot with boiling water. Put one rounding teaspoon tea in pot for each person to be served. Measure freshly drawn water and bring to a bubbling boil before pouring on leaves. Steep 4 to 5 minutes. Never boil tea. Pour over cracked ice and serve with lemon slices or wedges.

Air-Minded Hats.

Maybe Gen. Balbo is responsible. Or perhaps it's due to Wiley Post or the flying Mollisons. Anyway, hats are taking on wings. Not only do real birds' wings perch aloft hats, but crowns have triangular flanges and points which bear a strange resemblance to airplane wings. So, if you really don't want to fly try one of these hats, at least for its light-headed feel.

Artful Use of Olives Adds Distinctiveness to Salads



By Ann Barrett.

Olives, eaten out of hand—icy cold—are a tid-bit that millions rejoice in. Including Pianist Paderewski, who eats them every night as an introduction to his dinner.

But it's also a part of cooking lore to know when to apply olives for a bit of different flavor in appetizers, salads, sandwiches, salad dressings. And even in soups, such as tomato. And in sauces, such as Creole.

I'm sure you know what good eating chopped olives make with bacon, eggs, peanuts or peanut butter, walnuts, cream cheese, celery, green peppers, tomatoes, chicken, shellfish and salmon. In either sandwiches or salads.

Here's a dressy summer chicken loaf that combines several of these ingredients and illustrates the point.

Jellied Chicken Loaf.

For this, first soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in 1-3 cup cold water. Then dissolve it in 2 cups hot chicken stock or bouillon. Add ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, ⅛ teaspoon paprika, and a little more salt if chicken stock is not already seasoned. Let cool till mixture starts to set. Then add 2 cups diced cooked chicken, ½ cup minced celery and ½ cup minced green olives. Next, rinse out a loaf pan in cold water and arrange in the bottom 4 large stuffed olives, sliced. Over the olives place slices of hard-cooked egg. Then pour in the salad mixture and chill till firm and very cold. Unmold on watercress or lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

Thousand Island Dressing.

When it comes to dressing up a plain salad, there's nothing more popular than thousand island dressing, in which olives play an important part.

Like this: To 1 cup mayonnaise, add the following ingredients, and mix—2 tablespoons chili sauce, 1 tablespoon minced green pepper, ½ tablespoon minced pimento, 3 tablespoons minced olives, 2 tablespoons tomato catchup. This is good not only on plain green salads but on cold fish.

Creole Sauce.

For Creole sauce—that makes tip-top eating on boiled fish, chicken, lamb or omelets—you proceed like this: First cook gently ¼ cup finely sliced onion, ½ cup sliced mushrooms and ¼ cup minced green pepper in 1 tablespoon butter or olive oil. Then blend in 1 tablespoon flour and ½ section garlic minced very fine. Next stir in 2½ cups thick tomato pulp without seeds, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar and ½ teaspoon minced parsley. Cook gently about 20 minutes. Just before serving, stir in ½ cup finely chopped olives.

Send for Dessert Recipes.

Knowing what to serve in the way of easy summer desserts is another bit of cooking lore that comes in handy these days. My new recipe bulletin, "Quick and Easy Desserts," tells how to mix up nice, easy concoctions out of eggs and fruit and cream and various other ingredients that are usually on hand. Fruit whip, peach on toast, heavenly hash, ambrosia—and so on. For this bulletin, please send 6 cents in loose stamps (with self-addressed envelope and coupon below).

Sweet Potatoes and Corn Ready for Those Who Like Combination.

Corn and sweet potatoes—volumes have been written about those two vegetables—are together again on the market here.

New crop sweet potatoes have been scarce. But they are more plentiful now.

And as far as corn is concerned, it continues in an almost undiminished volume despite the storm. The ears are a little dirty. But the dirt is on the outside where it was splattered when the high winds of the big storm drove the corn stalks to the ground. Inside the shucks, the kernels are pretty and clean and more tender, too, after absorbing additional moisture.

Arrivals of pears, from the Far West, are of better quality than a week ago. The best ones of the season will be here in another week or so when shipments start coming in from Southern Oregon.

State of Washington prunes—fresh ones—will be more plentiful before the end of the week.

Peaches are going to be scarce by the end of next week. There is no foolishness to the report that crop damage was extremely heavy.

If you haven't canned peaches yet you will be saving yourself money to do so as soon as you find time. After next week the supplies will be from upper Pennsylvania and New York State. They cost more when shipped that distance.

Sun Improves Quality.

The bright sunshine of yesterday did much to improve the quality of cantaloupes. They are not very good yet, but if this weather continues they should be excellent before the middle of next week.

The same thing applies to both squash and cucumbers, although excessive moisture is not as harmful to the latter as to the former.

Good quality beans are available now. Be careful and don't buy stock that has been held since the early part of the week. The quality isn't there.

This is also true of all purchases of fresh vegetables today. Retail sales throughout the city were very slow Wednesday and not very fast Thursday. This left quite a supply of many vegetables picked before the storm. And inasmuch as there are plenty of all seasonable vegetables and fruits available that were picked Thursday, there is no reason why you must be satisfied with produce held for several days.

Chicken Less Expensive.

The softening of the market for friers, broilers and fowl mentioned Friday is more pronounced. Many shops are selling first-class friers and broilers at 23 cents a pound. Fowl sell for 20 cents a pound. Spring baking chickens are scarce and the price steady. At these prices, fried chicken may be classed as an inexpensive addition to the menu tomorrow.

Activity around the wharves Friday was at a low ebb. The usual supply of fish was absent, and only a few boats were offering watermelons. And in fairness to the buyer, she should be warned that in many cases these watermelons have been in these same boats, tied to the wharves, for several days.

According to local experts on fish matters, a substantial amount of fish will be on hand by Tuesday morning by the latest. A fair supply is expected Monday. The latter will reach your retail shops on Tuesday.

Oyster Prospects Bright.

It won't be long now until oyster season. Fishermen who have been trying their luck for trout and hardheads in South River, off Shady Side, Md., complain that they have been pulling up oysters on their line—nice, fat, juicy oysters. The fishermen evidently didn't believe the adage about eating oysters in the summer months and enjoyed their incidental catch quite as much as the trouth they caught.

Volumes could be written about the nutritive value of oysters. And every volume true. The first oysters on the market may be high-priced, but they are worth a trial in the first week of September, when they are new among local foodstuffs.

Apple Recipe Takes Prize; Colorful Dish

Apple Floating Island Uses Meringue and Cherry to Please Eye.

The apple season is just around the corner and Washington housewives are preparing for a bountiful harvest by looking up apple recipes of one kind or another.

The prize-winning recipe this week, which captures the weekly $5 given for the best recipe received by the Food Editor of The Post, is for "Apple Floating Island," a dish not unknown to most homemakers.

Mrs. Knipe, who submits this recipe, calls attention to "the lovely color combination of yellow, white, brown and red on the finished dessert, which makes it very attractive to serve for company dinner."

It is easy to concur with Mrs. Knipe in this conclusion, judging from the wording of the prize recipe.

Apple Floating Island.

Boil together two cupfuls of water and three-fourths cupful of sugar for ten minutes. Wash, pare and core six large, firm apples. Place in sirup, cover tightly and cook gently until apples are tender. Carefully remove apples and place in shallow baking dish. Let sirup boil until reduced and thickened. Pour over apples and allow to cool. Meanwhile make a meringue by beating two egg-whites stiff and adding six tablespoons of granulated sugar. Pile meringue on top of apples and bake at 300 F. until a delicate brown in color. With the egg-yolks make a custard sauce. Beat egg-yolks and one cupful milk, two tabelspoons of sugar, mixed with one-half teaspoon flour and pinch salt. Cook until mixture coats the spoon. Remove and cool. Pour over apples, dot each apple with cherry and serve.

Virginian Offers Corn Relish Recipe

With the arrival of cool fall days, you'll be looking about for something new in appetizing hot dishes. Mrs. C. W. Clever, of 125 North Oak street, Clarendon, Va., urges "corn relish," as especially nice to serve with hot meats. It may be prepared now and canned for future need.

Her recipe and directions call for one medium-sized head of cabbage, well chopped and sprinkled with salt. Let it stand for an hour. Boil 12 small ears of corn, and cut the corn from the cob. Add to the corn 4 large onions and 1 large red pepper, all well chopped together. Now stir in the chopped cabbage, and cover the mixture with a dressing made of 1½ quarts of vinegar, 1 tablespoon of mustard, and 2 teaspoons of salt, 1 tablespoon celery seed, and 1 cup sugar.

Let the mixture come to a boil. Add 1 tablespoon flour and 1 teaspoon of tumeric, mixed together. Cook a few minutes. Seal in glass jars.

Hats Copy Dresses.

Some of the smart new hats take their cue from dresses, copying dress materials. Ribbed and corded silks, such as bengaline and faille, are especially nice for a first fall hat, since they are so light in weight.

Sewer System Bonds Studied For Arlington

State Asks Fuller Details of Proposal as Board Ponders Question.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Behind closed doors yesterday the Arlington County Board discussed for three hours plans for a bond issue to cover a loan from the Public Works Administration for a county-wide sewer system.

Chairman Harry A. Fellows refused to give any information on the board's action until this morning, when he said a press conference will be held.

It was learned, however, that the State committee has demanded more complete details of the proposal.

The Arlington County NRA Unit perfected its organization at a meeting held last night at the courthouse with the election of Harry A. Fellows as general in command. Other officers are Mrs. Catherine M. Rogers, lieutenant general; George M. Yeatman, John M. Stewart and Emery N. Hosmer, colonels.

Majors: Mrs. Katherine Cohen, Dr. Blanche Tabor, Mrs. Elsie English, Lyman N. Kelley, Dr. George B. Gould, David R. Collins, Thomas R. Crack, G. Frank Allwine, Fletcher Kemp, Arthur C. Stickley 2d and A. M. Dawson.

Captains: James E. Chinn, Boardman Munson, Miss Margaret Troxell, Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson and Arthur E. Wilson.

Members of Board of Inquiry: Lyman M. Kelley, chairman; Hugh J. McGrath, Charles W. Smith, G. Frank Allwine, Mrs. Marion Hagan, Mrs. Nellie Burrows and Mrs. George Cost.

Walter U. Varney was appointed by Gen. Fellows as his aid-de-camp.

The officers will meet again next Wednesday night at the courthouse when the workers' committee will be appointed.

To all persons seeking indorsement for employment in the Federal service, Charles R. Fenwick, chairman of the Arlington County Democratic committee gave out the following statement last night:

"It is believed that a definite system should be adopted with regard to the issuance of letters of indorsement for political purposes, and, in an endeavor to carry out such a system, the chairman of the Democratic committee will not give letters of political indorsement unless the applicant first obtains a letter from one of the committemen or committeewomen from his or her precinct certifying the applicant to be a Democrat.

"Since at the present time, Ballston, Carne and Cherrydale have no representation on the committee, the chairman will accept letters of indorsement from the chairman or vice chairman of the Men's Democratic Club, the Woman's Democratic Club or Young Democratic Club of the respective precincts, this procedure to continue until the vacancies on the Democratic committee shall have been filled."

Sun Beams on Second Day Of Warrenton Horse Show

Track Improved By Wind, Classes Are Run Off On Schedule.

Warrenton, Va., Aug. 25 (Spl.).—Sunshine greeted the second day of the Warrenton Horse Show today. The ring, heavy yesterday, was much improved after a night of light winds and this morning's sun.

The early morning classes were run off on schedule. Peach Brothers, of Upperville, won most of the morning awards, getting three blues in the half-bred, 2 and 3-year-old and in the saddle class for thoroughbreds and took a red in addition.

Benton Stables, of Middleburg, took the blue in the thoroughbred 2-year class. Mrs. J. H. Whitney, of Llangollen, scored her first blue of the day with Loro in the thoroughbred 3-year-olds. Queen of Sheba, owned and shown by Stanley Green 2d, of Leesburg, took first in both pony classes, winning the saddle class and the jumping class. Today's two wins give this animal 102 blue ribbons in two years' ring competition.

The Gentleman Wins.

Miss Mary Keogh, of Minevah, Pa., won with The Gentleman in half-bred hunters, while Meander Farms annexed the first award in the lightweight green hunters with Pillsbury.

Manley Carter, of Orange, won the middle and heavyweight green hunter class with Floris Mart. Miss Julia B. Whitting's Quick Silver took the blue in the touch-and-go class, with Mrs. R. C. Winmills' Sin Condago second, and E. M. Woolf's Chatter Play third.

Cathode Ray, Miss Elizabeth Nesbit's thoroughbred chestnut gelding by Omar Khayyam, took the blue in light-weight class for thoroughbred, with Miss Nesbit in the saddle.

In the Corinthian class, Miss Nesbit on the same horse, took a bad tumble but with Cathode Ray standing by, remounted, and rode from the ring to reenter a minute later on her Sportsman and took fourth place. The blue ribbon in this class went to Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Gray Knight, Dr. Allen, of Winchester, placed with Red Tape, and E. M. Woolf took the third with Chatter Play.

Washington Man Wins.

The grand champion saddle horse went to Jack Lightning, owned by Vernon G. Owen, of Washington, and ridden by Miss Marjorie Lee McLeod, of Bethesda. George Calvert, jr., of Warrenton, pressed the Owen horse hard but there was no doubt in the judges' mind and the Washingtonian took the award.

Dr. L. M. Allen scored in the middle and heavyweight hunter class with Red Tape after a contest with Mrs. Whitney's Bon Diable. The touch-and-go class puzzled the judges so that they had to call for several jump-offs before they could make the awards.

Society from the East and throughout the State thronged the grand stand and runways.

Summaries for today were:

Virginia House Approves Beer Vote Measure

Also Kills Special Fee Provision As Senate Wrangles on Tax.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 25 (AP). Waiving routine, the Virginia House of Delegates today sped through the passage of the Page bill abolishing special prohibition fees, and, stamped overwhelming approval on the State prohibition repeal referendum bill, while the Senate wrangled over beer, and finally tied itself in a knot left for Monday.

Delegate Vivian Page, of Norfolk, patron of the fee bill, said it eliminates all special fees in prohibition cases with an estimated saving of $200,000 annually.

The bill was passed, 86 to 5.

Speed Referendum Vote.

No time was lost by the House in passing the Staples-Eggleston bill, calling for a referendum on State prohibition October 3, and setting up a commission to study liquor control plans and report its findings to the regular session in January.

The bill was passed by the Senate yesterday with a unanimous vote. Today the House added an 89-to-1 affirmative vote, and the bill was sent to the governor for his signature. The executive has also the eighteenth amendment referendum bill.

Senate in Battle.

The first real battle of the Senate in special session came over the beer excise tax schedule. As the bill was passed by the House the State excise tax was fixed at $3.10 per barrel, and 1 cent a bottle.

Ready with arguments for a "5-cent glass of beer," Senators Aubrey G. Weaver, of Front Royal; William M. Tuck, of Halifax, and H. H. Watson, of Crewe, quickly sent up an amendment cutting the excise tax to $1.50 per barrel and ½-cent per bottle, and asserted all of the objectives of legalizing 3.2 beer were not for revenue.

After debate, with the amendment's opposition led by Senator Henry T. Wickham, of Hanover, the Senate voted 20 to 20 on the question of reducing the barrel tax, and Lieut. Gov. James H. Price broke the tie with a verbal vote for the lower rate.

Vote Tied Again.

Again the upper house tied its vote on cutting the bottle tax. This time the vote was 19 to 19, and again the lieutenant governor with a verbal vote from the rostrum broke the deadlock giving the lower tax proponents a majority.

But, the real tangle followed. Senator A. P. Fuller, of Richmond City, followed the action reducing the excise tax with an effort to make up the reduction by providing higher retail tax rate minimums for the localities.

The local retail tax schedule as passed by the House put the maximums at $20 in the cities and $10 in the counties. Senator Fuller sought to raise the first class city maximum to $100, and the maximum for second class cities, towns and counties to $50.

Phones Still "Out" In Flooded Virginia

Crews Work to Restore Lines of 4,642 Homes and Offices.

Some idea of the damage to communication systems in Tidewater Virginia is shown by the fact that last night there were 4,642 telephones still "out" in the region.

These were distributed as follows: Norfolk, 2,772; Berkley, 195; Ocean View, 357; Virginia Beach, 125; Portsmouth, 815; Suffolk, 82; Newport News, 422; Hampton, 298; Lee Hall, 59, and Williamsburg, 18.

Also, according to Arthur I. Brown, of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., of Virginia, 18 long-distance lines from the areas were still out of order last night.

Yesterday emergency crews got 1,714 telephones back in service. Two hundred men are working on the task. In several buildings in Norfolk, private switchboards which were located in flooded first floors, will have to be completely replaced.

Sheriff Weeps Selling Famed Fair Grounds

Rockville Bank, Holder of Notes, Buys Scene of 80-Year Gayety.

Historic old Rockville Fair Grounds went under the hammer yesterday.

Intimately woven with the history of Montgomery County, Md., for the past 80 years, the sale of the fair grounds brought tears even to the eyes of the sheriff, Richard H. Lansdale, who, like most Montgomery Countians, had looked forward all of his life to Fair Day.

The grounds were purchased by the Montgomery County National Bank, of Rockville, holder of the $17,000 in notes and costs which precipitated the sale. The price was $19,500, subject to a prior mortgage of $8,000, held by the Sandy Spring (Md.) Savings Institution.

About 20 persons attended the sale, but the only bid was that of the bank. It is understood the bank will open negotiations with the Montgomery County Board of Education for sale of the site to the county for an educational center.

Wasp Buzz Brings Crash; 3 Injured

Arm of Woman, Unstung, Broken as Husband Loses Car Control.

A wasp yesterday caused injuries to three persons and the destruction of an automobile on the Seventh Street Pike near Olney, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Manning, of Hyattsville, Md., and their guest, Mason Terry, of Annapolis, were on their way to Olney Inn for dinner. The wasp alighted on Mrs. Manning. In attempting to brush it off, Manning, who was driving, lost control of the car.

The car crashed into a tree, went into a ditch, and struck a culvert. The three were taken to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring, Md. All had lacerations on the scalp and face and bruises and Mrs. Manning's arm was broken. The wasp did not sting her.

Flashes From the Radio Dial

CEREMONIES in connection with the observance of the fifth anniversary of the signing of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact will be broadcast tonight. Jay Pierrepont Moffat, chief of the division of western European affairs, of the State Department, and Count Pierre de Leusse, attache of the French Embassy, will speak.

It will be under the auspices of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. The broadcast will originate in Washington and will be heard here through Station WRC at 7:15 o'clock.

If there are not further weather interruptions the finals of the Women's National Tennis Championship will be broadcast from Forest Hill, Long Island, this afternoon. For this event Station WRC has reserved the period from 1:30 until 4:30 o'clock.

Wilfred Glenn, basso of the Revelers, upon being told that a minister in whose church he once sang was critically ill at a camp in the New Hampshire mountains, this week canceled all engagements and made a long hike into the hills just because the aged pastor asked to hear him sing.

Lee Sims and Illomay Bailey, the piano-vocal pair, spent two days recently looking for, of all things, a coal mine. A specialist had told Illomay that three hours there would cure her chest ailment—which, strangely enough, it is said to have done. He also recommended the treatment for whooping cough.

IF listeners could see as well as hear B. A. Rolfe, who will be on the job as usual tonight conducting the Saturday Night Dancing Party, they would get a real laugh. He is a show in himself. An especially amusing thing about Rolfe is the way he puts up first two fingers, then perhaps three fingers to indicate different tempos.

It reminded us of before the prohibition days how a customer would indicate to the bartender the amount of whisky he desired by the number of fingers he would put up. The first time we ever saw B. A. broadcast he had in the studio in New York no less a celebrity than Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Co., and then head of the National Broadcasting Co. as well. Some persons are nervous in the presence of the big boss, but not Rolfe. He put on exactly the same performance as he always does.

It may have been our imagination but it seemed to us that Mr. Young was keeping time to the music with his eyebrows. He enjoyed the show so thoroughly that when it was intimated that he might leave the studio before the broadcast ended, a privilege rarely extended, Mr. Young shook his head vigorously and remained in the front row with the rest of the spectators the full hour.

Rolfe is a short, portly, jolly little man, aged 53, and in the very prime of his life. He began as a trumpet player and was a boy soloist with Sousa. He played the trumpet in Vincent Lopez' orchestra. Soon he had his own orchestra at the Palais d'Or Restaurant, in New York. Then came a tremendous radio splash, after which it was rumored that Rolfe was "through." He was only a little tired.

Following a trip to Hawaii he returned to the networks this year with renewed "wim, wigor and witality," as Frank Moulan used to say, and is now, in the opinion of many, doing the best work of his career.

PROGRAM managers are everlastingly trying to get a well-balanced program. However, it has remained for your Uncle Sam to put on one which seems to be 100 per cent perfect. It will be the appearance tonight in the NRA drive first, of John D. Rockefeller, jr. (who represents capital with a capital "C") and almost immediately following, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor (who represents labor with a large "L").

It will be Mr. Rockefeller's first microphonic appearance and he will speak from his summer home in Maine. WJSV will carry the address here at 8 p. m. Mr. Green will be heard over WRC at 10 p. m.

Miss Whitney, assistant to K. H. Berkeley, local manager of N. B. C., is able to distinguish the difference over the air between a personal broadcast and one broadcast from a record, the fancy name of which is an electrical transcription. This is frequently a most difficult thing to do.

Henry Bellows, Washington vice president of Columbia, once remarked to this writer: "I can always tell a record broadcast when I hear it."

"How?" we asked.

"Because it is usually so much better," he replied.

Again attention is called to the Saturday morning broadcast of the National Capital Orchestra, sponsored by the Parents Clubs of Washington (WRC, 10:30 o'clock). As Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, used to say when he introduced the lamented Victor Herbert: "Here's a young fellow trying to make good. Give him a hand!"

CURTIS DALL, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, is definitely named as chairman of the Amalgamated Broadcasting System Board (Ed Wynn's chain) by Radio Business, a broadcasting publication, which made its appearance in New York yesterday. This has been currently reported from time to time in the Capital.

H. P. Brown, editor of the new magazine, goes on to say that other members of the Roosevelt family are interested in the new third chain—and in Ed Wynn personally.

"With time largely sold over the two older chains for the coming season, it is argued that this is the psychological time to introduce a third chain," Mr. Brown writes. "Ed Wynn has been fostering this pet for nearly a year and now it is ready to fly. Stations affiliated with the new chain have asked for more power.

"WDEL, Wilmington, wants an increase from 250 to 500 watts. WPEN, Philadelphia, has asked permission to double its power and for unlimited time."

WOL, the Washington outlet for the Ed Wynn chain, has asked for no increase recently, but in the past has made several requests for more power. These have always been denied by the commission.

"Greater Show Week" will have its radio presentation here through WRC at 8 o'clock tonight. Roxy and David W. Griffith will review notable pictures of the past.

Flash! The Gaekwar of Baroda will be heard here through WRC at 5:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. No, not from India, but from the roof of a Chicago hotel.

THE local "Crime Must Go" series is reported to have brought in 4,000 letters. William Stanley, assistant to the Attorney General, and Maj. E. W. Brown, Chief of Police, have been among the speakers. Secretary of War Dern will be the next one Monday.

U. S. to Check Buying as Pigs Glut Markets

80-Pound Limit Ordered Until Tuesday in Plan to Help Farmers.

(Associated Press.)

The headlong rush of pigs to market yesterday as a result of the hog emergency campaign caused the Farm Administration to cry "Halt" temporarily on those weighing less than 80 pounds.

The Government is paying a premium on pigs weighing between 25 and 100 pounds and on farrowing sows in its campaign to reduce the pork supply and increase prices. The farmers' enthusiastic response caused unexpected heavy shipments of the smaller weight porkers which swamped handling facilities at the first six markets opened, St. Paul, Sioux City, St. Joseph, Omaha, Kansas City and Chicago.

The administration announced it would not pay premiums on any pigs weighing less than 80 pounds shipped to these six markets beginning today, until next Tuesday. It was added that the purchases after Tuesday would be only in "stated numbers" and after shippers had obtained permission to carry the pigs to market.

Must Obtain Permission.

In addition, beginning today permission to ship to any market authorized to buy the pigs and sows must be obtained before the hogs are sent on their way.

Farrowing sows were not affected by the order, farm officials said, since the ratio of smaller weight pigs shipped to the sows sent to market was about 30 to 1.

The Farm Administration said arrangements are being worked out to take care of hogs already en route to market. Permission for shipments may be obtained through commission agencies, authorized processing points and processors and county agents. Officials said the "exact machinery" for the shipping permits would be announced shortly.

Authorized Processors.

An authorized processor is a packer or meat handler who has contracted with the Government to buy the hogs at premium prices, paying a bonus of $4 for the farrowing sows and a price ranging from $6 to $9.50 per hundred pounds for the pigs.

Other markets where processors are authorized to buy premium hogs are Mitchell and Sioux Falls, S. Dak., Ottumwa and Mason City, Iowa, and Milwaukee.

The emergency hog reduction campaign contemplates taking a maximum of 4,000,000 pigs and 1,000,000 sows soon to farrow off the market before October 1.

200,000 Pigs Purchased.

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP).—Pigs, more than 200,000 of them, today glutted a dozen live-stock markets, the farmers' reply to the Secretary of Agriculture's plan to reduce the supply of pork.

Daily receipts at six principal Midwest markets were the heaviest since the pig sale started Wednesday.

In several yards all previous records for daily receipts were broken, despite appeals to farmers to withhold swine until packers could process supplies already on hand. The Government ordered shipments suspended until next Tuesday and decided to stop purchasing.

Kansas City and South St. Paul markets were literally swamped with new shipments and both markets had large carryovers from the previous day. Packers announced at Kansas City they would operate 24 hours daily, but even then would be unable to process the present supply before Monday night.

60,000 Pigs in St. Paul.

The St. Paul yards were overrun with 60,000 pigs in addition to a carryover of 17,000 from yesterday, more than could be handled before the middle of next week, officials said. A similar condition obtained at Kansas City, where approximately 68,000 head were on hand.

Receipts at Sioux City and Omaha also broke all previous records. Traffic around the Sioux City yards was so greatly congested that extra policemen were required to untangle it. In addition to the heavy truck receipts, more than 70 carloads, including many double-deckers, arrived.

Total receipts at the six principal yards for Wednesday, the opening day of the Government purchasing plan, were 29,500 pigs and 800 sows; yesterday, 95,000 pigs and 1,500 sows; today, 203,000 pigs and 2,400 sows.

Plan Additional Yards.

Officials of the live-stock yards here explained that the Government proposed to open several additional yards soon, some of them Monday.

When the yards reopen for the corn-hog program buying all shippers will be required to obtain permits from commission men before making deliveries.

One reason given for the exceptionally heavy receipts at Kansas City, St. Paul, Omaha and Sioux City was their proximity to drought-stricken areas and the desire of the farmers to preserve feed. Comparatively few producers, who normally ship to Chicago, were hard-pressed to dispose of their pigs, and the price differential set by Mr. Wallace between Chicago and other centers made it more profitable to direct pigs to the nearest markets.

Ruination Is Seen In Tobacco Prices

North and South Carolina Farmers Ask Wallace To Take Action.

Chadbourn, N. C., Aug. 25 (AP).—A petition signed by several hundred tobacco farmers in this section was sent to President Roosevelt and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today saying that "unless something is done about low prices," ruination will result.

General dissatisfaction has been expressed in many quarters by tobacco growers in the South Carolina and border belt.

The petition reads:

"We, the undersigned tobacco farmers, do hereby petition the President and Secretary of Agriculture to make special efforts to remedy the low price of tobacco in the entire South Carolina belt. The prices on tobacco sales today show a reduction of about one-third the prices paid during the first week of sales.

"Unless something is done to improve the prices in the South Carolina belt, the farmers will not be able to continue as these prices will result in ruination to tobacco growers."

Storm's Apple Crop Damage Is $3,000,000

Shenandoah-Potomac Loss in Four States Nearby Put at 25 Per Cent.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 25 (Spl.).—Damage to the commercial apple crop of the famed Shenandoah-Potomac-Cumberland belt of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Pennsylvania as a result of Wednesday's 40-mile gale and accompanying rain was conservatively estimated by a group of local fruit growers today at $3,000,000 after reports of the devastation over the entire belt had been received here.

In Frederick and Clarke Counties more than 100,000 bushels of apples were on the ground, beaten from the trees by the high wind. Two growers with large orchard holdings reported that they alone had 20,000 and 15,000 bushels respectively, blown from the trees.

From Biglerville, Pa., and Adams and Franklin Counties of that State came reports of 75 per cent damage to the crop. In nearby Maryland and West Virginia the crop damage was reported as high as 50 per cent.

Growers said they based their figure of $3,000,000 loss on the assumption that the crop over the entire district suffered but a 25 per cent damage, a recent crop estimate putting the 1933 apple crop of the Shenandoah-Potomac-Cumberland belt at 4,500,000 barrels. If one fourth of the crop was destroyed, it would amount to 1,000,000 barrels, conservatively valued at $3 per barrel.

On the heels of the reports of extensive damage to the apple crop came estimate of the corn crop damage in this section of Virginia. In Clarke, Frederick, Warren, Loudoun and Shenandoah counties, farmers declared, the crop has been cut 50 per cent by the storm, or about 250,000 bushels, conservatively valued at $250,000.

Secondary Rail Bonds Move Up In Big Trading

Many Other Loans Fail to Share in Rise as Sales Total $12,953,000.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Secondary railroad issues and some foreign obligations recorded substantial gains in today's active bond market, but many other listed loans showed little enthusiasm for the advance.

While there was a pronounced expansion of volume—sales totaled $12,953,000, par value, against $8,262,000 yesterday—the average for 60 domestic corporate issues closed unchanged at 80.5.

The principal gainers of the session apparently were influenced by the same factors which spurred stocks to a resumption of their upward swing.

Bullish News Stimulates.

Both low-priced corporation liens and bonds of the gold-standard countries seemingly responded to the inflationary psychology revived by the announcement that the Federal Reserve System had broadened its credit-forcing activities through drastically increased open-market purchases of Government securities.

Among the carriers, advances of 1 to 2 or more points were recorded by some loans of Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corp., St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Erie, Missouri Pacific, Nickel Plate and Northern Pacific. Prime investment issues of Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central and others were generally easier.

Utility and Industrial Gains.

Utility and industrial gains of 1 to around 3 points were shown by maturities of American & Foreign Power, Colon Oil, International Telephone, Dodge Bros., Paramount Publix, Studebaker and U. S. Rubber. Higher-priced loans in these groups did little.

United States Government bonds were firm but quiet. Among the best of the foreign issues were French 7½s, up 5¼; French 7s, up 2; Bordeaux City 6s, up 4; three Dutch East Indies 6s, up 2⅛ to 4¾; Australian 4½s, up 1; Italian 7s, up 1⅛; Lyons City 6s, up 4½; Marseille City 6s, up 5, and British 5½—heaviest traded of all foreign and domestic issues—up to 2⅞.

Stocks Rise 3 Points While Sales Climb Up

All Groups Participate in Gains of $1 to $6 in Turnover of 3,328,410 Shares; Woodin's "Noninflation" Statement Proves Tonic.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Speculative markets lifted several notches today, drawing their courage chiefly from the Central Banking System's more vigorous efforts to facilitate credit expansion.

Stocks were strong and enjoyed the busiest session since July 25, just a month, making an average gain of 3.2 on the basis of the Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite. Wheat, up around 3 cents net, reflected the London agreement, general strength of commodities and the atmosphere of inflation which was abroad in Wall Stret.

Secretary Woodin's assertion that he was "not inflating" was published here around midafternoon. Stocks thereafter reached their best prices. The assumption was that the Treasury head referred specifically to currency debasement, since addition of $35,000,000 of Government securities to the Federal Reserve's portfolio and reports that this rate of buying might be increased convinced the financial community that Washington was far from abandoning its intentions of spurring and supporting business improvement and commodity prices.

Gains in All Directions.

Stocks improved in all directions. Net gains of 1 to 6 points embraced a wide variety of leaders, particularly companies which have a direct interest in staples.

Rails gave a good account of themselves. Among industrials, metals, chemicals and "farm-belt" shares stood out. Allied Chemical was up 6; National Steel, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Smelting, U. S. Smelting, DuPont, Kennecott, Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck ranged from more than a point to around 4 points higher, while Case was 5½ to the good at the close.

Johns-Manville, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, New York Central, Illinois Central, Western Union, Southern Pacific, American Can, American Tobacco "B" and National Steel profited to the extent of 2 to more than 4. Sales totaled 3,328,410 shares.

Inflationary impulses evident in markets were also at work among foreign exchanges. The American dollar reacted sharply, dipping under .70 cents in terms of the gold French franc. No doubt speculators seized what they regarded as an opportunity. At any rate, our currency had its worst spill in some weeks.

Business Trends Favorable.

Business and trade trends were largely favorable. Oil prices are being advanced in anticipation of the code's operation, although it was pointed out that new quotations are under the level at which it should sell to conform to the gasoline price ratio provided by the agreement.

The boost in the rseerve banks' open market operations pulled excess reserves of the commercial banks to around $600,000,000, a record high. To what extent this credit reservoir will be tapped is a matter for time to divulge.

Dun & Bradstreet reports continued gains in distribution of goods and says the "bugaboo of sharply built-up inventories, which has caused so much discussion, has turned out to be a phantom, as merchandise has been moving uninterruptedly into consumer channels." Summer reactions are most noticeable in industry, as distinguished from retail and wholesale lines. Store sales run well above a year ago, although it is recalled that volume a year ago was very dull.

Denton Canning Factory Sold.

Denton, Md., Aug. 25 (Spl.).—The canning industry in this locality has been changed by the purchase of the Hardcastle factory by F. B. Nuttle, who began operations last week.

Curb Advances Sharply During Huge Turnover

Oils, Metals and Specialties Lead Upward Trek in 449,000-Share Day.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—The curb market followed the big board into a higher trading area today. The advance, which was almost a steady trek upward, was accompanied by expanding volume and the market closed around the best levels of the day.

Oils, metals and specialties were conspicuous firm spots and utilities, after lagging in the early dealings, finished the day with substantial gains. Alcohols were firm.

Aluminum Co. of America and Safety Car Heating gained 4 and 7 points, respectively, on small transfers, while General Tire & Rubber rose 6 in more active dealings.

Advances of 2 to around 3 points were shown in American Gas & Electric, Columbia Gas & Electric preferred, Glen Alden Coal, Gulf Oil, Hiram Walker, Humble Oil, New Jersey Zinc, Newmont, Parker Rustproof and A. C. Smith. Lesser gains were recorded in Electric Bond & Share, Swift International, Standard Oil of Indiana and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams.

Transfers increased to 449,000 shares, compared with 265,000 yesterday.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—American Home Products Co. today declared a monthly dividend of 20 cents, payable October 2 to stock of record September 14. The rate was previously 25 cents. The dividend was reduced, directors said, to conserve assets and because the company planned "an important acquisition within the next 30 to 60 days."

The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange is informed that destruction of coffee in Brazil for the month ending August 15 was 1,634,-000 bags, or double the monthly volume destroyed since the surplus-reduction program was started more than two years ago. The 1933-34 Brazilian crop is estimated at 29,-000,000 bags compared with probable world consumption during that period of 15,000,000 bags.

New financing scheduled for next week by 56 municipalities totals $10,436,811, says the Daily Bond Buyer. The largest item is a $3,000,-000 issue of Los Angeles flood-control district bonds, scheduled for awards on Monday.

Continental Can Co. announces that it will begin its first national advertising campaign early in September. Newspapers will be used. The amount of the appropriation was not disclosed.

The Edison Electric Institute reports that sales of household electric refrigerators in July broke all previous records for that month, totaling 128,217 units, compared with 28,785 in July, 1932, and 101,974 in the like month of 1931.

Sugar consumption in the United States during July amounted to 572,873 long tons, raw sugar value, against 633,847 tons in the same period last year, according to B. W. Dyer & Co., sugar economists. Consumption for the first seven months of the year was estimated at 3,438,-064 tons, an increase of 2.6 per cent over the like period of 1932.

Exchange to Close September 2.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—The board of managers of the New York Cotton Exchange voted today to close the exchange on Saturday, September 2, preceding Labor Day.

Foreign Markets.

London—The stock exchange had a cheerful session today. Kaffirs were strong on the rising price of gold and oil shares were in demand owing to the advancing continental crude petroleum rates. Home rails improved further, while international issues followed the upward movement in Wall street. German bonds were reactionary. The market closed firm.

Paris—Under influence of the Wall street market, prices on the bourse recovered most of their recent losses. Rentes and a few other issues were weak exceptions due to selling. The closing was firm.

Berlin—Owing to the revival of public interest prices on the boerse firmed and registered general improvement. The market closed sustained.

Mystery Worms Plague Farmers

Unidentified Pests Are Swarming on Trees in West Virginia.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 25 (Spl.).—A mysterious plague of worms is reported from Marshall County and so far entomologists have been unable to classify them.

The worms, which have descended in great swarms on plants and trees, are ugly, yellow and black, many-legged, loathesome and repulsive in appearance. They devour leaves and shrubbery fast, entire trees of large size being absolutely denuded within a short time. They are about three inches in length.

Specimens have been captured and submitted to agricultural agents, but they have never before seen such a worm. Entomologists have been consulted in efforts to determine the species and obtain an insecticide to fight the pest, but to no avail. Specimens have been forwarded to the zoology departments of the State university and to Federal entomologists in Washington.

The Texaco and Tidewater Cos. announced 10-cent increases.

60 Cents in Texas Field.

The Carter Oil Co. and the Humble Oil & Refining Co., subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, posted the advance effective in areas where they purchase, setting prices at from 40 to 79 cents a barrel, according to gravity of the product. A flat price of 60 cents was set for the prolific east Texas field.

Many other companies were expected to acquiesce in the upward movement, however.

Sinclair-Prairie Oil Marketing Co. was a leader in the price increases of June and July which the Standard failed to follow and which later were abandoned.

Others Delay Action.

Others of the independent group indicated they were in no haste at this time, since the Government has approved the oil code, providing for a form of price fixing. Information reaching the Midcontinent today was that a price slightly above $1 a barrel will be in effect prior to September 15. The code is effective September 2.

R. L. Blaffer, president of Humble, said that company "looks forward with confidence to the balancing of production of crude to consumptive demand under the oil code recently signed by President Roosevelt."

"Undoubtedly," Mr. Blaffer's statement continued, "this general feeling has been instrumental in bringing about the recent increases in the wholesale prices of products."

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 25 (AP).—The Sun Oil Co. today announced a 25-cent increase in the price of crude oil in Texas and Oklahoma, topping the 10-cent advance posted by a number of other companies. The new schedule called for 75-cent oil in East Texas.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Texas Co. today announced that it was meeting the advance of 10 cents a barrel in crude oil prices made by the Carter and Humble companies.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Glass—Reports from leading manufacturing centers indicate that output is continuing on a large scale. It is said that plate and window glass are moving in better volume as a result of larger orders from the building trades.

Jewelry—Orders placed in August so far have maintained the improvement noted in June and July, accordign to dealers. The buying has been well distributed over medium-priced novelties and costlier lines.

Apparel—Manufacturers of woolen garments for both men and women are said to be expecting a larger distribution this fall than at any time in the last three years.

Hides—The spot market has become more active, although recent sales were negotiated at unchanged prices.

Steel—Sales of structural material during the past week were estimated at 5,000 tons for the entire country. This was said to be the smallest weekly total since the middle of June.

Tin—Prices have firmed as a result of recent advances in sterling in the foreign exchange market. Dealers report the market dull, however.

Big Plot Here Leased to Auto Parking Firm

Detroit Concern Acquires Fourth Place In City In Ambitious Plans.

Another advance in its ambitious automobile parking service program for Washington was completed yesterday by Service Parking Ground, Inc., Detroit, by its lease from the Evening Star Newspaper Co. of 17,700 square feet of property at the southwest corner of Tenth and E streets northwest.

The property, which has been leased for a period of five years, at an unreported consideration, will be cleared for parking purposes by the corporation, which has been in business for 17 years and is operating more than 50 parking lots throughout the country. Negotiations incidental to the transaction were conducted by the H. G. Smithy Co.

This is the fourth acquisition of parking space in the city by the Detroit corporation. It has secured the site of the former Builders Exchange Building at 719-21 Thirteenth street northwest; a large lot next to the former City Club Building on G street northwest, and another on L street northwest, in the rear of Dulin & Martin Co.'s store.

Ambitious Plans Cited.

The corporation, which has 35 parking lots in operation in the City of Detroit, contemplates a plan of similar magnitude for Washington. Max Goldberg is president of the corporation, which has paid an annual rental of $50,000 for one of the best situated lots in Detroit. The corporation placed in operation the first downtown parking lot in Detroit in 1917.

M. H. Rittenhouse, sales agent in the District for the National Cash Register Co., leaves today for Dayton, Ohio, to attend the company's Home-Coming convention, August 28 to 30, inclusive.

"This is to be one of the most important conventions the National Cash Register Co. has called in years," said Mr. Rittenhouse before leaving the city. "Recognizing the important changes in retail merchandising conditions, employe restrictions and operating ethics which are taking place as a result of new conditions, the company executives and selling men expect to learn much that will help them solve the problems confronting merchants today.

Local Conditions Studied.

"Naturally, National Cash Register Co. sales agents, having studied local retailing conditions in their respective territories, will be able to contribute much data in this connection. When I return home I will have information of great interest to every merchant."

Mr. Rittenhouse revealed the fact that his cash register sales for the summer thus far bear out the fact that the company is enjoying greatly increased factory activity.

"Merchants in the District of Columbia," he said, "recognize that now is the time to modernize their stores, establish better control over their sales and over the money they take in, as well as to protect the good will of their customers. It is this attitude, in fact, that partially accounts for our big increase in cash register sales during July and August."

Mr. Rittenhouse is accompanied to Dayton by his sales staff. More than 800 selling men are expected to attend the convention.

Steele Wins Golf Trophy.

Lundeen V. Steele, Washington Loan & Trust Co., was victor in the annual golf tournament of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, just concluded, thereby becoming possessor of the W. W. Spaid Trophy for one year.

The final match in this year's tournament was played on the All-View Club course at Ellicott City, between Mr. Steele and George P. Grau, jr., American Security & Trust Co. In winning the Spaid Trophy for the first time, Mr. Steele defeated, among his opponents, W. B. Robinson, Washington Mechanics Savings Bank, twice winner of the trophy, and George P. Grau, jr., winner in 1930 and runner-up in this year's tournament.

Mr. Steele is a member of the Army and Navy Country Club and while playing on this couse two weeks made a 185-yard hole in one. He is a son of Col. Harry L. Steele, United States Army.

Wins Qualifying Prize.

The prize for the lowest score made in the 18 holes of qualifying play was won by W. B. Robinson.

Trading continues light on Washington Stock Exchange, two transactions being reported yesterday. There was a single $1,000 sale of Washington Railway & Electric 4s bonds at 89½, last sale price. Six shares of Mergenthaler Linotype moved at 26, previous trading figure.

G. Bowie Chipman, manager of the Washington office of Laidlaw & Co., has returned from a month's vacation at his summer home at Castine, Me.

All Grains Rise Sharply; Hold Most of Gains

Wheat Closes Firm, 3 Cents Above Thursday's Price In Lively Exchange.

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP).—Grains swung sharply upward today in response to a variety of bullish news.

Recurring talk of a Governmental policy on inflation, announcement that the London wheat conference had reached an agreement and strength of securities all combined to register sharply higher opening prices on all grains. Despite some reactions, caused by profit-taking, and a lack of vigorous support, the gains were fairly well maintained. Extreme advances of 4 cents a bushel in wheat and 3 cents in corn were pared down slightly by recessions.

Wheat closed firm and 2⅞ to 3½ cents above yesterday's finish; corn also firm and 1¾ to 2⅜ higher; oats 1 to 1⅜ up, and provisions 5 to 15 cents advanced.

Credit Expansion Aids Rise.

Expansion of credit through the Federal Reserve System and a sharp decline in the dollar in London were coupled with the agreement of the London wheat conference to inspire most of the buying. Trading at the opening was brisk as prices were rapidly whisked upward, but the peak levels of the day were reached in the first 10 minutes, and thereafter the market eased down to its usual snail-like pace for the remainder of the session.

Traders were uncertain as to the interpretation of the London agreement and preferred to await official announcement of the pact before making any statements. However, the trade generally agreed that little export business in United States wheat could develop at the agreed upon price of 89 cents a bushel since United States wheat is already selling at a premium over Liverpool.

Subsidized Plan Seen.

The great British market would have to pass Chicago prices by approximately 18 cents a bushel before export business can be profitably done. It was generally felt that the United States' quota of 45,000,000 bushels would probably have to be filled with Government subsidized wheat from the Pacific Coast, which would be shipped to the Orient.

Corn was affected by the strength in wheat, and a peak advance of almost 3 cents a bushel was recorded. Cash interests, commission houses and professionals competed for offerings during the early upswing, but after the demand was satisfied a moderate reaction set in. No change in the critical crop conditions prevailing was noted. Iowa advices told of some corn already past danger from frost, but also said chaffy corn would be plentiful. Some late-planted corn is only in the roasting stage.

Oats averaged higher with wheat and corn, but rye was somewhat unsettled.

Provisions were in better demand because of the inflation talk and sold higher with grains and stocks.

Coffee Bean Tests Obtain Valued Oil

Brazilian Government May Use Swedish Extracting Methods.

Stockholm, Aug. 25 (AP).—The Brazilian goverment is reported here to be considering use of a patented Swedish method by which various oils and chemicals, the inventor says, can be extracted from the coffee bean.

Eperiments with the new method, which involves cooking and dry distillation, were started as far back as 1913, but it is only recently that certain technical difficulties have been overcome, it is explained by Dr. E. L. Rinman, the inventor.

The method can be made especially valuable, Dr. Rinman believes, when coffee is at a low price. Some of the acohols and hydrocarbons that can be extracted, he claims, can be used to strengthen gasoline or can themselves be used as fuel.

Reserve Banks Must Report Foreign Transactions to Board

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve Board yesterday issued regulations requiring Federal Reserve banks to submit formally at once full information concerning all existing relationships and transactions heretofore entered into with foreign banks.

The new rules promulgated under the 1933 banking act prohibited officers or other representatives of any Federal Reserve bank from conducting negotiations of any kind with officers or representatives of foreign banks or bankers, except those pursuant to agreements previously approved by the board.

The board reserved the right to have its own agents present at any discussions or transactions it authorized and required that a full written report of such transactions and agreements be submitted in writing.

The board also issued regulations governing affiliates. Henceforth they must obtain permits from the board before being allowed to vote stock of Federal Reserve member banks. Statements of condition required from the holding company affiliates were ordered to be more detailed. Where two member banks in the same Federal Reserve district are affiliates of the same holding company only one of the institutions may participate in the nomination or election of directors of the Federal Reserve Bank, under the new rules.

Capetown, Aug. 25 (AP).—Experts estimate that 10,000,000 sheep, or about 20 per cent of the Union of South Africa's flocks, have perished in the drought which has gripped parts of the Orange Free State and northwestern Cape territory for many months. Hundreds of farmers are bankrupt.

U. S. Dollar Sinks On Foreign Marts

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—The American dollar slumped in foreign exchange transactions today under a renewal of inflationary psychology coincident with the announcement that the Federal Reserve System had substantially increased its credit expansion program.

The British pound sterling jumped 6½ cents to a cable rate of $4.61½. French francs spurted .18 of a cent to 5.61½ cents and Dutch guilders soared nearly 2 cents to 57.93 cents. Swiss francs were up about 1 cent at 27.80 cents, and Belgian belgas advanced to 20 cents for a gain of .64 of a cent. Strength was also shown by German marks, the Scandinavians, Canadian dollars and Far Eastern exchanges.

The United States dollar, after opening weakly today, 18.30 francs (5.46 cents to the francs), slipped in early Bourse dealings to 18.22 francs (5.49 cents) as a selling movement continued.

The opening and closing rate yesterday was 18.42 francs (5.42 cents).

Cotton Soars $3 Per Bale in Active Market

Selling Wave Easily Cared for in Bullish Mart; Dec. Nets 9.88.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Cotton soared about $3 a bale today on buying stimulated by the expansion in the open market operations of the Federal Reserve Banks and the further weakening of the dollar.

The market reacted moderately from the peak levels, but offerings were easily absorbed. After selling off from 9.89 to 9.74 for December, prices firmed up again, with that delivery closing at 9.87. The general market closed very steady at net advances of 22 to 28 points.

Initial prices were 17 to 31 points higher on general buying in response to the relatively firm cables, the advance in sterling and renewed inflation talk. Demand broadened on the showing of the grain market, which advanced sharply following news of an agreement at the London wheat conference.

Gains of 26 to 30 Points.

After rising 26 to 30 points, the market slipped off a little, but continued weakness of the dollar and the renewed firmness of wheat in the later trading brought in additional buying in the final hour. Closing quotations were within a few points of the best for the day.

A fair amount of hedge selling was reported, but it was said to be mostly in small lots of from 100 to 200 bales.

Exports today, 7,205, making 419,253 so far this season. Port receipts, 49,771. U. S. port stocks, 2,955,526.

Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 25 (A.P.).—(U. S. Dept. Agric.).—Heavily increased sales include quite a wide selection of domestic wools. Medium quality wools of fleece and finer territory lines are strong, prices showing an upward tendency. Strictly combings 58s, ⅝ blood wools bring mostly 36-37 cents in the grease for Ohio and similar lines and 70-73 cents scoured basis for territory wools. Strictly combing 48s, 50s, ¼ blood fleeces tend slightly higher, sales ranging 35-37 cents in the grease, mostly 36 cents.

The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: "Evidently impressed with the statistical soundness of wool, manufacturers have been buying more freely this past week and sales appear to have been rather above the average in volume. Medium grades are scarce and slightly dearer. All qualities firm.

"Reports from the goods centers indicate good business on dress goods and cloakings and also on tropical worsted lines, in spite of some uncertainties in the NRA codes.

"Foreign markets are more active than usual at this point in the season. Higher prices are predicted for the opening of the new Australian season Monday at Sydney.

"Mohair is in moderate movement and very firm. Price tendencies for the staple are against the buyer, as with other miscellaneous fibers."

Pledge to Plow Cotton Under BeingObserved

U. S. Aids to Destroy Part of Crops if Farmers Fail to Do So.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Reports pouring into the New Orleans Cotton Exchange today indicated that the Southern farmer has lived up to the last letter of his pledge to retire approximately 10,000,000 acres of cotton lands from production.

Throughout the South, Government agents were prepared to go into fields today where farmers have failed to comply with their contracts by the time the deadline is reached at midnight and themselves destroy the farmers' cotton in compliance with his Government contract.

Indications were, however, that Federal agents supervising the crop destruction would have to deal with only a few scattered cases of recalcitrant growers who failed to keep their pledges.

Destruction in Louisiana.

Dean J. G. Lee, of the Louisiana College of Agriculture, and State supervisor of the cotton reduction drive, announced that planters in this State had lived up to their agreements 100 per cent, plowing under 460,000 acres of growing cotton.

Leading brokerage houses, with branches throughout the cotton belt, reecived reports that the destruction of the crop had been complete up to the amount contracted, despite early uncertainty, when it was found that legal technicalities stood in the way of cash Government benefits to farmers.

The cotton plowed up represented approximately 25 per cent of a planting which on July 1 stood 11.6 per cent higher than the 1932 planting. Despite the reduction, a proposal to instigate an immediate and still deeper cut in this season's crop has been agitated, but has met no success.

Indicated total yield according to the Government reports will be 12,-914,000 bales, a figure considered still too high, and plans are now being formulated to achieve an even greater reduction in 1934 plantings. Commissioners of agriculture and U. S. senators of cotton growing States will meet in Birmingham, Ala., on August 28 to discuss those plans.

Weevil Damage Grows.

Final yield of the 1933 planting, however, may be cut considerably by natural forces at work on the crop. During the past three weeks reports of weevil infestation in numerous sections of Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama and other cotton States have been increasing. In some sections the damage has been estimated to equal that of 1923, when the loss was great. Reports were that the infestation of fields seemed to be spreading.

Considerable shedding has also been reported, and trade predictions are that continued rainy weather will add to the effect of these forces operating to cut the crop.

In return for their wholehearted cooperation with the revolutionary Government program to lift prices, Southern farmers have already begun to receive the $150,000,000 benefit payments for that portion of the crop destroyed. In addition, on an estimate of a 10,000,000 bale crop, rising prices since March 1 have potentially enriched Southern planters by approximately $200,000,000, despite recent market setbacks.

Electric Output Rises 15 Per Cent

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Electric power output last week was 15.2 per cent ahead of the same period last year, a slight improvement over the previous week's gain of 15 per cent. There was also a fair rise in the outturn as compared with the week of August 12.

Production for the week, as reported by the Edison Electric Institute, was 1,650,205,000 kilowatt hours, against 1,627,339,000 in the preceding week and 1,431,910,000 in the like period last year. The increase over the previous week reversed a downward trend in effect since the latter part of July.

Southern States and the Pacific Coast contributed most to the improvement. The former had a gain of 18.1 per cent over a year ago, compared with 17.4 per cent in the previous week, while the Pacific area rose 9.3 per cent, compared with 6.8 per cent the week before. New England was up 18.7 per cent, against 19.4; Middle Atlantic up 9.9, against 10.8, and central industrial up 20.4, against 21.

RKO's "Greater Show Season" Opens—Reviews of the Week's New Theater Bills

Play of Stage Provides Star Her Best Role

Katharine Hepburn A Hit; Earle, Palace and Fox Have Ace Programs.

"MORNING GLORY." — RKO-Radio picturization of a play by Zoe Akins, adapted to the screen by Howard J. Green, starring Katharine Hepburn, with Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Adolphe Menjou, Mary Duncan and C. Aubrey Smith. Directed by Lowell Sherman. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

What promises to be one of the cinema's most brilliant careers can no longer be clouded by the suspicion that its genesis has been the outgrowth of happy accidents of casting and uncontrolled elements of coincidence.

In "Morning Glory" it is perhaps more conclusively demonstrated than it has been at any time heretofore that Katharine Hepburn, in addition to being a young woman of extraordinary screen personality, is a thoughtful, sensitive and versatile artiste.

"Morning Glory" is unlike anything in which she has appeared before the cameras and microphones. It is a drama of the theater and its people, fashioned in the pungent style of Zoe Akins, a playwright of distinguished facility in blending scenes of utmost delicacy with episodes of sheer audacity without at any time threatening either the smartness or the credibility of her works or the authenticity of her characters.

The Spark of Genius.

Miss Hepburn, in "Morning Glory," is cast as an ambitious young tyro, clinging tenaciously to the fringes of the theater, in whose breast flickers a tiny spark of genius. At least she thinks so. She thinks so, in fact, with a steadfastness that only after repeated failure and managerial rebuffs momentarily gives way to doubt of her own inherent greatness.

It is, of course, a trite situation that causes the star of a popular author's new play to walk out on opening night and thus afford Eva Lovelace the opportunity of which she has always dreamed, but so effectually does Miss Hepburn color this hoary device with the warm tones of her own rich endowments and so deftly does she gloss over the line of demarcation between personality and technique that its commonplaceness is completely lost.

There is throughout her performance an extremely shrewd blending of almost arrogant self-esteem and naivete, of mere eccentricity and flowering genius. It finds its highest point of effectiveness at a gay theatrical party which she attends unbidden with a fine old actor who has consistently befriended her, when, famished and destitute of the most meager necessities of life, she becomes a little tipsy on a sip or two of champagne. Here the genius of the artiste takes on a quality of some conviction by her uninvited delivery of Hamlet's soliloquy and the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet"—the latter rather better done than the former, but both well beyond amateur capabilities.

Excellent Support.

While all this seems to imply that the whole worth of the picture centers in the uncommonly fine work of its star, that is only partially true. Through the background of the tale is woven a thread of romance that affords congenial and well-executed tasks for Adolphe Menjou, as the theatrical producer; C. Aubrey Smith, as a kindly veteran actor; Mary Duncan, as a temperamental star, and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., who does rather a handsome job as the young playwright who is first to appreciate and finally love the quaint little actress from Vermont who brings Broadway to her feet.

The supplementary attractions of the inaugural bill of RKO-Keith's "Greater Show Season" are varied and, in the main, of a high order.

A Clark and McCullough comedy, "Kickin' the Crown Around," reveals occasional intervals of sanity; an Aesop Fable animated cartoon, "Fresh Ham," is, to say the least, resourceful and a release in the "Vagabond" series of traveltalks sets forth with rare pictorial charm the beauties of Antwerp, Belgium.

The Pathe News, featuring Balbo's triumphant return to Rome and Al Smith's impassioned plea for the NRA complete a bill that is unreservedly recommended to discriminating amusement seekers.

Palace.

"SONG OF SONGS."—Paramount picturization of the play by Edward Sheldon, based on the original work by Hermann Sudermann, starring Marlene Dietrich, with Brian Aherne, Lionel Atwill and Alison Skipworth. Directed by Rouben Mamoulian. Previewed last Monday afternoon.

It has remained for a romantic melodrama of distinguished lineage and a plethora of artistic detail to reveal the full measure of Marlene Dietrich's superb beauty and her mature stature as an actress of poise, repression and utmost finesse.

"The Song of Songs," picturized from Edward Sheldon's play based on the original work of Hermann Sudermann, is a triangular love story of fairly dated antiquity and phlegmatic movement, but it nevertheless compounds a degree of interest by the very meticulous fidelity with which it adheres to the people and the period with which it deals.

Frau Dietrich, speaking with scarcely more accent than one of native birth, presents a resourceful and rounded portrayal of a young peasant girl who upon being orphaned takes up her life with a shrewish aunt who runs a little basement bookshop in the city of Berlin. Here she meets a struggling young sculptor, who models diligently in an attic studio across the squalid little street. His masterpiece becomes the life-size statue of Lily, which attracts the attention of Baron von Merzbach to its chill beauty and to her.

The Old, Familiar Triangle.

From this familiar three-pointed premise is evolved a lurid tale of blossoming young womanhood, husbandly brutality, a dip into the questionable gayety of the German capital's night life and an eventual reconciliation between the youthful lovers.

The entire movement of the plot, with all its diverse ramifications and slowing down for artistic nonessentials, is contrived in the grand manner. The play is massive in contour, massive in settings and massive in mood. One has a feeling a good deal of the time that the players may feel just a bit overawed by the magnificent solidity of their surroundings and are permitting it to stigmatize their work.

This is especially true of Brian Aherne, who as Frau Dietrich's leading man has lost much of the charming competence he exerted in similar capacity with Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," less true of Lionel Atwill, as the brutish militarist, Von Merzbach, and not at all of Alison Skipworth, in the role of Frau Rasmussen, the ancient, rum-tippling virago who runs the bookstore.

Of the others in the cast, Hardie Albright and Helen Freeman acquit themselves with major credit in roles that are distinctly minor.

Women Will Love It.

In the Dietrich performance are many qualities of heart and mind that will appeal with particular forcefulness to feminine drama lovers. There is about much she does a wistfulness, a tenderness and gentle patience that thrust deep into the heart. And in contrast are the radiant moments of her wooing on a picturesque countryside by Waldow, the artist, and those slightly more turbulent episodes in the glittering cabaret where he discovers her singing ribald songs—and not very tuneful or clever ones, it may be said—over the wine glasses of as rakish a crowd of profligates as might be met in many nights of conscientious carousing.

Augmenting the feature are a Harry Langdon comedy, "Hooks and Jabs," in which one of the drollest of the comics returns a few steps along the long road, and "Following the Horses," a novelty reel of unusual merit, depicting the varied usefulness of well-trained horseflesh in many countries.

The new release of the Metrotone News completes a bill that attracted overflow patronage yesterday and deserves to continue to do so throughout the remainder of the week—unless speed is a prerequisite of enjoyment.

Earle

"CAPTURED."—Warner Brothers' picturization of a screen play by Edward Chodorov, based on Sir Philip Gibbs' novel, "Fellow Prisoners," starring Leslie Howard, with Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Margaret Lindsay and Paul Lukas. Directed by Roy Del Ruth. Reviewed Friday evening.

Jack Dalton, of the Horse Marines, is playing Johnny-on-the-spot again at the Earle this week and you'd never have guessed, and you probably won't believe it when we tell you, but Leslie Howard, the subtlest actor of them all, is playing Jack!

For after an excellent though harrying beginning, with a more than excellent cast ready to do honest, worthwhile work, and some exceedingly dramatic, if theatric, possibilities in its story, "Captured" goes completely berserk to end in a preposterous mix-up of heroics.

Capt. Fred Allison, quiet, courageous and suffering a great deal more through separation from his war-bride wife than from privations and horrors of the camp, and Digby, his best friend, are fellow prisoners in a German prison camp. Digby, like Allison, loves Allison's wife and, unlike Allison, is loved in return. The situation becoming intolerable, Digby escapes only to be returned to answer a civil criminal charge.

Enter Melodrama.

Then enters the 10-20-30 moments, for Allison, discovering his wife's infidelity, lets Digby get before a firing squad, have his eyes bandaged, say a last "Are you there, Fred? Farewell, old chap," and then—steps forward with a hoarse cry of "Stop." The firing squad stops, but Allison doesn't. He rescues the whole blooming prison camp full of officers, sending them flying back to what should be an amazed allied army in approximately 1,000,000 German planes, while, having the situation well in hand, he dies at his post, leaving his wife to his friend. Three cheers and a tiger for Fred!

Leslie Howard, than whom there is none better, is positively superb in his restraint and, if any one could, he would have made even that "stop" cry believable.

Paul Lukas, as the German commandant, is similarly to be praised, though he is not so hideously taxed by the drama. Doug. Fairbanks, jr., seems a little too ready to trick and gesture his way through, but you really can't blame him. Of the many, well-drawn types in the camp, we like best Arthur Hohl, as Socky; William LeMaire, as Tex, and Philip Faversham.

One brief scene, an exchange of pleasantries between German and English soldiers in no-man's land under white flag protection is as eloquent an indictment as we recall of the tragic absurdity of war.

Exceptional Stage Show.

BUT the Good News of the Earle's week is an absolutely A-1 stage show, beginning well and getting better as it goes along.

The opening number, Violet, Ray and Norman, with the strongest man and twistingest youth of the month, kept us with our mouth open. Sylvia Froos, both charming and capable, appreciates and presents varying songs and song moods. Barry and Whitledge have a delicious time insulting each other in brand-new ways, never forgetting the advantages of fresh and impeccable material.

AND THEN Hal LeRoy, the boy with the feet that were made to dance and dance so fast and gayly they fairly twinkle. For more than good measure he has talented Barbara McDonald and Dorothy Dare to dance and sing, and Ray Baird, a virtuoso of the sax. A superlative act.

What we mean is, it's a good show which Miss Maxine Calif-Here-I-Come Doyle announces in her swan-song-before-vacation week.

A Victor Herbert overture by the orchestra, a newsreel and a silly Jack Haley comedy complete a bill that probably will find a large and eager public.

Loew's Fox

"TURN BACK THE CLOCK."—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a screen story by Edgar Selwyn and Ben Hecht, starring Lee Tracy, with Peggy Shannon, Mae Clarke and George Barbier. Directed by Edgar Selwyn. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

The Rip Van Winkle theme, unused for some time, comes back to the screen in "Turn Back the Clock." While it is not strictly parallel to Rip's story, there is in the imaginative reliving of a life many of the same elements which have made its prototype a classic.

Joe Gimlet, an obscure tobacco retailer, meets an old friend, who has become the local bank president. For old time's sake Evans suggests an investment of some questionable merit for the $4,000 the Gimlets have amassed. But Mary is quite adamant in refusing her o. k. for so dubious a venture. Peeved, to say the least, and rather blotto. Joe starts on an indefinite bender, which is promptly cut short by trying to argue the right-of-way with an auto.

As Joe goes under the ether at the hospital, there begins a strange and wond'rous fantasy of what he would have been and what he would do if he could live his life all over again. Instantly transplanted to a period 20 years earlier, Joe appears quite bewildered, for, while everything about him is familiar, he still realizes what he has been and that it is 44 and not 24. Determined to go through with his self-made bargain, he proceeds to relive his life.

Star Gets Going.

It is at this point that Lee Tracy, as Joe, hits his histrionic stride. While "Turn Back the Clock" offers him no opportunity to better his previous work, rabid Tracy fans will find in this vehicle a central role for which their star is preeminently fitted.

Opposite him is long-haired Mae Claire, as his wife, with George Barbier and Peggy Shannon as the other couple. During the hallucination, dream, or what have you, these four are all mixed up and each of the men has a fling with "the other woman." It all works out, even as it did for Herr Van Winkle, and with plenty of Tracy fun the while.

Towering over the other stage acts in headline quality are the Timbergs, father and son, assisted by Audrey Parker, Leo Chalzel and Oliver Harris. The geographical discussion, between Herman, sr., Chalzel and Harris, is a gem of comedy, but it was Herman, jr.'s soft-shoe dancing that stopped the show.

Other Ace Acts.

Opening the bill are Harry Roy and Billy Maye, with a series of ballroom numbers, the second and third being costume "variations on a theme" offered in their first. Furnishing vocal interludes is May Joyce, whose medley of "Farewell to Arms" and "My Darling" elicited well-deserved applause.

Everett Marshall, star of Broadway and radio, presented "Night and Day," "Take Me Back to Harlem" and "Dusty Shoes" for the "third in a row" of aces. Number four was Joe May and Dotty in "Laughs From Abroad," that had yesterday's first matinee crowd aching from the utter nonsense of the incessant chatter purveyed.

Phil Lampkin added the fifth ace with his arrangement of "Impressions of Victor Herbert" as an overture in which "The March of the Toys," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "The Gypsy Love Song" and other Herbert favorites were featured. A release of the Fox Movietone News rounds out a de luxe entertainment.

"DOUBLE HARNESS." — RKO-Radio picturization of a play by Edward Poor Montgomery, adapted to the screen by Jane Murfin, costarring Ann Harding and William Powell, with Henry Stephenson, Lillian Bond and Reginald Owen. Directed by John Cromwell. Return engagement, reviewed Friday afternoon.

During its recent Washington premiere, "Double Harness," the current Ann Harding-William Powell vehicle, met with such overwhelming approval, that by popular demand it has returned to the Metropolitan.

It is a strange thing—this Harding charm. Strange and hard to define. During her performances you are vaguely conscious of a fluidic something, volatile and elusive yet definite in its effect. Add to this the debonnaire fascination of William Powell and a story old in theme but new in the clever manner of its handling, and you have a movie well worth seeing.

Ann Harding, as Joan, the girl who believed that marriage was a business—the only business possible to a woman, and William Powell, as John, the man who believed that you can't anchor romance with a wedding ring, are both thoroughly convincing in a story that, with the wrong handling, could have been unutterably trite and wearisome.

Lillian Bond is not so terribly menacing as the "other woman," but the supporting cast is, on the whole, worthy of the splendid performances of the two stars. You'll like "Double Harness." If you didn't see it during its first Washington run, you'll want to see it now. Your reviewer enjoyed it quite as much the second time.

Miss Harding has cultivated a pellucid passivity in her acting that makes the histrionic gymastics of some of our other feminine stars seem very amateurish by comparison.

Added attractions feature a Vitaphone Short, "20,000 Cheers for the Chain Gang," which presents the Pickens Sisters and a notable supporting cast and the Paramount News, which gives first-run shots of Balbo landing in Rome after his 12,000 mile flight and being greeted by Il Duce himself.

Cohan to Play Lead In O'Neill Drama

Reserve Board Issues Ruling on State Banks

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve Board in a ruling published yesterday held that under the banking act of 1933 a State bank having capital stock of less than $500,000 and located in a State having a population of more than 1,000,000 can not become a member of the Federal Reserve System and continue to operate outside its home city a station for receiving deposits and cashing checks.

At the same time it held that a State bank or trust company organized prior to the date of approval of the banking act last June 16 and situated in a place with a population of not more than 3,000 and having a capital stock of not less than $25,000 is eligible for admission to membership in the Reserve System. If the capital were less than $25,000 on June 16, the bank is eligible if the capital is increased to that amount prior to admission to membership.

Foreign Trade Control Shifted To Hull Office

Overseas Agents of U. S. Commerce to Report in New Channel.

America's foreign trade activities, heretofore directed by the Department of Commerce, will be absorbed by the State Department, according to a joint announcement yesterday. Acting Secretary of State Phillips and Secretary of Commerce Roper have coordinated the services of trade commissioners abroad under the direction of the State Department.

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce will continue to function but with a greatly reduced staff. This is the agency through which former President Hoover built up American foreign trade from $3,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000 annually, when he was Secretary of Commerce.

The slump in American foreign trade caused President Roosevelt on July 15 to reduce the staff of commercial agents abroad from 168 to 92. In addition he closed 21 of the commercial offices throughout the world.

The remaining force will continue to report to the Secretary of Commerce, but through the State Department. The statement declared that the agents "will more effectively discharge their major functions of providing information of primary interest to the Government and to the American people as a whole."

C., Aug. 25 (AP).—Legislation to unfreeze every dollar in closed banks throughout the country was described as one of the major problems before the next session of Congress by Representative H. B. Steagall (Democrat), Alabama, in an address today to the North Carolina Bankers Association's convention.

Representative Steagall is chairman of the House Banking and Currency committee.

Wheeler Protests U.S. Aid to Chicago

Montana Senator Wires Capital Warning of "Public Scandal."

(Associated Press.)

Senator Wheeler, of Montana, in a telegram to Secretary Ickes yesterday said "it would constitute a public scandal" to turn public works money to a group in Chicago as he had been informed was about to be done.

Ickes, administrator of the fund, did not comment on the telegram.

"F. J. McCarthy, managing editor, Chicago American, represents to me," Wheeler telegraphed Ickes, "that money from the Public Works Department is about to be turned over to people in Chicago whose records are such that it would constitute a public scandal. If what McCarthy tells me is correct I feel that a thorough investigation should be made of the matter before any moneys were turned over to these people, and feel sure you would concur in this view."

French and Soviet Political Pact Seen

Former Premier Herriot's Visit Believed Starting of Negotiations.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—The visit of former Premier Edouard Herriot to Moscow is interpreted in some international quarters in New York as an effort by France to effect a political as well as economic accord with Russia—to the disadvantage of Germany.

While the French radical has said his visit is purely personal, some observers of foreign affairs—particularly as they relate to trade—believe that Herriot's trip adds important political significance to the negotiations for a Franco-Soviet trade pact.

Herriot was due to land at Odessa today from Constantinople.

"Deserted" Prince Denies Cash Cause

Oil Heiress' Bridegroom Asserts Money Was Not Discussed by Them.

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—Prince di Sirignano Don Francesco Caravita said today the rift between him and the former Janet Snowden, his bride of five days, who left him recently, had "nothing to do with money matters."

"Business was never discussed at any time and there was absolutely no financial arrangement made or suggested," he said.

The princess is in Poland Springs, Me., conferring with her mother, Mrs. Walter S. Davidson, and her stepmother, as to steps necessary to annul her marriage to the Italian nobleman.

Oklahoma Boy, Girl May Escape Charges

New York, Aug. 25 (AP).—James B. Spivey and Jane Russel Hopkins, both 18 and from Oklahoma City, had hopes today of soon returning to their homes with all charges against them here dropped.

Meanwhile, they were held in $2,000 bail by United States Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill on charges of transporting a stolen automobile across State lines.

Oklahoma authorities said they do not want to prosecute and the couple's parents promised to send them train fare.

Clark Is Boomed For Senate Race

Friends of Florida Man Here Plan Circulation of Petitions.

Frank Clark, former representative from Florida, had his hat thrown into the senatorial ring last night by a number of Washington friends, Democrats and Republicans, who gathered in a downtown law office to boom the campaign.

Advisability of circulating petitions for Clark in Florida was discussed. If he enters the race, Clark will be pitted against his old friend, Senator Trammel. Because of this, Mr. Clark has refused to take any active interest in a senatorial toga until "called upon by the people."

A former member of the U. S. Tariff Commission, Mr. Clark was nominated by President Hoover to be a member of the Power Commission. He was not confirmed because a Democratic senatorial caucus decided not to confirm any nominations made after the last election.

Foreign Banking Links to Be Bared

Reserve Board Orders Its Members to Submit Data on Relations.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve Board yesterday issued regulations requiring the Federal Reserve banks to submit formally at once full information concerning all existing relationships and transactions heretofore entered into with foreign banks or bankers.

The new rules promulgated under the 1933 banking act prohibits officers or other representatives of any Federal Reserve bank from conducting negotiations of any kind with officers or representatives of foreign banks or bankers except those pursuant to agreements previously approved by the board.

The board also issued regulations governing examination of holding company affiliates and voting of stock by such affiliates. Henceforth they must obtain permits before being allowed to vote stock of Federal Reserve member banks.

Florida Man Kills Girl, Self in Cuba

Bodies Found in Hotel Room; Murder Victim Was 13 Years Old.

Havana, Aug. 25 (AP).—The bodies of a man and a girl, identified by their companion as Worth H. Seldman, 45, of Sarasota, Fla., and Mary Ann Shefferd, 13, were found in a hotel room today by authorities who said the man committed suicide after shooting the girl.

Claudia Jones, of Largo, Fla., who accompanied the pair here, said they arrived from Miami by plane two weeks ago; that the man registered under the name of Edwards, and that she did not know the girl's address.

The United States consulate informed the man yesterday that charges, the nature of which she did not learn, had been filed against him in the United States, Miss Jones asserted.

'No Retreat' Slogan Of Cannon, Leaving

Bishop, Off for Europe, Tells Why Repealists Are Advancing.

(Associated Press.)

"No retreat, no surrender, no compromise" on prohibition was the slogan laid down yesterday for dry workers by Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Chuch, South, as he left for Europe to attend church and prohibition conferences.

In a statement issued here he charged that the progress of prohibition repeal was due to the fact that the Federal Government never had really attempted to enforce prohibition; that former President Hoover failed to carry out inaugural pledges; that former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York and the Roman Catholic heirarchy had worked against prohibition; that the newspapers had ignored the benefits of prohibition and magnified its evils; that friends of prohibition had been lulled into a false sense of security and that the liquor traffic and its friends are taking advantage of the business depression.

The reserves were from Birmingham, New Orleans, Georgetown and Charleston.

Railroad Chiefs Would Accept $60,000 in Pay

Coordinator Eastman Sees $50,000 Enough but It's "Up to Directors."

(Associated Press.)

Willingness to work for $60,000 a year has been expressed to Joseph B. Eastman, Federal transportation coordinator, by railroad executives who have been receiving up to $150,000.

Eastman, after receiving reports from the Eastern, Southern and Western coordinating committees of rail chieftains, said yesterday:

"This $60,000 exceeds the maximum which was in my mind." He recalled that $50,000 was the World War peak under Government operation.

"All things considered, it seemed to me, and still seems, that $50,000 is the most that should be paid under present conditions," he said, but added that he did not regard the situation as one "which justifies an order on my part, for the amounts involved are relatively insignificant."

He said he would leave the matter "to the good judgment and statesmanship" of the directors of the railroads accepting the assurance that the maximum will be reduced to $60,000 and expressing the hope that still further reductions may be made. "I shall leave also to their judgment," he said, "reductions in the salaries of lesser officers to conform."

Eastman put the salary question up to the carriers six weeks ago in a statement saying "there must be an adjustment of this matter of salaries before the railroads will stand right with the shippers, investors, and labor under conditions which now exist."

Leipzig, Aug. 25 (AP).— Paul Teichert, councel for three Bulgarians charged with complicity in the burning of the Reichstag, today asked George Branting and the International Jurists Commisson to send all available evidence pertaining to the Bulgarians as quickly as possible for defense use.

The trial is set for late in September.

Hull-Davis Parley To Fix Arms Aim

U. S. Still Willing to Leave Tradition for Substantial Cuts.

(Associated Press.)

The American policy at the World Arms Conference soon to resume at Geneva will be given a final going over in a conference today between Secretary of State Hull and Norman H. Davis, Ambassador at Large and chief of the United States delegation. They will talk at Hull's retreat in Virginia.

Davis, who conferred with President Roosevelt at Hyde Park Tuesday, will sail, probably next week, for Geneva. He will be accompanied by Robert Pell, of the Paris Embassy.

It was stated authoritatively that the willingness of the Roosevelt administration, as indicated last spring, to abandon elements of the traditional American policy of neutrality in return for substantial reductions of armaments still holds.

Fifth Arrest Made In Kidnap "Ring"

Connecticut Authorities Continue Round-Up of Suspects.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 25 (AP).—A new arrest brought the total to five tonight as State authorities pressed their round-up of what they termed a Connecticut kidnaping gang.

Joseph Barralotta, 35, was taken into custody today at the small store he operates in Thompsonville.

Ernest Corvo and Mario Campiso were being held under $25,000 bond each on charges of conspiracy to kidnap. Two others also were being held in $5,000 each as material witnesses.

Youth Confesses To Extortion Plot

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 25 (A.P.). Walter McRae, 16, high school student, confessed in a signed statement today to writing a $500 extortion note to Dr. Tom W. Brabham, president of Texas Woman's College.

He was arrested at his home here and made the statement to Assistant District Attorney W. R. Parker.

The note threatened the kidnaping of Dr. Brabham's 12-year-old son unless the money was paid.

Everglades Club May Go on Block

Foreclosure Is Asked On $1,500,000 Mortgage on Florida Resort.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—U. S. District Court here has been asked to foreclose a $1,500,000 mortgage on the Everglades Club of Palm Beach, one of America's most famous resorts for the rich.

A petition requesting a foreclosure was filed for Spitzer-Rorick Trust & Savings Bank of Toledo and H. C. Rorock, trustees for a bond issue, which the mortgage secures.

The suit alleges $1,380,000 of the bonds for which the bank is trustee are in default.

A large clubhouse, golf course, apartments and other properties in Palm Beach are owned by the Everglades Club.

Fund Loss Blamed On A. M. E. Bishop

Churchman, 83, Fails to Explain Shortage of $18,000.

Xenia, Ohio, Aug. 25 (AP).—Charges that Bishop William H. Heard, of Philadelphia, Afriean M. E. Church, had "misapplied or misappropriated" $18,000 allegedly collected for Wilberforce University, near here, have been placed in the hands of the trustees by an investigating committee, it became known today.

Bishop Heard, 83 years old, head of the church for the Third District, embracing Ohio and Pennsylvania, denied the allegations when first presented last June. When a hearing opened last week the bishop was not present and was not represented, and the investigating committee turned its report over to the trustees for further action.

Burke Tames Tigers, 5-4, Nats Boosting Lead to 9 Games Over Yanks

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 25.

ANY day now, old man Mathematical certainty, that infallible old fellow who provides the facts and figures, is going to introduce the Nats with that famous old line that Joe Humphries made famous, "The winner, and new champion." And he will be pointing directly at Joe Cronin and his gang.

Nine games in the lead. The jig is up for the Yankees just as surely as the sky is overhead. They have as much chance to beat the Nats out for the 1933 pennant as the proverbial snow ball has to survive in Key West. And their hopes are melting each day Washington wins or each day they lose. Or each day they both win or both lose, for that matter.

New York is almost at the end of its rope in the race. The fast-waning schedule will soon call a halt. The Nats have 34 remaining games, the Yankees, 36. If Washington but breaks even, winning 17 and losing 17, New York must win 27 while losing only 9 to tie for the lead. That is, if Washington wins only 1 of every 2 of its remaining battles, the Yanks must win 3 out of their every 4. You can draw your own conclusions.

Nats Are Happy Crew.

As Joe Cronin bundled his men into a waiting train for the three-hour journey to Cleveland tonight, the news of the Yankee defeat in Cleveland was heard. There was no uproarious demonstration such as marked the massacre of the straw hats in St. Louis the other day. But every one was in high good humor. After all, it will be no surprise to them if they go on and win the pennant.

Of the entire crew, Cronin himself was the most jubilant. He went through both cars of the special train, back-slapping his lads and beaming his Celtic smile on all the world.

"Can we come back?" Cronin asked any who would listen. "What did we do after losing those first two in Detroit. We had a great opportunity to fold up, didn't we?"

Burke Long a Puzzle.

That overworked word enigma, with which they label certain pitchers who jinx certain clubs, can now be applied to Bobby Burke in a different sense. For seven years skinny Bobby has been an enigma to his own club.

Seven years a member of the Nats, but never a regular. That is Burke, who has been a puzzle to three Washington managers, Bucky Harris, Walter Johnson and Joe Cronin. Always good enough to keep, but never good enough to get a regular job. That was Burke. But Bobby threatens to end all that.

Today, for the fourth time this season, he was given a starting role, and today for the fourth time he turned in a victory.

"It's been so long since I pitched that I was all at sea out there for a couple of innings today," said Burke, after he had turned in a well-pitched win over the Tigers.

"It takes me a couple of innings to acclimate myself out there. Then I begin to feel at home."

It may be significant that in his every start this season Burke has had Moe Berg for his battery mate. It has been an infallible combination. Bobby himself took the trouble to point out that Moe has caught him in every start.

Crowder Starts Series.

General Alvin Crowder, the heavy-duty work horse of the Nats, will pitch the first game of the world series for the Nats barring the possibility that the Nats don't get into the world series.

"I asked Cronin for the job last spring down at Biloxi," said the General.

"He got us all in there one day and said we could win the pennant and that's when I told him I'd be ready to pitch the opener in the series. 'O. K.,' said Joe, and he wasn't kidding. Neither was I."

Crowder is the bane of Cronin's existence during the pregame batting and fielding practice. The General is out there slugging flies until he has run himself ragged. Then he comes in to join the 2 o'clock infield at shortstop, and then he warms up a couple of pitchers, just to keep his hand in. During the last few days, Cronin has had to shoo him off the field for fear he'll drop of over-exerting.

Runs Hits and Errors—Today's game set a new free-style record for umpire-baiting...Marberry was ragging Kolls from the pitchers' box...Cronin was riding him from the dugout...And the 10,000 ladies day fans were howling at every unsatisfactory decision...Kolls finally chased Catcher Hayworth out of the game in the sixth inning... Cronin gave Jack Russell a day of rest and the relief pitcher saw the game from the stands in company with Clark Griffith who forewent the trip to Cleveland to go back East and scout a couple of Albany players...It was a great series for Joe Kuhel at bat...He made 13 hits out of 21 times at the plate...And has now hit in 11 straight games...They couldn't keep Bobby Burke off the bases today...Twice he got on by errors and another time he singled... Monte Weaver goes for the Nats tomorrow in the opener at Cleveland...He's still after the fourth straight win that eluded him Tuesday.

Helen Jacobs Wins Way To Final

Scores Easy Triumph Over Dorothy Round, 6–4, 5–7, 6–2.

Will Meet Mrs. Moody, Whose Ills Are Gone, for Title Today.

By Gayle Talbot.

FOREST HILLS, Aug. 25 (AP).—Steady, methodical Helen Jacobs rode out the last of the foreign storm here today and qualified for the finals of the Women's National Tennis Championships by defeating a highly erractic Dorothy Round, of England, in a three-set match, 6—4, 5—7, 6—2.

In addition to making the cup safe for this country another year, Berkeley Helen set the stage for another meeting with her old and respected antagonist, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, in tomorrow's final. They have met seven times since they first crossed tennis paths, have these two California girls, and Mrs. Moody will be seeking her eighth straight victory tomorrow. By coincidence, she also will be gunning for her eighth national crown.

Declares She Is Steady.

Mrs. Moody watched today's battle from the shade of the marquee, having lined herself up for the finals by beating Betty Nuthall, of England, five days ago, before the rain moved in. She avowed she was fit and ready for tomorrow's fray, would not be handicapped by the injured back that has worried her physician.

Miss Jacobs' comparatively easy victory today was unexpected, in view of the fact she had met Miss Round on three previous occasions this summer and had been on the losing end twice. Helen, except for a span of seven games in the second set, was steady as taxes with her chop stroke. Miss Round was distinctly "off" her best game, wild and generally erratic in the pinches, so it really wasn't much of a trick for the defending champion to win.

A brisk wind that whipped the court seemed to bother the British girl. Many times the ball, taking queer bounces of floating in the breeze, threw her off balance and caused her drives to sail almost into the audience. Helen, on the other hand, thrived on the windy going, the currents having little opportunity to play with her low, spinning chops. Where Miss Round knocked 18 into the net in the first set, only five nets were charged against Helen. In the final set the ratio was 14 to 3, and that was where the match was lost—in the webbing.

Helen didn't go in for placements, making only 19 in the three sets against a total of 28 credited to the lower, but her ability to keep the pellet forever in the court more than made up for that. She put over three service aces to Miss Round's two, and her delivery generally was more effective. Helen broke Dorothy's service three out of four times in the final set.

Starts Fine Comeback.

The British girl made her only bid in the second set, when she got up at "nine," figuratively, to avert a knockout and go the limit. Miss Jacobs carried four of the first five games and apparently had the match sewed up right there as Dorothy continued to play wildly. She also had game point in the sixth before Miss Round, making an obvious effort, pulled her game together and started a fine comeback.

First the count went to 3—4, then to 3—5, and then the British girl raced through four successive games to take the set at 7 to 5. At the intermission it looked like Miss Round might have recovered her form, and the audience of 4,000 anticipated a real battle as they came out for the final set. But there was nothing to it after Helen, playing brilliantly, won the first three games with the loss of only as many points.

The point score:

	First Set.
Jacobs	4	7	4	2	2	4	4	6	2	4	—39

Trapshoot Crown To Pennsylvania

Walter Beaver Is Winner Over Ned Lilly In 25-Target Shoot-Off.

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 25 (AP).—Walter Beaver, 36, an electrician from Berwyn, Pa., stood on the 25-yard line and fired with amazing accuracy today to win the blue ribbon event of the trap shooting—the thirty-fourth annual grand American handicap.

Within the regulation 100 targets of the event, Beaver disposed of all rivals except young Ned Lilly, of Stanton, Mich., who tied him with a score of 98 hits. Lilly was defeated, however, in a 25-target shoot-off.

In the extra firing, the Pennsylvanian went 25 straight, while Lilly, who was shooting from 24 yards, missed twice.

Six shooters tied at 97, finishing next to Beaver and Lilly, and shot it out for the next four positions. Joe Histand, of Hillsboro, Ohio, finally won third; C. O. Carothers, of Kenton, Ohio, fourth; Morgan Davis, of Springfield, Ohio, fifth, and Fred Harlow, of Newark, Ohio, sixth.

Lott-Stoefen Win in U. S. Doubles

Defeat Crawford-McGrath, 6-2, 7-5, 7-5; Shields-Parker Survive.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 25 (AP).—The strongest foreign invasion of the national doubles tennis tourney has experienced since 1928 appeared safely under control today when the third and fourth seeded American teams upset international rivals in the split-up quarter-finals play at Longwood.

George Lott and Lester Stoefen, who teamed for the first time at Newport last week, were so well organized they gained a straight set victory over the leading foreign threat, Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath, of Australia, 6—2, 7—5, 7—5, in the upper-half match. Frank X. Shields and Frankie Parker stood off the late spurt of Frederick J. Perry and Frank H. D. Wilde to drive those crack Britishers out of the title quest by a 6—2, 6—1, 3—6, 7—5 margin.

One Set of Invaders.

The exits of the vanquished teams left only one set of foreigners in the running, Adrian Quist and Don Turnbull, the Australian Davis Cup Team, whose chances of topping Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, 1931 champions and finalists for the last three years, in tomorrow's quarter-finals play appeared extremely slim.

The defending titlists, Ellsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, will plan an all-California quarter-finals against Jack Tidball and Gene Mako, the young Los Angelians, tomorrow, and the victors will have a full day of rest before engaging today's winners in Monday's semi-final play. The final has been set for next Tuesday, due to two postponements.

The slugging Lott-Stoefen team, formed to further the U. S. L. T. A.'s 1934 Davis Cup plans, got off to a flying start with a heavy attack against the unorthodox two-fisted backhand of the 17-year-old McGrath, who wilted to such an extent under the pressure he flubbed 14 of the 17 chances that came his way during the opener.

Quarter Finals.

George Lott, Chicago, and Lester Stoefen, Los Angeles, defeated Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath, Australia, 6—2, 7—5, 7—5.

Frank X. Shields, New York, and Frank Parker, Milwaukee, defeated Frederick J. Perry and Frank H. D. Wilde, England, 6—2, 6—1, 3—6, 7—5.

First round—Elisabeth Ryan, England, and Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, Calif., won by default from Virginia Ellis, Brookline, and Frank H. D. Wilde, England; Polly Palfrey and Thomas Jansen, Brookline, won by default from Joan Palfrey, Brookline, and H. G. N. Lee, England; Sarah Palfrey, Brookline, and George Lott, Chicago, defeated Dorance Chase, Boston, and Adrian Quist, Australia, 6—2, 6—4; Jane Sharpe, Pasadena, Calif., and Lester Stoefen, Los Angeles, defeated Katherine Winthrop, Hamilton, and Don Turnbull, Australia, 6—8, 7—5, 6—4; Peggy Scriven, England, and Jack Crawford, Australia, defeated Eunice Sampson, Brookline, and Karl Kamrath, Houston, Tex., 6—1, 7—5.

Quarter-finals—S. Jarvis Adams and H. H. Bassford, New York, won by default from C. G. Plimpton and D. S. Niles, Brookline; G. P. Gardner and Richard Bishop, Boston, defeated A. N. Reggio and Josiah Wheelwright, Boston, 6—1, 6—3; Dr. William Rosenbaum and F. C. Baggs, New York, defeated R. E. Snow and H. L. Davenport, Springfield, 6—0, 6—2; B. S. Prentice and C. J. Griffin, New York, defeated G. A. Lyon and I. C. Wright, Boston, 6—4, 4—6, 13—11.

5-Run Tribe Rally Downs New York

Pearson Wins Seventh After Devens Goes Wild in Eighth.

Pytlak's Triple Marks Victorious Attack in 6-to-4 Game.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 25 (AP).—Coming from behind with a five-run rally in the eighth, the Cleveland Indians today defeated the New York Yankees, 6 to 4, and dropped the fading champions to a point nine games behind Washington, who triumphed over the Tigers. The defeat shoved the Yanks to the lowest station they have occupied this season.

A triple by Frank Pytlak, with Bill Cissell and Wesley Ferrell aboard the bases, was the big blow struck during the eighth-inning uprising off Herb Pennock and his successor, Wilcy Moore.

Charlie Devens, young Harvard graduate, held the Indians to four hits and one run in seven innings, but in the eighth his wildness loaded the bases and Pennock was called in.

Monte Pearson, who joined the Indians less than two months ago, also was wild, passing 11 Yankees, but he kept the champions' eight hits so well scattered they left 15 of their number stranded on the bases. The victory was Pearson's seventh, as compared with three defeats.

Giants Defeat Bucs Twice, 8-5, 6-2

Lindstrom's 2 Home Runs Futile; 30,000 Watch N. Y. Stretch Lead.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (AP).—If the menace of Boston's onrushing Braves hangs heavy over Bill Terry's fabulous Giants they failed to show it today as they swamped the Pittsburgh Pirates with a barrage of home runs in both halves of a double-header, 8 to 5 and 6 to 2.

A crowd of fully 30,000, if not the biggest, certainly the loudest of the season at the Polo Grounds, saw Terry win the first game in the eleventh inning with a towering homer high into the right-field stands with two on, and Bud Parmelee hold the Pirates safe in the second, while Johnny Vergez and Mel Ott hit homers behind him.

With the Braves idle, the Giants ran their own winning streak, interrupted by rain for the past four days, to seven straight and boosted their league-leading margin to seven full games. It was the sixth straight defeat for the Pirates, who came here straight from a cuffing in Boston.

Lindstrom in Form.

The Pirates made a fight of it only in the first game and there chiefly through the one-man offensive of Freddy Lindstrom, Pittsburgh center fielder who patrolled the Giants' deep field until Terry traded him last winter.

Almost duplicating the feat of George Washington Harper, whom John McGraw traded to the Cards in 1928 only to have him return and knock the Giants out of the pennant race with three home runs in one game, Lindstrom belted two homers off Freddy Fitzsimmons in successive times at bat.

Philadelphia, Aug. 25 (AP).—Sixteen hits behind Lon Warneke's capable hurling gave the Chicago Cubs a 7 to 4 victory over the Phillies today in the second game of a double-header and enabled them to even the day after the Phils had taken the opener, 8 to 7.

Westrope Rides Col. Bradley's Bobsled to Victory in Feature Race at Hawthorne

Lemon Hills 2½ Lengths Behind

Microphone Returns to Form and Triumphs at Saratoga.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25 (AP).—Under a perfectly timed ride by Jack Westrope, Bobsled, from the stable of Col. E. R. Bradley, of Lexington, Ky., scored in the top race at Hawthorne today, flashing by the judges' stand two and one-half lengths ahead of Lemon Hills.

Yonkel finished third after Unencumbered, the early pacemaker, tired. The latter led the procession for a mile and then faded out of the picture.

Bobsled ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:45 4-5 and paid $3.54 in the $2 straight mutuels.

Jockey Westrope, America's leading apprentice rider, leaves here tomorrow night for Saratoga Springs, where he will accept mounts until the meeting is over there and then goes to Rockingham Park.

Microphone in Form.

Saratoga Rack Track, N. Y., Aug. 25 (AP).—Microphone, 4-year-old son of the mud-running Flying Ebony, returned to winning form here today when he carried the Sage Stable's silks to an easy triumph in the seventh running of the American Legion Handicap, a dash of 7 furlongs, which attracted five good sprinters to the post.

The colt won by three lengths after his price had soared to 8 to 1. "Pete" Bostwick's Blind Bowboy, with the recently suspended Hank Mills back in the saddle, saved second money from C. V. Whitney's The Darb by a length and a half.

Canron, a galloping winner last time out, and St. Stephens completed the field.

Thistle Ann Winner.

Coney Island, Aug. 25 (AP).—George Collins' 6-year-old Thistle Ann scored her second success of the meeting when she defeated a good band of the better grade selling platers in the R. K. O. Purse, principal attraction of a rather mediocre card here today. Edward Haughton's Black Comet was second and J. McShane's Bob Custer third.

Thistle Ann covered the distance in 1:12 3-5 and paid $6.40 in the $2 machines.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

WILLIE MACFARLANE, playing with Edmund Guggenheim and others in a foursome on the Guggenheim private course at Port Washington, N. Y., took a bet with his host that he could play the No. 6 hole, a 125-yard shot, in two. Macfarlane, who is credited by some experts with getting more holes-in-two than any other golfer, promptly won the bet.

On the next round the bet was repeated, again Macfarlane won, and so on for six successive times—each time with the same bet on the same hole—he made it in two. On the seventh round, this time Mr. Guggenheim no longer betting, Macfarlane scored a hole-in-one on the sixth.

Henry Wilson, the man who served a term as Vice President of the United States under an assumed name, was born Jeremiah Jones Colbath at Farmington, N. H., in 1812. He was known by the latter name until he reached manhood, whereupon he changed his name, legally, of course, to Henry Wilson. He used that name the rest of his life.

The word "squirrel" comes originally from Greek words meaning literally "shaded by a tail." It was adopted into Latin, then into French and English.

Although the Portuguese man-of-war appears to be a single organism—a sort of jellyfish which floats on the water, with dangling tentacles underneath—it is in reality a whole colony of individual specialized creatures all grouped together under a common hood or float.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Hawthorne, Aug. 26.

I love a parade—but I like to be in it. I was right in line for just one race today. Bill Orange stepped down at a $14.30 mutuel. However, from that point on Mrs. Bennings' brat ceased firing. I lost two by noses and was well represented in the pay, but, on the whole, the day was a dull one for Mike and I. The boys got a dose of Westrope in reverse today. Hobnail couldn't beat a cheap field the other day with Westrope up. Today, the leading rider was in the saddle on Spartan Lady, the favorite, and up comes Hobnail, with the unfashionable Lowry aboard, to take the decision. This makes Hobnail a member of the "We-Beat-Each-Other Club." "BILL."

First race—Peedeeque gets in with 104 pounds and that apprentice mark again. Looks like Westrope will do the riding. If so, it's all over but the shouting and the payoff. Albane shapes up as the one to beat. Liberty Oak is the sleeper of the field.

Second race—Grande Prince loves that outside post position. It seems that I remember several of his victories from that starting place. However, he has more than that to recommend him for tomorrow. Really figures here. Stroll Along ran a pretty fair sort of race the other day and should beat Sun Teatime for the place.

Third race—Trinchera seems the best suited of this crew. At tops right now and will be hard to keep out of the big picture. Volta Maid is the one I fear. Commuter for the show.

Fourth race—One Chance has been racing splendidly and deserves a chance to take care of a field of this caliber. Knights Gal is the one to beat. Band Wagon packs much speed and should take care of the others.

Fifth race—Gay World turned in a whale of an exhibition here and goes for the Bennings dough in this. Essef, the likely favorite, will be ready if the top one makes a mistake. Late Date for the show.

Sixth race—Cathop is my long-shot special. Yes, I know all about Indian Runner and that 126 pounds. Ask no questions. Get on the line. The Indian may be second. Pilate for the show end.

Seventh race—Uncommon Gold at any price in this. And if he don't turn the trick there should be an investigation. Cold Check and Chokoloskee for the other cash awards.

Eighth race—Pete to win this at a good price. Ed Lark and Adsum appear to have the edge on the others.

"I'm in Great Shape," Boasts Godwin, Predicting Victory Over Knight Monday

Boxer Shows Good Form In Test

Sends Billy Strickler Through Four Fast Sparring Rounds.

Meanwhile, Opponent Has Speedy Trial and Foresees Success.

BOB GODWIN, the fighting fireman from Herald Harbor and points South, paused in the midst of a strenuous workout yesterday at Herald Harbor in response to a reporter's query.

"Am I in shape?" he grinned. Beads of sweat covered his entire body. He stepped about the heavy bag with the dexterity of a ballet dancer, punching with both hands.

"Am I in shape?" he repeated. "Just look at me. Best shape I was ever in. Feel fine—like I could step out and box Carnera 20 rounds, and beat him, too." Just to show how good he really felt, Godwin stepped into the training ring of his Herald Harbor camp and gave Billy Strickler the fastest four rounds he has ever seen.

Meet in 10-Rounder.

Monday night Godwin meets Joe Knight in a 10-round bout at Twin City Arena. Net proceeds will be donated to the committee in charge of the Firemen's Labor Day Parade to help defray expenses.

"Of course I think I'll beat Knight," he replied, in answer to a direct query. "Why shouldn't I? I always have—except once," he added, rubbing his chin reminiscently.

In the meantime Knight was going through much the same training performance at the Mohawk Club and making much the same prediction regarding the outcome of Monday night's battle.

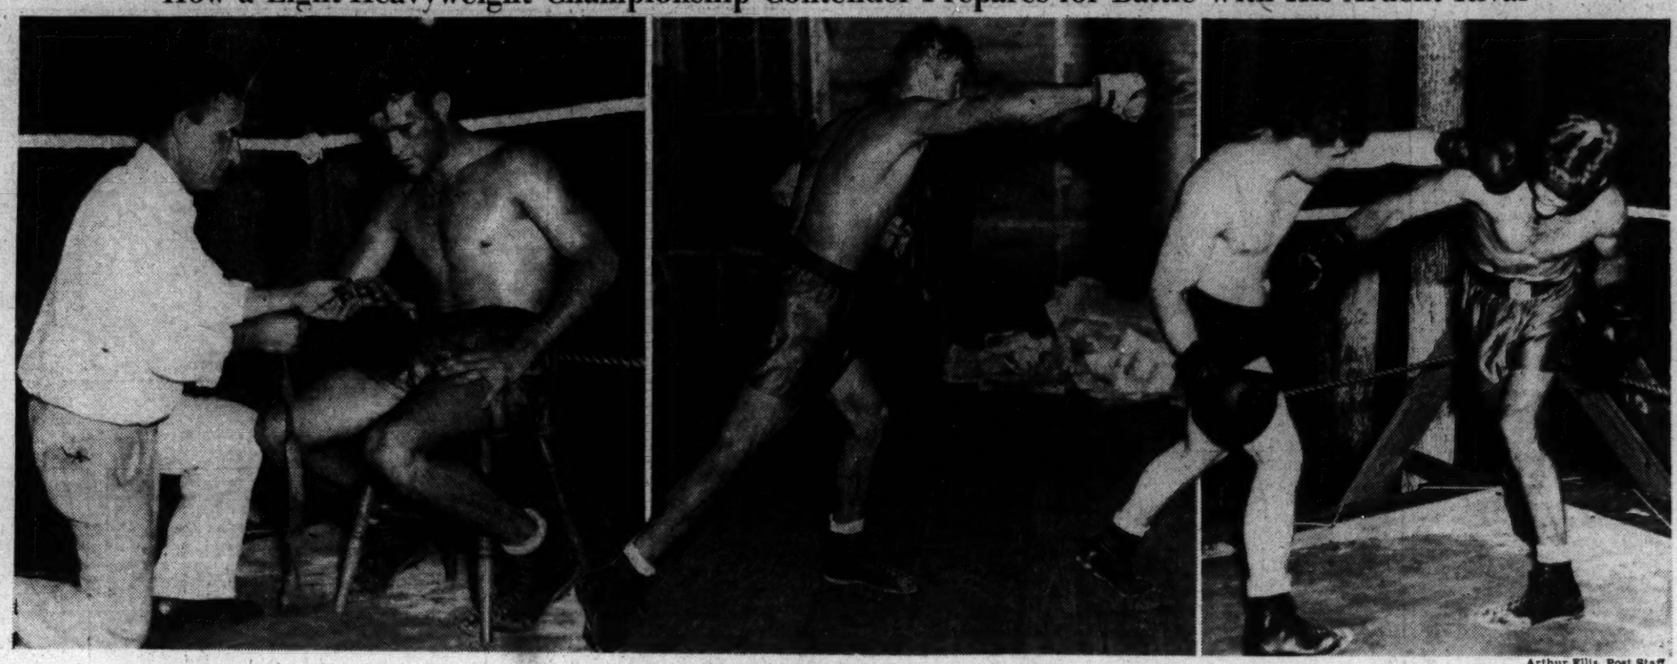
Uses Only His Right.

Evidently Joe was feeling good. His sweat-covered body glistened in the late afternoon sun, streaming through an open window. While he talked he pounded the heavy bag And with the right fist. His left hung idly at his side. Joe's right has been notoriously weak. Just before his tussle with Joe Banovic, whom he defeated, Knight started working on the right hand. He used nothing else during practice, and when he stepped into the ring with Banovic the improvement was very noticeable.

"I'll surprise Godwin with that right this time. I can hit hard and accurately with it. It's gonna be a valuable asset to me in this fight."

Knight is working from 10 to 15 rounds every day. He spends his time on the road, shadow boxing in the gym, skipping rope, punching the heavy bag and working with his sparring partners. Roy Bailey, a middleweight, is one, and Reds Barry, a heavyweight, another.

How a Light-Heavyweight Championship Contender Prepares for Battle With His Ardent Rival



Arthur Ellis, Post Staff.

Bob Godwin has his hands swathed preparatory to a fast workout for his fight Monday against Joe Knight. Pa Godwin, who manages his son, is wrapping the light-heavyweight contender's hands.

Labor on the heavy bag takes the kinks out of Godwin's muscles. That straight right hand that is punishing the bag is the one with which the Florida Flurry hopes to upset his arch-enemy Monday.

Gino Garibaldi Will Oppose Zaharias

Mat Artists to Meet Next Thursday in Benefit at Griffith Stadium.

RASSLING'S stormy petrels and thrill producers de luxe, George Zaharias and Gino Garibaldi, again are to perform for Washington's mat addicts.

Principals in two of the greatest bouts ever staged under Joe Turner's promotion, these rough-and-tumble artists next Thursday night are to clash in a tie-up that is to devote a fine portion of its gate receipts to the annual Firemen's Labor Day parade fund.

Zaharias Is Unpopular.

Because of recent performances Zaharias, beyond question, has stamped himself as the most unpopular matman ever to stalk into a local ring. Employing allegedly foul tactics in defeating Garibaldi two weeks ago, big George last Thursday not only roughed Ray Steele into a near coma but capped his highly potent performance by tossing Referee Benny Bortnick to the greensward, thereby losing via disqualification and inciting a near riot that was checked by police interference.

Turner promises a crack supporting line-up to this grand finale.

What Young Jockey Will Use Marlboro as Stepping Stone?

MARLBORO, Md., Aug. 25 (Spl.).—What jockey will use the approaching meeting of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association, beginning Tuesday, to ascend to stardom?

Seven years ago, Raymond (Sonny) Workman, contract rider for Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, of New York, and now regarded as one of the aces of American race riders, starred at this track by winning four races in a single afternoon.

That feat attracted horsemen to Workman and the Washington lad proved he had the ability by climbing over Earl Sande, Laverne Fator, Linus McAtee, Frankie Coltiletti, Mack Garner and other stars to gain the highest honors.

Three years ago, Albert John Adams of Baltimore, Md., set the turf world agog by winning ten consecutive races, a new world's record. Adams, while not reaching the heights gained by Workman, nevertheless has proven that boys riding on half-mile tracks can make good if given the opportunity.

More than 30 riders will be available for the sport here, but horsemen are looking for the veteran Johnny Pierce, of Baltimore, Md., who is staging a successful comeback; J. King, R. Watson, Skeets Holland, Glen Haines, A. Accardy, Eddie Benham and R. Wimmer to be the outstanding riders.

With good riders and thoroughbreds available Race Secretary John P. Turner is sure to offer excellent daily programs regardless of weather or track conditions.

Race Not Over, Foes Inform Glascoe

'Your Team Likes a Lot of Winning,' They Reply to His Claims.

NO sooner does Wee Willie Glascoe go out on the limb and onto the record that his Giffs are "in" so far as the Capital City League second half race is concerned, than grumblings and denials are heard all down the line.

"The Griffs win?" is the query raised. "Not while we're in the league."

What is perhaps the most outspoken denial of Mr. Glascoe's bold statement comes in the form of a bulky letter from Carey Maupin, secretary of the Miller Furniture Co. nine. The Millers won the first half, but are well down the list in the second series.

Called Rash Statement.

"Did you ever hear such a large statement from such a little fellow?" writes Carey. "Washington is going to win the American League pennant all right," he continues, "but that part about Willie's team beating the Millers — why, I never heard such a rash statement.

"Perhaps Mr. Glascoe forgets our game in the first half, when we scored six runs in the ninth inning, nosing out the Griffs by a score of 7-to-6. This time the Millers will not joke with them. They'll be so far behind in the ninth inning it won't even be funny.

"Furthermore (Carey's actually beginning to be boastful), if Glascoe's boys do happen to beat us, I'll carry him around the infield 10 times on my back. If a wheelbarrow is obtainable, I'll wheel him home in it."

Interest Is Aroused.

With a quiet, likeable chap like Carey Maupin taking the bit in his teeth and belaying the Griffs with one of the finest verbal lashings heard in a long while, and Tony Burruto willing to wager haircuts and shaves on his American Linen Supply nine, the Capital City League is arousing much interest among sandlotters. Tony's barber shop was crowded from morning until night all week, but the profits were slim. Most of the customers were collecting their free shaves.

Appraised of Maupin's letter, Glascoe elevated his nose to an angle that might be called disdainful and murmured, "Humph! I'll take him up on that, and he can wheel me home in a wheelbarrow after we finish with 'em."

Hulls to Decide In Boat Classic

Algonac, Mich., Aug. 25 (AP).—The town of Algonac—boat wise and race wise—gives Hubert Scott-Paine and his challenger, Miss Britain III, but one chance to win the Harmsworth trophy event this year.

That chance, they say, is that Gar Wood's heavy, high-powered Miss America X, will break up under the tremendous throb of her mighty motors when the throttles are opened.

Otherwise, say the men steeped in power boat lore, Miss America will win with her throttles checked Furthermore, they say that Scott-Paine, burly Irish challenger, himself has that idea in mind, and that he hopes to drive Miss Britain through the waters rapidly enough to force Wood to let out his engines to a point that will strain the defender's wooden hull.

Miss Britain in her first trial trip on the St. Clair River showed a burst of speed reliably estimated at above 90 miles an hour. If she can attain a speed of 100 miles in the actual event, say the sages, the larger and more powerful Miss America will be in a precarious situation.

The race therefore becomes a competition between hulls rather than power plants.

Tony Shucco to Fight Griffith September 6

Boston, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Tony Shucco, Boston heavyweight who recently defeated Lee Ramage, of California, will fight Tuffy Griffith, of Chicago, here September 6, Bobby Burke, former Miami sportsman, now matchmaker at Mechanics Building, announced today.

Griffith has won nine of his last eleven bouts, having lost decisions to only Max Baer and Johnny Risko. He defeated King Levinsky, his fellow townsman, in 1931.

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 25 (AP).—Al Espinosa, professional at the swanky Portage Country Club, gave par a terrific beating today. He trimmed nine strokes from perfect figures, touring the eighteen holes in 35-27—62.

He beat par only a single stroke on the first nine, but bettered it by eight holes on the homeward journey by rifling in six birdies, an eagle and two pars.

Three members of the club were playing with him and they, together with club officials, said they could find nothing in golf's record books to compare with the eight under par Espinosa showed for the second nine holes.

Put All Bettors in One Class And Aid Revenue, Says Pegler

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25 (Spl.).—Joseph E. Widener, one of those rich men of horse business who are known as "Mister," unlike the nonrich types who are known as Eddie or Sleepout or Slewfoot, has come to the sad conclusion that racing in New York State will have to cease unless the Legislature can be induced to legalize some convenient form of gambling.

The demise of horse racing in New York would be no very severe blow to the customers, because the races, such as they are at this time and have been for some years, are not much better than no races at all. However, there is no doubt that certain of the citizens would like to go to the horse parks and gamble their money on the steeds and, inasmuch as racing, of itself, has never been called immoral by any reasonable persons and the citizens are bound to gamble anyway, Mr. Widener probably will get his wish.

Would Not Discriminate.

Still, there is no legitimate reason why the Legislature, if and when it decides to condone that which for some years has been held to be sinful and to accept a certain kitty for the State treasury, should discriminate against other forms of gambling and other gambling resorts. If it is okay for citizens to risk their money on the rather hazy probabilities of a horse race, which is susceptible to many sorts of skulduggery, then it should be quite as legitimate for them to drop into a gambling house at any hour of the day or evening which they might find convenient and risk their money on propositions having to do with the uppermost spots on various numbers of dice.

The dice, like the horses, are subject to manipulation by avaricious and unscrupulous characters, but that just goes to show that the human race is still in need of local improvements and is a problem for the clergy and the public prosecutors. People steal money, but it has never been seriously proposed that money be abolished for that reason.

Foolish Thing to Do.

The current practice in dealing with gambling resorts in most places is to prosecute the proprietors or employes on charges of disorderly conduct or maintaining disorderly resorts. This is very foolish, when it is considered that table gambling is one of the grimmest pursuits known to man, being conducted in dead silence above which, even in a room containing a hundred or more gamblers and spectators of both sexes, it is possible to hear the spin of the wheel, the clickety-clack of the little moth ball and the muffled rattle of the dice in the leather bottle. A horse park, on the other hand, emits a series of deep roars every afternoon of its meeting and the approaches are pretty badly fouled by all sorts of coarse, vulgar persons selling hot dogs, steering cars into parking lots and offering dubious forecasts as to the winners of the races at so much per guess. I am afraid that just one newsboy on a public street corner could be shown to be much more disorderly with the hollering of his papers than all the gambling houses in the United States put together.

Mr. Widener's admission that racing in New York can not live without a law to permit betting is an admission that racing is a gambling device, which is something that most people have never had the slightest doubt of. True, Mr. Widener, himself, does not gamble on the races, but he is a rare exception, even among rich men, most of whom do bet on the races when they go to them and pull and strain and twist themselves in body-English antics in the effort to root their horses home.

Bradley Took Respite.

Ed Bradley, who is not known as Mister, because, though rich, he is a gambler by trade, which lets him out socially, had to turn his back on the races for a season or two because his doctor was afraid that the emotional tension would do him serious harm. So, Mr. Bradley would bet a little or quite a lot, according to his information, at the time and when the horses get off would look away until the steeds were wheeling to return to the judge's stand. Then he would ask somebody who won that one.

I seem to be advocating wide-open towns wherever it is considered legitimate for the citizens to gamble on the outcome of a horse race. I do not believe that is what I want to do, however. I would only make the point that horse gambling is morally no different from crap shooting, roulette, faro or the bird-cage game and that if it is revenue which the States desire they are denying themselves about 99 per cent of their due when they legalize mutuel betting and collect a tax on the gross traffic but continue to forbid all the more popular and more convenient vices of the same kind. Presumably a State which reconsiders its morals as Illinois did and decided to suffer a little mortification of its principles for the good of its treasury is entitled to the full price of its sacrifice.

Wolfe Plans 2 New Fights for Sharkey

Boston, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Sammy Wolfe, Chicago promoter, completed final arrangements here today for the Sharkey-Levinsky bout at Chicago September 15, and afterward announced that the former heavyweight champion would meet two other opponents in the Midwestern City.

Wolfe came here for a conference with Sharkey and his manager, Johnny Buckley.

It was agreed that Sharkey's second opponent would be Johnny Risko, Isadore Gastanaga, Tuffy Griffith or Otto Von Porat.

If Sharkey wins the two bouts, it was believed Wolfe would attempt to arrange a meeting between him and Max Baer, possibly in cooperation with Jack Dempsey, who has Baer under contract.

Walter Brown, Yank, Sent To Coast League

New York, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—The New York Yankees today announced the release of Walter Brown, big right-handed pitcher, to Hollywood, in the Pacific Coast League on option.

Brown was called in from Toronto two years ago. He won five and lost two last season. This season he won seven and lost five.

His release is expected to be followed by the addition of a new pitcher to take his place, or the immediate reporting of Don Heffner, Baltimore second baseman, who has been secured.

Nats Win to Boost Lead to 9 Games

homer lengthened. It proved sufficient.

Marberry filled the bases in the first inning with three walks wrapped around two outs, but Kuhel left the trio stranded with a fly to Fox, and the Tigers immediately went into a one-run lead when Rogell walked, went to third on Gehringer's single and scored while Walker hit into a force play.

The Nats evened it up in the second when Berg led off with a double over third. Walker dropped Burke's fly, but Berg was unable to advance. Goose Goslin scored him with a line drive single into right.

Double Play Helps.

Detroit came back in its half of the second to assume a 2-to-1 lead, when Doljack and Owen singled and Doljack scored on Hayworth's grounder that Cronin turned into a double play.

The Tigers' third inning was a sad affair—the one involving dumb base running by Fox and Gehringer that ended up in Burke pulling out of a bad hole. With one out, Burke hit Fox, and Gehringer put him on second with a single. Walker slammed a line drive on Goslin's head against the pavilion in right center, and while Fox was waiting to see if it dropped safely, Gehringer, who was under way with the crack of the bat, passed Fox on the base line between second and third and was automatically out.

Nipped at Plate.

Fox then continued on to the plate and was nipped by Cronin's throw to Berg after the Nats' manager had gone out into center field to take the ball from Goslin. The ball had dropped safely for a two-base hit for Walker.

With two out in the fourth, the Nats went far toward winning the game. Myer singled and Goslin walked. Manush drove Myer home with a single for the tying run and then Cronin crashed a double against the scoreboard in left center to score Goslin and Manush with the second and third runs of the inning.

They picked up another in the fifth by the simple process of Kuhel's home run over the right-field wall. That proved to be the winning margin. The Tigers were shut out from the second to the seventh, when Greenberg walked and eventually scored on a fly by Owens, and in the eighth they played up another run, following Rogell's double, but they were still one run shy when Burke tamed 'em in the ninth.

Choice to Win, Toronto Girl Cops Swim

Toronto, Aug. 25 (AP).—Setting the pace all the way, Ruth Tower-Corsan, titian-haired marathoner from Toronto, captured the Canadian National Exhibition professional 10-mile swim today.

Justifying her position as favorite, the Toronto girl took the lead soon after the international field of 36 plunged into the warm waters of Lake Ontario and held it easily over every other inch of the course to win by a little less than three minutes from Mrs. Evelyn Armstrong, of Detroit.

Mrs. Tower-Corsan, earning $3,000 in cash, was clocked in 5 hours 28 minutes and 10 seconds, far behind the record of 4:56:44.4 set by Margaret Ravior Young, three times winner of the grind. The record molder, now the wife of George Young, is retired.

Mrs. Armstrong, swimming the course in 5:31:01.4, took down $1,500 as her share of the $6,000 prize money.

The other money winners were:

Third, Dorothy Navelaiko, Glen Cove, N. Y., 5:37:23, $700.

Fourth, Leah Riley, Keansburg, N. J., 5:37:35, $500.

Fifth, May Looney, Warren, Ohio, 5:46:50, $200.

Sixth, Lucy Spence, Toronto, 5:51:20, $100.

From the start, it was a duel between Mrs. Tower-Corsan and Mrs. Armstrong, just as the experts had predicted it would be. The Toronto swimmer got the jump in the first mile and thereafter Mrs. Armstrong never could wholly make up the deficit.

Eugenio in Victory.

The Filipino Club tennis tournament was resumed yesterday with one semifinal match in which P. Eugenio defeated J. Caducio, 7—5, 6—1. The doubles will be resumed this afternoon at 4 o'clock, with Eugenio and Rulloda meeting Caducio and Tomelden and Piniera and Yap playing Bonda and Reyes. Rillon will meet Domingo, and Bonda plays Baradi in the consolation singles.

1,050-Pound Tuna Landed Off Nova Scotia—a Record

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Aug. 25 (U.P.).—A monster tuna, the largest fish of its kind ever reported caught in Nova Scotia waters, was landed at Lunenburg last night by Capt. Joseph Penny. It weighed 1,050 pounds.

The previous record was held by Zane Grey, writer, who landed one weighing 700 pounds.

Capt. Penny, in addition to the giant fish, reported he had three others weighing around 700 pounds each. He said the giant tuna would be mounted and sent to Toronto for exhibition.

The fish was harpooned, Capt. Penny revealed, and Zane Grey therefore still holds the record for catching the biggest fish with rod and line.

Penny was accompanied by his father, Capt. W. D. Penny. The tuna was harpooned from the deck of their motorboat. When it started to make off, the line on the harpoon was made fast to a skiff carried by the motorboat.

Capt. Penny, sr., was in the skiff. Frantically fighting for freedom, the tuna towed the skiff nearly 5 miles at a speed sometimes topping 5 knots before it was finally played out and captured. It was then towed to Liverpool. The battle lasted 2½ hours.

Bostwick Suspended By Saratoga Stewards

Saratoga Race Track, Aug. 25 (AP).—George H. (Pete) Bostwick, wealthy amateur rider and owner, was suspended for the remainder of the meeting here by the steeplechase stewards for taking Mrs. C. V. Whitney's horse, Blot, out of the course and pulling up in the jumping event today.

Walt Mason, Himself

Zenda.

THE "Zenda" author, Mr. Hope, has traveled down the sunset slope and crossed the silent sea; and in fair Eden's fragrant vales he's doubtless telling pleasant tales, beneath a crystal tree. His passing made but little noise; a few infirm, gray-bearded boys, recalled once more his name; recalled the gorgeous yarns he told of knights and girls and fighters bold, and traitor's deeds of shame. Once "Zenda" was a household word, and all the continents it stirred, and vast was its renown; and one who started in to read the book would find it hard indeed to lay the blamed thing down. Then imitators came along, and gave the same old dance and song, and wrote books "just as good;" and there were scores of "Zenda" plays that entertained the rustic jays in every neighborhood. The author, he was made a knight, reward for giving such delight to all the tribes of men; and hoping, by his skill and wit, to make another top-hole hit, he plied his trenchant pen. But he had somehow lost the knack, and he went jogging down the track that's paved with hopes deferred; when came the news that he was dead, the modern readers yawned and said, "His name we never heard."

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York.—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff:

Glimpsed dining together at an obscure Italian restaurant in Fifty-second street: Roland Young, Katherine Carrington, Robert Montgomery, Irene Purcell, Arch Selwyn, Lucy Monroe and Dwight Wiman. There's a blending of the movie, stage and operatic worlds.

The shoes Wiley Post wore on his round-the-world flight are on display in the window of a Madison avenue shoe shop.

Margaret Lee, prima donna, is wedded to an Army officer and now lives in Panama. Hasn't yet made up her mind whether or not to give up the stage.

Which recalls that an unusual number of young actresses have abandoned the theater for domesticity recently. Dorothea Chard is married to an Ohio hotel man. June Cochran chose a Long Island produce king. Ruth Tester wedded a Chicago automobile executive. Claiborne Foster married an aviator in Rio de Janerio. Lillian Roth's husband is a New York lawyer.

Adversity's "Sweet Uses."

One of the blessings of the depression is that it has turned taxi drivers from a gruff, surly group to a mood of courteous graciousness. They've discovered that politeness lures larger tips.

An old man with a long, scraggly beard and wearing tattered clothes carried a billboard up and down Broadway. Working for a taxi dance hall, his sign reads "Gorgeous girls at 10 cents a dance."

Incidentally, these taxi dance hostesses are a superstitious lot. If their first customer of the evening dances only once with them, they tear up the ticket. Think it bad luck if they can't persuade the first customer to dance several times before changing partners.

Manhattanotes.

John Floyd, young playwright, is back in town for rehearsals of his new comedy. He inherited a fortune from the late Avery Hopwood, prolific writer of farces.

DuBose Heyward, author of "Porgy," refuses to have a telephone in his summer home at Folly Beach, S. C. He shrinks from public appearances and publicity, though is obliging enough if asked for an interview.

The movies tried to persuade Maude Adams to play the role of the prioress in "Cradle Song," but she refused. But she will have the part of a nun in her next stage play which is being written by Philip Barry. He has wanted to write a drama for her ever since his college days at Harvard, when he met her backstage and she received him in such a charming manner.

Incidentally, Miss Adams has as her business manager Richard Pitman, who was once her leading man.

The Government still maintains an Indian reservation at Huntington, L. I., although there are very few Indians surviving there.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

AS an offset to the good coming from exposure of the skin to sunshine there are various ways in which harm can follow. Among these are speeding up the travel from the cradle to the grave, sunstroke, and harm done the texture of the skin—permanent detriment done the complexion. This article deals with another way in which exposure to bright sunlight may be harmful.

The skin has some similarity to a photographic studio. Sunlight registers on it just as it does on the film of a camera. In it are two light sensitive chemical substances—porphyrin or purpurin, and melanin. Just what is the relation to light of these two substances is a matter that the physiologists are debating. It is sure that certain parts of the sun ray are excluded from the body by certain ingredients of the skin. Other parts are absorbed. Some new substances, particularly vitamins, are formed by the reaction between sunlight and chemicals found in the skin. There must be some chemicals or apparatus for the conversion of a form of energy light into chemical substance, such as a vitamin.

There are those who are naturally light sensitive. Their skins burn readily, but they do not tan. When exposed to bright sunlight, their skins develop plenty of red but no mahogany brown at the time of the exposure or later. The skin of a person of this type is abnormal as regards the chemicals on which light acts. Just what the abnormality consists of its not a matter of agreement.

It may be in its quality or its quantity, but whatever it is, the chemicals are out of balance. In the main, the people who burn but can not tan are the towheads—the light-eyed, fair folks. However, that as a guiding sign is misleading in many cases. Furthermore, a person of the poor tanning type rarely if ever succeeds in getting a good tan, regardless of how carefully he goes about it.

There are people who say no person of this type can ever succeed in getting a good tan. The something which is out of balance in the skins of these people may not be the same as that which causes the albino to be so sensitive to light. His sensitiveness causes him trouble, particularly because of his eye discomfort. There are people who get hives as the result of exposing the skin to bright light. They are sensitized to heat and light. They are comparable to those who get hives from exposure to cold, as, for instance, by swimming in cold water.

State Attempts To Link Pipe to Lamson Death

Doctor Testifies Bludgeon Found in Bonfire Could Have Slain Woman.

San Jose, Calif., Aug. 25 (A.P.).—Dr. Milton Saier, the State's first witness at the murder trial of David A. Lamson, testified today that the blows which killed Allene Thorpe Lamson could have been inflicted by an iron pipe, such as found in a bonfire which Lamson was tending at his home the day his wife was killed.

The State charges the 31-year-old representative of the Stanford University Press crushed his pretty young wife's skull last Memorial Day with a 10-inch length of iron pipe as the result of martial unhappiness.

Dr. Saier, autopsy surgeon, said he had examined Mrs. Lamson's body at 10:10 a. m. last May 30, a few minutes after Lamson had cried out that his wife had been murdered. The witness said there was a sense of warmth in the body.

Lamson's story to witnesses called to the home was that he had carried his wife to the bathroom an hour before and then returned to the garden to work. Called into the house to open it for a rental agent, he said, he had found his wife, lying nude in their blood-splattered bathroom, her head crushed.

Dr. Saier, under cross-examination, said he found a trace of liquid blood in the woman's right ear, which the defense accepted as supporting Lamson's story that she had not been dead long before the tragedy was discovered.

Dr. Saier said an autopsy showed three horizontal lacerations and one vertical. There was one large fracture and others on each side of the main wound, he testified. He also said the wounds on Mrs. Lamson's head possibly could have been caused by falling against the faucets of the bath tub.

Unlimited Sum To Open Streets Urged by Hazen

$25,000 Appropriation Is Unfair to Property Owners, He Says.

Recommendation that the District appropriation for opening streets be unlimited, as in several years before the present fiscal year, and assessments for benefits be credited to the appropriation so as to create a revolving fund, was made yesterday by Surveyor Melvin C. Hazen in his annual report.

Pointing out that the unlimited appropriation enabled the Commissioners to open many streets that never would have been acquired by dedication, he said the $25,000 appropriation in the District act "practically kills all condemnation cases" and "is unfair to property owners who are led to believe the streets would be opened and were public spirited enough to keep improvements out of line of the streets affected."

Offers Condemnation Plan.

Hazen also suggested the Commissioners might receive the right to allow excess condemnation in cases where lots are left in a disadvantageous shape.

"If the Commissioners had such authority, the land could be subdivided to a much better advantage and the property developed in an orderly manner," he said.

The District could then dispose of the land, perhaps at a profit, in compensation for the extra cost of condemnation proceedings, the surveyor said. He pointed that the reason the L'Enfant plan "was so well designed, without irregular shaped parcels and ragged pieces of land, was due to the fact the original proprietors transferred all of the holdings to a commission, and this commission divided the land in accordance with the L'Enfant plan."

Criticizes Alley Bill.

The surveyor criticized the alley dwelling bill introduced in the last Congress and suggested an appropriation for a survey "to determine the number of alley dwellings, the number of inhabitants, and how best to relieve such a condition."

"It is my opinion that this whole matter can be solved in a much simpler manner and with expenditure of less money than is contemplated in the bill," he added. "This office would be glad to prepare a bill along the lines as indicated."

Street extension work has been restricted in recent years on account of the growing expense of condemnation "partially due to a revision of the law which permits awarding of damages by the jury in a sum greater than the assessments for benefits."

Police Nab Three On Liquor Charge

Alleged Numbers Game Operator Also Taken Into Custody.

Four men were arrested by police yesterday on liquor and gambling charges.

Picked up for liquor violations were Harry Engle, 23, 4120 Fourteenth street northwest; Tony Spona, 45, 412 Tenth street northwest, and Ralph E. Wilkenson, 25, 210 F street northwest. All were released on $500 bond.

LeRoy Mark, 23, colored, 470 G place northwest, was arrested on a numbers charge. He was released on $500 bond.

Postmaster's Story Of Theft Checked

Stanley, N. D., Man Gives Up Here; Says He took $6,000 for Family.

Postal authorities are investigating the story of Ole T. Nelson, 50, postmaster of Stanley, N. D., who surrendered to police and said he had stolen $6,000 from postal funds.

Nelson, held at the Tenth Precinct station, surrendered to Traffic Officer H. A. Matney at Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue Thursday evening.

Police said he told them he took the money to support his family. His salary is listed at $2,400 a year.

Bread Price Boosted Cent in Washington

The staff of life became dearer by 1 cent a loaf yesterday, boosting the standard price of a pound loaf of bread to 9 cents.

Washington bakers said other baked goods would rise proportionately. The new price applies to both sliced and unsliced bread.

Eyes Glued

Chief Burke's Scissors Snip Many Prints in Drive on Nudism.

With pastepot and scissors, Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of District detectives, last night pursued nudism in print in Washington.

Wherever nudism raised its unabashed presence in picture or print, there went the scissors of the chief. A stack of literature assembled for several days went under the sleuth's unblinking eye.

It was all part of the police drive against objectionable literature in the District. Unofficially, but diligently, aiding the detective were numerous subordinates, police reporters, plain policemen and headquarters figures. Total results, they reported, were rather mild.

Meanwhile Dr. Jane Coates, Spiritualist foe of nudism, commended Maj. Brown, Superintendent of Police, for his drive against literature pertaining to the cult.

Headwind Force Made to Pull, Claims New Airship Inventor

Walter Link, of Arizona, Demonstrates Method to Nullify Nature.

"A wind on the nose makes the ship go forward," explains Walter Link to Elsa Hoidale, Congressman's daughter, explaining his new invention for dirigibles She can't understand, but she's interested.

Sweet are the uses of adversity, said Shakespeare, and the uses of adverse winds can be sorta sweet too, according to Walter Link, inventor, of Ajo, Ariz.

Link has taken the adverse wind, the bugaboo of all flying, and made it push his dirigible through the air, or at least he makes it overcome its own adverse effect. For ten years he has been in Washington endeavoring to persuade the Navy and Army to see eye-to-eye with him on his aeronautical developments.

Demonstration in Capitol.

Using a big ventilating fan in the fifth floor of the House of Representatives Office Building and the hall as a wind tunnel, he demonstrated the effect of a special stabilizer, applicable to the dirigible. By gathering the windstream in a ring that fits over the stern of the model and forcing the windstream past the conical end of the dirigible, he counteracts the effect of a headwind. Adjustment fore and aft of this ring improves or decreases its efficiency. Thus a dirigible, moored to a mast in any sort of wind, could be made to maintain itself stationary, without pulling or pushing on the mast. The harder the headwind in flight, the harder the device pushes forward.

Vertical and horizontal fins are affixed to the ring at the stern, and there are no movable parts of these fins. Motors will be within the envelope and propellers will be forward, two on the upper half and two below, with one master propeller in the nose of the ship. The ship is to be guided by manipulation of these propellers, he explained.

Plan 8-Day World Flight.

Santos Dumont's flight around Eiffel Tower in Paris inspired him, Link said, and he made a resolve out in Ajo that some day he would fly around the earth in eight days. Yesterday afternoon, after explaining his invention to pretty Elsa Hoidale, daughter of Representative Einar Hoidale, of Minneapolis, he invited her to be one of his guests. Miss Hoidale, not much versed in aerodynamics, accepted graciously, and added that she hoped the apparatus would fly and be safe.

He calls his ship the Paradox because it goes forward against influences which tend to push it backward. Shakespeare's toad, which he likened to adversity, bore a precious jewel in its head. Link's airship carries its jewel in the tail.

Accident at Stop Light Sends Man to Hospital

A Joseph, of Baltimore, was taken to Emergency Hospital last night with possible internal injuries following a traffic accident at Thomas Circle.

Police said Joseph had stopped for a traffic light when his auto was struck from behind by one driven by Thomas Fisk, 24, of 914 Shepherd street northwest.

Police and Fire Benefit Agency Asks Receiver

Retirement Association Seeks Dissolution; Blames Slump.

The National Retirement Association, a fraternal organization for policemen and firemen, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court for its dissolution. The petition was filed by James A. Flynn, president, trustee and principal stockholder.

Mr. Flynn, through Attorney James P. Donovan, also requested the court to appoint a receiver pending settlement of its affairs.

The association is capitalized at $10,000. Recently the Department of Insurance notified the association that the laws governing such organizations required a capital set-up of $100,000, and, according to Flynn, the association was unable to meet the requirement.

The association undertook to pay retirement allotments of from $250 to $1,000 to firemen and policemen. The court was informed that "the property and effects of the corporation have been so far reduced that it will not be able to meet demands against it." Blame was placed against "older men who remained in the service to collect their allowance, and upon younger men who gave up their memberships."

An unprecedented number of retirements due to economic conditions in various cities and towns depleted the reserves, the court was told.

Assets were listed at $60,640.42. Liabilities equaled the assets.

Women Push Door-to-Door NRA Canvass

Will Also Urge Repairs to Homes; Blue Eagle Army Grows Here.

With an adequate supply of pledge cards and other material available, the NRA army of women house-to-house canvassers will swing into determined action this morning.

It has been decided that the women—in obtaining consumers pledges—also will urge housewives to have home repairs made at this time, thus promoting the renovize campaign.

The suggestion that this be done came from Claude Owen, president of the Washington Board of Trade. The workers will not mention particular firms as home renovizers.

85 Per Cent Signed Up.

The Blue Eagle is increasing his numbers in the Capital according to Thomas P. Littlepage, general of the local NRA forces. He declared that 85 per cent of the employers have signed the agreement.

Gen. Littlepage and his lientenant general, Miss Etta L. Taggart, were sworn in yesterday by Frank Cunningham, clerk of District Supreme Court.

Gen. Amos A. Fries, chairman of the Recovery Day parade, yesterday said more than 100 Washington firms have announced their participation.

Mr. Littlepage announced that more than 90 per cent of the city's membership in civic organizations had signed the consumers' pledge.

More Women Appointed.

Several new appointments as lieutenants in the women's group were made yesterday.

Mrs. Clara Wright Smith, captain in the Cleveland Park and Cathedral avenue group, announced the following:

Miss Elaine Eppley, Mrs. Margaret L. Streeter, Miss Florence M. Christman, Mrs. Harry X. Walsh, Mrs. Anna W. Golden, Mrs. Florence Phelan, Mrs. Charles P. Stewart, Miss Alicia Stewart, Miss Loretta Hannan, Miss Ida B. Mapel, Miss A. Mapel, Mrs. Mabel J. Prye, Mrs. Zach Brewer and Mrs. Hetty Adams.

Mrs. Walter Davidson, captain for Wesley Heights and Spring Valley, named the following: Mrs. Winfree E. Johnson, Mrs. R. O. Saunders and Mrs. G. MacPherson.

Lieutenants for Mrs. C. L. Dalrymple, captain for Southeast, will be Mrs. J. S. Davis, Mrs. Beatrice Terry, Mrs. Lena Hedges, Mrs. A. Lawrence, Mrs. E. R. Mangum, Mrs. H. C. Murry atnd Miss E. L. Murry.

Good-By Call Balks Attempt at Suicide

Paul D. Graves Telephones Friend, Turns on Gas, But Is Rescued.

A call to a friend to bid him goodby last night proved the means of saving the life of a would-be suicide.

Before stepping into a bathroom and turning on a gas heater, Paul D. Graves, 915 I street northwest, called his friend, John Sutton, 1239 Twelfth street northwest.

"Well, so long," he said, "I won't be seeing you any more."

Then he hung up.

Alarmed, Sutton rushed to where Graves was staying. He found the bathroom door locked and failed to get a response to his calls.

The fire rescue squad was summoned and the door broken in. Graves was found unconscious, the gas heater open. He was taken to Emergency Hospital in a serious condition.

Phelps Contract Revocation Seen

Catalano Company Unable to Adjust New School Building Dispute.

Revocation of the Catalano Construction Co.'s contract to build the Phelps Vocational School was indicated yesterday when Dominic Catalano failed to report adjustment of his wage dispute with bricklayers within the two weeks allowed.

District officials declined to comment, but it was indicated no further time extension would be granted.

The colored vocational school, at Twenty-fourth and H streets northeast, is only a fourth done. If the contract is canceled, the Commissioners probably will call on the bonding company to complete construction.

National City Fair Exhibits Installed

Preparing for the National City Fair, exhibitors today began moving displays into the 60-acre grounds in Benning for showing the week of September 3. More than 100 Washington firms will be represented.

Fifteen army tents will house most of the exhibits. The fair site is at Benning road and Anacostia road northeast. Police and Fire Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, are sponsors.

W. E. Humphreys to Aid Writing Trucking Code

W. E. Humphreys, of Washington, president of the Jacobs Transfer Co., last night was elected director of the National Highway Freight Association to represent the District in the formulation of a recovery code for the trucking industry. Humphreys retired as secretary of the association to take the new post.

Major provisions of a national code for the industry were adopted at a meeting in the Shoreham. Regional codes are to be drawn up and coordinated with the national document for presentation to the Recovery Administration next week.

Goes the Limit

Judge Given Promises Heaviest Sentences to Car Strippers.

Warning that car strippers will receive maximum sentences in Police Court was issued yesterday by Judge Ralph Given.

"Any person found guilty before me on this charge may expect the stiffest sentence allowable," Judge Given said.

The judge believed "floaters" probably mainly were responsible for the wave of stripping. "It's getting so it no longer is safe to leave a car on the street," he added.

Kendall E. Noland, 1321 M street northwest, and George E. Wood, 3414 Fourteenth street northwest, were released on $1,000 bond each on stripping charges to be heard by the grand jury.

Hamilton Bank Has Shoemaker In Potomac Unit

Sixth Branch Manager Named Began Career as Storage Clerk.

A sixth branch manager, announced yesterday for the proposed Hamilton National Bank of Washington, is C. Wendel Shoemaker, cashier and an assistant conservator of Potomac Savings Bank, one of eight restricted institutions merging to form the Hamilton Bank.

The Potomac Savings Bank, at Wisconsin avenue and M streets northwest, Georgetown, will be one of the eight branches of the Hamilton Bank. It will be called the Potomac branch, and managed by Shoemaker.

Born in Tenleytown, D. C., Shoemaker attended the graded public schools and Business High School. He began as a clerk with Security Storage Co. At 19 he went to Potomac Savings Bank in 1908 as a runner. For 25 years he served in practically every department. He was elected assistant cashier in 1922 and cashier in 1927.

Shoemaker is an officer of William R. Singleton Lodge of Masons and a member of Potomac Chapter, Royal Arch Masons. He is an officer of Eldbrooke Methodist Episcopal Church and treasurer of Methodist Union of Washington and one of the district board of stewards of that church.

Potomac Savings Bank was the oldest of its kind in Washington. It was established in 1903. Following the national banking holiday, its officials, on March 21, announced the institution would seek to reopen as a national bank. A campaign to sell $500,000 worth of stock was started. Although more than half of this amount was sold, on May 13 Potomac Savings Bank was announced as one of the original four institutions in the Hamilton merger.

Auto Owners Requested To Give New Addresses

Auto owners who have changed addresses since obtaining 1933 license tags should notify the Traffic Department as soon as possible if they have not done so already, Director William A. Van Duzer advised yesterday.

By doing so before October 1, when issuance of 1934 plates starts, they will save themselves inconvenience and the traffic department additional clerical work, Mr. Van Duzer said. Last year 7,000 drivers failed to inform the department of address changes and delayed delivery of tags.

Jest Launched Van Duzer Into Study of Road Traffic

Washington Director Then Envisioned Future of Automobile.

Traffic's the thing. There was a time when the lure of the horseless carriage drew a bright-eyed boy to the iron tracks to watch an ideal go by.

Today William A. Van Duzer, traffic director of Washington, complacently regards his varied career and says that railroads are passe and that air and road traffic is the field for a young man.

And Van Duzer is a young man despite his 51 years of study and hard work. A gleam comes to his green cast eyes as he gives a quick sketch of his life. "You see, I was the first Van Duzer who was ever born out of the State of New York since the family came to settle in America in 1637," he explains.

"Made Best of It."

"With that handicap to overcome, there was only one thing to do," he asserted. "I had to make the best of it." For years the young Van, as he was called by his friends, trudged down to the railroad near his home in Jefferson, Ohio, and watched the steaming engines as they passed.

Later, as a full-fledged civil engineer, he built railroads, and just exactly 22 years ago there came a turning point in his life.

Working on a railroad tunnel a friend suggested: "Say, Van, they aren't building railroads now for a while, why don't you try building highways and studying traffic?"

Weighty Words in Jest.

The words were spoken in jest, but they gave Washington a director of traffic.

"But that doesn't answer the question of what you would do if you had to start all over," the reporter interposed. "Why, seriously; I believe I would like to be director of traffic of Washington," he parried.

Officer in Ohio Nabs D. C. Auto From Memory

Washington Men Returned Here; Charged With Unauthorized Use.

An obliging Ohio State policeman, possessing an uncanny memory, was credited last night with aiding local police to locate three Washington youths wanted for theft of an automobile.

Stalled on the highway near Cadiz, Ohio, the trio accepted aid of a highway patrolman, who volunteered to push their car. The officer glanced at the license plate on the youth's machine He remembered it as listed to an automobile stolen in Washington.

The three men were held in Cadiz and Washington authorities were notified. Detective Sergt. Jake Wolf returned here with them last night. The youths said they were Charles A. Cole, 19, of 434 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and Ralph E. and William F. Tear, brothers, 23 and 26, respectively, of Riggs road. The elder Tear, police said, was released from Atlanta Penitentiary last year after serving time on similar charges.

All three are held on charges of unauthorized use of an automobile. William Tear, however, insisted his companions were in no way implicated.

1,400 Acclaim Center Feast of Entertainment

"International Night" At Central High Proves Enjoyable Event.

"International Night," the Community Center Department's current summer music festival, had its deferred presentation in the auditorium of Central High School last night before an audience of more than 1,400, and proved the most spontaneously received of all the center's offerings this summer.

Cofeaturing in "International Night" were the Americanization School Association Band, under the leadership of Joseph Romeo; the Zalipsky Opera Club, directed by Mme. Maria Zalipsky, and the Bekefi Institute of Dance and Music.

A fast pace for the evening was set as the Americanization School Band struck into the martial strains of Grafulla's "Washington Grays," followed by Offenbach's famed "Orpheus" overture. "The Wanderer" was played as a barytone solo by Assistant Conductor J. Verga, with selections from Gounod's opera "Faust" closing part one.

Bit of Hungarian Opera.

The first act of the Hungarian opera, "Die Csardas Furstin" (The Dancing Princess), of Emmerich Kalman, composed part two of "International Night." As in its Washington premiere last spring this work again scored a signal success, with the hauntingly beautiful love theme, "She Is the Best in All the World," more than justifying the feeling of obvious incompleteness of the performance of only the first act.

In the cast were Marjorie Isaacs (in the title role), Eugene Swygert, John Kiernan, Nathan Bachrach, Donald Helm, M. Holmen, Melville Slaughter, Edwin Singer, Hans Lehrer and Grace Powell. The dances were staged by Theodore Bekefi.

In part three the Bekefi Institute held forth in the grand manner. Although the master and his assistants were exceptionally good, it fell to wee Phyllis Schwartz and her partner, Lucille Peck, to stop the show with their "Russian Babi" number.

Dance of Blue Eagle.

"L'Aiglon Bleu" (The Blue Eagle), danced to Chopin music, opened the cycle of dances, which included as high spots of especial merit an ingenuous "Dutch Dance" by Margaret Mary Edmonston, Charlene Springsgut, Mr. Bekefi, and the Misses Schwartz and Peck, a sumptuous "Bacchanale," with Lila Zalipsky, Elinor Wen, Charlene Springsgut, Ludmilla Plavsky, Norma Ruppert, Margaret Mary Edmonston, Ann Vucinovich and Kitty Reece, and scenes from Offenbach's "Orpheus and Euridice," with Sola Holmen and Marjorie Isaacs, respectively, in the title roles.

Others participating in the dances and the chorus of "Die Csardas Furstin" were Claire Rudyk, Liza Wolter, Helen C. Kiernan-Vasa, Marie Peverini, Ann Stica, Tania de Blumental, Marie Paull, Olga Grinoff, M. V. Grinoff, May Tenn, Shirley Madeline Effenbach, Gloria Masgorot, Alex Bekefi and Maurice Delaporte.

Drunken Drivers Lose 326 Permits

Third of Revocations or Suspensions Based on That Offense.

More than a third of 900 drivers' permits revoked or suspended during the last fiscal year resulted from driving under the influence of liquor, the board of revocations and restorations of operators' permits reported yesterday to the District Commissioners.

Intoxicated drivers who lost their permits numbered 326, but only 124 of them were in the District when arrested. Maryland picked up 170 and other States 32. An additional 160 permits were revoked or suspended for violation of the prohibition act involving the use of an automobile to carry liquor.

Thirty-six drivers lost their licenses for leaving the scene after colliding with another automobile or striking a pedestrian. Nineteen were involved in traffic fatalities in the District and eight in other States. Reckless driving charges accounted for 136 more revocations and accumulated speeding offenses for 38.

Mrs. Taft appealed to The Post last night in an effort to locate the missing puppy. The dog is white with a black eye.
